Two Balloons Drop in Water.

Fielding-San Antonio Gets Both Distance and Time Prizes.

Makes Eight Hundred Twenty-five Miles, Lands in Quebec.

Big Gas Bag Saves Aeronauts from Drowning as If by Miracle.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After twenty-four hours of the most remarkable sailing in variable winds, the Fielding-San Antonio landed at West Shefford,, Quebec, at 5 o'clock this evening, the winner of both the distance and the time prises in the big international balloon race. Both the occupants of the great bag are in good condition. It is 825 miles from the starting point.

All of the other balloons in the race have been located. No one is seriously injured as a result of the race, although several had remarkable escapes from death by drowning.

In the high northeast wind which carried the balloons over Lake Michigan, almost every balloonist, with the exception of those in the Fielding, experienced great trouble in crossing. The occupants of the French entry, the Ville de Dieppe, dropped in the water a few miles out from shore, and were in the water for over three hours before their balloon rose and carried them to the Michigan shore.

Soon after starting across the lake, about five miles out, the gas failed. They were thrown into the lake. Their basket rapidly filled with water. Drowning seemed certain.

The pilot clung desperately to his basket, and tried to straighten it. As he did, it filled with water. His companion attempted to jump out. He was on the edge of the basket ready to leap into the boiling surf, when the older man caught him. Throwing the lad into the boat he strapped him to the ring above the basket. Slowly the basket was dragged under the water, and in a last desperate effort to save himself and companion, Mr. Mueller cut several ropes and threw away all provisions. As if Providence intervened, the balloon suddenly jumped out of the watter and shot into the air like a rocket. At the height of over 7000 feet it struck a current and sailed away. A few hours later they landed safely at Benton Harbor. Both were unnerved by the terrific shock.

C. L. Perrigo and J. L. Case of the Illinois were rescued from drowning in the bay of Quinte, near Glen Island, after a terrific battle with the waters. Their balloon fell on top of them. They were dragged from under the silken bag after they had been in the water more than half an hour.

The two aëronauts of the King Edward, J. L. Bennett and Gerald Gregory, suffered terrible lake experiences. They first almost fell into Lake Michigan, after leaving Chicago and later fell into Lake Huron near Port Huron, Ont. Both men were thoroughly tired out and would have drowned in a few minutes had not rescue come to them.

The third serious accident took place near Clinton, Ont. The balloon Columbia could not be controlled by Capt. M. Peterson, and C. H. Leichleiter, and they were dashed against trees and dragged through barbed-wire fences. Both men were painfully injured.

Balloon—	Landing place.	Distance
Fielding-San Antonio,	West Shefford, Que.	825
Illinois,	Glen Island, Ont.	575
United States,	E. Pinkerton, Can.	600
Coey's Chicago	Atwood, Ont.	340
Columbia,	Clinton, Ont.	325
King Edward,	Port Huron, Ont.	300
American,	Carsonville, Mich.	295
Cincinnati,	Covert, Mich.	80

BOLT KILLS PREACHER.

"God Bless You" Last Words of Minister to Convert as Lightning Hits Pulpit.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHINA SPRING (Tex.) July 5. — [Exclusive Dispatch.] While shaking hands with a convert, the Rev. T. H. Feagin, conducting a revival service here, was struck and killed by a bolt of lightning.

"God bless you, brother, and preserve—" were his last words.

The Rev. Mr. Feagin was a prominent Baptist minister and for the last week presided at a revival service in the Baptist church. He had just finished his sermon and called on the sinners to come forward and repent when an electrical storm of great violence broke over the town.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RICHMOND (Va.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It was learned tonight that Postmaster-General George von L. Meyer, who was to have been the guest of the Custis Club in a Fourth of July celebration at the club on the old Martha Custis place on James River, is suffering from ptomaine poisoning at his home in Washington.

His condition is so serious that the members of his family have been summoned to his bedside from their summer home in Massachusetts. His physicians consider his condition extremely serious.

This information came to the secretary of the club from the secretary of the Postmaster-General on Friday night, after all preparations had been made for the outing down the river in honor of the club's distinguished guest. The pilgrimage was made by the members of the club, nothing being known of the illness of the Postmaster-General until their return to Richmond today.

Mr. Meyer will be expected to fill his engagement with the club on July 15 if his condition is sufficiently improved in that time.

REVOLUTIONISTS ARE VICTORIOUS.

NEW GOVERNMENT ESTABLISHED IN PARAGUAY.

Five Hundred Killed and Wounded in Streets of Asuncion, Battle Lasting Thirty Hours—Buildings Are Destroyed and President Ferreyra Resigns.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BUENOS AYRES (Argentina) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Dispatches from Formera announce a sweeping triumph of the revolutionists in Paraguay.

The new government has been established.

The President, Señor Ferreyra, has resigned.

The fighting in Asuncion lasted for thirty hours, resulting in 500 killed and wounded.

Several buildings, including the police headquarters and theater, were destroyed. The cathedral is seriously damaged.

The revolution was conducted by the Radicals against the Liberals.

These advices have been confirmed by a dispatch received by the Minister of Foreign Affairs from the Argentina Legation at Asuncion, officially notifying the Minister that the revolutionary party had succeeded in overthrowing the Paraguayan government, and that several of the Paraguayan Ministers of State had taken refuge in the legation.

PORT AU PRINCE BURNS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PORT AU PRINCE, July 5.—A serious fire broke out here this afternoon in the vicinity of the palace and senate building.

The flames spread quickly, there being a high wind, and soon reached alarming proportions.

Four hundred buildings were burned, including the Courthouse and prison. All of the prisoners, who included a number of women, were taken to other quarters before the building took fire.

Sparks were carried to the arsenal, which was also burned, together with stores of powder and other ammunition. The destruction of the arsenal was accompanied by many explosions.

For a time panic prevailed, but, later, as the intensity of the fire diminished, the people became more calm, though heavy explosions in the arsenal continued.

NEW YORK HAS HOT SPELL.

NEW YORK, July 5.—High temperature and excessive humidity made the day one of the most enervating of the season so far. As a result, four deaths from heat and nine prostrations were reported. Fully 500,000 people sought relief at the beaches. The official maximum temperature in the city was 88 at 4 p.m.

BY HARRY C. CARR.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DENVER, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Gompers got in today and is lying in wait for Isidore and the other members of the Resolutions Committee. But he is somewhat tame.

Politicians seem to believe that the labor-union men have been given a straight tip that if they wish to get anything they better take a reef in their demands.

Many predict that Gompers will sing a good deal lower than he did in the Republican committee. There are some strong men in this convention who are not gun shy. Tammany can eat a labor union and not have to take a "chaser."

These Democrats are a funny lot of ginks, anyhow. They are "half devil and half-child." They will take orders like messenger boys from some bartender with a pull; and in the next minute they have stampeded the whole works and kicked the convention into flinders. Just now about a million of them are jammed into the lobby of the Brown Palace Hotel, milling around like crowded stock.

There's an orator on the landing of the marble stairway simply tearing the atmosphere into rags. Every time he stops for breath the crowd lets out a dreadful howl.

Outside a terrific thunderstorm is in progress. Blinding flashes of lightning rend the sky and throw out the distant mountains into startling vividness as though a giant spot light had been turned upon them.

But the Democrats don't know anything about this. All they know about is a perspiring man with his mouth wide open and noises coming out therefrom like the tunes of a circus calliope.

It's just like an afternoon in Central Park in Los Angeles with the sidewalk Socialists all going at once. One of the orators has been our own little "Silver Dick" Warner, who turned up tonight in still another suit of clothes, this one with a long-tailed Prince Albert coat, having plenty of room in the sleeves for pounding the arms about.

It was simply awful, what "Silver Dick" said to predatory wealth and the railroads. He made such a hit that they kept yelling for him to go on.

I am afraid this Democratic convention is going to be a fearful experience unless these orators get it all out of their systems beforehand. The trouble is it takes such a lot to exhaust a Democrat.

This thing has been going on all day long. The delegation from the wild and woolly Oklahoma started it this morning. They came in with a brass band and "Alfalfa Bill" marching haughtily along at their head.

CALIFORNIA COMES.

With Theodore Bell's sweet face missing from the window, the California delegation blew into Denver tonight. Rumors of the terrific row that resulted from the attempt of T'dore Bell to bulldose Nate Cole off the National Committee and himself into Cole's place had preceded the arrival of the California party and a crowd was at the station to meet them.

There were many false alarms. Two men came through the crowd carrying a suspicious looking box labeled, "Glass, Handle With Care."

"Ah, that's California," shouted the crowd. But it was only Kentucky, sah.

When they did come at last, they came trailing majestically along in the rear of a big blue and gold Bryan banner.

First came Milton K. Young, striding out with great dignity; Isidore Dockweiler walking like a United States Senator; Nathan Cole still dazed from the effects of A'dore's accusation that he has a two-million sugar factory and is about to invest another million in cash in it.

They all climbed into a big "Seeing Denver" car was awaiting and were trundled to the Hotel Law where their headquarters are to be. Every Democrat in Denver knows the place and has been passing and repassing it with parched lips for days in anticipation.

Tonight the cry-baby desertion of T'dore is the choicest bit of gossip passed around in the hotel lobby.

Doubtless Los Angeles already knows how T'dore was rude and tried to crowd; how he insisted that he and not the delegation should be allowed to make all the appointments; how Delegate Fox tried to punch his nose because T'dore asserted that Fox is in the pay of the Southern Pacific and how T'dore got off the train at Ogden completely licked.

DEMOCRAT WHO DARES CALL BRYAN NAMES.

Col. James M. Guffey
of Pennsylvania, who was attacked by Nebraskan and who responded by branding "Peerless One" as "most impudent, domineering, devastating boss" party ever had.

LESE-MAJESTE.

GUFFEY CALLS BRYAN AN "IMPUDENT BOSS."

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DENVER, July 5.—Col. J. M. Guffey of Pennsylvania, who was yesterday attacked by Mr. Bryan in a speech at Lincoln, today issued the following statement in reply:

"In the course of his Fourth of July speech to twelve or fifteen out of the sixty-eight delegates from Pennsylvania, Mr. Bryan made certain explicit declarations. He charged that the Pennsylvania delegation was taken from him by 'conspiracy' against the expressed wish of a great majority of the Democratic voters. This statement is false. The State convention voted down a resolution indorsing his candidacy by a substantial majority and there is no basis whatever for Mr. Bryan's assumption that the members of that convention did not accurately represent the voters who had elected them delegates.

"Mr. Bryan personally forced the issue before the people, when, in flat contradiction of his boasted policy of non-interference, he came to Pittsburgh, pleaded his own cause before the thousands in Exposition Hall, and put his own ticket in the field against the regular candidates. The result of his fervid appeals was the election of of 3½ Bryan delegates and 26½ anti-Bryan delegates to the National Convention.

"Mr. Bryan further asserted, with all solemnity, that his opposition to me for National Committeeman was the first instance of any interference on his part in local or State politics. 'I believe,' he unctuously declared, 'that the people of each community know best what they want done better than any outside person can know.' Therefore, he virtuously observes, he has 'abstained scrupulously from taking part in these controversies.'

BRAND OF HYPOCRISY.

"What then was he doing in Kentucky during the last campaign for Senator? How does or can he explain his opposition to Mr. McGraw in West Virginia, or his begging appeals to Democrats in Indiana to defeat Mr. Taggart? Did he or did he not try to humiliate Roger Sullivan and drive him off the committee? Did he, or did he not, write this letter to his friend, Judge O. P. Thompson, of Illinois, on July 17, 1906:

"'Mr. Sullivan's presence on the committee contradicts all that we can say in the party's behalf. His corporate connections would harm the party far beyond his power to aid the organization, but this could be left to some future convention to deal with if he were actually the choice of the Democrats of Illinois. The fact, however, that he holds his office by fraud and against the express wishes of a majority of the State convention makes it impossible for honest Democrats to associate with him as a member of the committee. If he refuses to resign and thus put his ambition or his business before the party's success the sooner he is ejected from the committee the better.'

"What kind of scrupulous abstention from interference does Mr. Bryan call that, and what particular brand of hypocrisy is indicated by these salving words uttered by Mr. Bryan, at the Iroquois Club last December, when he stood up and said: 'We must forget the past and work for the future. We must forget all and forgive all. For myself I may say I have no grievance. I no longer judge a man by what he has done. The future is everything to me.' I want to know what he is going to do in the future?

"How can we account for this abrupt change from brutal assault to smirking palaver? Had Mr. Sullivan changed. Was not his office held 'by fraud' then as much as in 1906? What had happened to suddenly make it 'possible' for 'honest Democrats' to associate with him? Simply this, as everybody knows, Mr. Bryan wanted the Illinois delegation to the convention and to accomplish that purpose he did not hesitate an instant to eat his own vicious words.

"IMPUDENT DOMINEERING!"

"Mr. Bryan views me with sanctimonious horror as a 'political boss who shall never be in the party organization except over my protest' as a 'bushwhacker' who should not be put into 'my councils to betray me.'

"My councils indeed. Is the Democratic party really absorbed? Has it no councils? Is Mr. Bryan the whole organization? 'Let the people rule,' he shouts and forthwith proceeds to dictate not only every act, every office and every resolution of this convention, but also to put the ban upon every man from any State who is opposed to his candidacy or his platform.

"Does he turn his vituperation against me because I am a boss? Not at all. I am no more of a boss now than I was during the two campaigns when I won his approbation by trying to elect him. The only boss he hates is the boss opposed to his own arrogant self—the most impudent, domineering, devastating boss the Democratic party has ever known.

"But there is another reason. I am a corporation man. Well, I am. I was in 1896 and 1900, and am today. But I have been connected with corporations. There is not a dollar in any company which is not an incorporation of my own private business and which I absolutely control. That, however, makes no difference. I am a 'corporation man' but it is only when opposed to Mr. Bryan that I am considered unworthy of association with the one living 'honest Democrat.'

"My counsel and my help are no longer desired. It was not always so. In 1896 and 1900 the late Senator Jones many times declared there were just three men upon whom he never called for financial assistance in vain. One was the late Marcus Daly, another was William R. Hearst, the third was myself. Through his friend and manager, Mr. Bryan not only accepted gratefully, but beseechingly sought our aid and we gave freely thousands and thousands of dollars. Mr. Bryan knew then and knows now that I was as much of a 'corporation man' in 1896 and 1900 as I am in 1908, but did he scrupulously abstain' to use our money to help his campaign? Let him answer at his leisure. And what followed?

"After his defeat, Mr. Hearst became his patron and paid him thousands of dollars, only to be turned upon without a qualm, though now, when again a candidate, Mr. Bryan fawns upon him in hope of gaining his support. I reap my reward in a vicious, brutal attack from the man who professed to be my friend. Mr. Daly died soon enough not to feel the ingratitude of one who accepts a man's assistance and at the first refusal to serve a selfish purpose, spits in his face.

"I have replied to Mr. Bryan's vituperative assault upon me with calmness and restraint. The use of expletives is, clearly, unnecessary. This simple recital of plain facts shall be sufficient to enable any fair mind to determine with certainty at a time when harmony is the chief requisite of party sucess, who is the self-convicted falsifier, who the hypocrite, who the real and most arrogant 'boss' ever known in the Democratic party, and who, I regret to add, the ingrate."

WARSHIPS AT GUAM.

GUAM, July 5.—The battleships Maine and Alabama, composing the special service squadron under the command of Capt. C. B. Harber, arrived here today, one day ahead of their scheduled time. Their average speed from Honolulu was 10½ knots, without resorting to the use of the coal reserve bunkers.

There were no casualties or sickness during the voyage. The engines of the Alabama acted well. The battleships sailed from San Francisco June 8, and from Honolulu June 28. They are the advance guard of the Atlantic fleet in its trip around the world.

LAST TIME, SAYS BRYAN.

Will Never Aspire to the Presidency Again After the Coming Campaign.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DENVER, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Word was brought here from Lincoln by a New York man, who saw William J. Bryan within the last forty-eight hours, that in writing his letter accepting the nomination Mr. Bryan intends to make the statement that after making this race he will never aspire to the Presidency again.

This is so worded that it means that Mr. Bryan will not even be a candidate for the nomination again.

HORRIBLE.

CHILDREN CRUSHED.

Sunday Party Hit by Car.

Three Little Boys, One Girl and Two Men Are Killed.

Four Young Girls and One Woman Hurt, One Girl Seriously.

Wagon Filled With Merry Crowd Drives Before Fast Coach.

THE lives of four little children and two men, their fathers, were snuffed out in a collision with an electric car at Lynwood, on the Santa Ana line, at 7:40 o'clock last evening, while four other children were injured, one seriously. Mrs. Antonia Kuehner, the mother of two of the children that were killed, jumped from the farm wagon in which the happy Sunday party were riding in time to save her life, although the blood from her mangled children spattered her white shirt waist.

The six dead are:

JOSEPH OLLER, JR., 14, Lynwood.

H. OLLER, 8 years, Lynwood.

ELSIE KUEHNER, 9 years, No. 434 North Vignes street, Los Angeles.

THEODORE KUEHNER, 7 years, same address.

PETER KUEHNER, 45 years, No. 404 North Vignes street, Los Angeles, who died at midnight at the Emergency and General Hospital.

The injured are:

Annie Oller, 12 years; Marie Oller, 10 years, and Bertha Oller, 8 years, of Lynwood, all bruised and shocked, but not seriously injured.

Alexis Kuehner, 11 years, left leg broken, badly shocked and bruised; at the Emergency and General Hospital.

Mrs. Antonia Kuehner jumped and was only slightly bruised.

HIS RECKLESS CHANCE.

The Kuehner family had spent Sunday on the ranch of Joseph Loller and drove to the Lynwood station to catch the Santa Ana car bound for Los Angeles. Oller, who was driving the wagon north on Lynwood avenue, crossed the tracks directly in front of the car and the crash followed. The horses escaped uninjured, but the wagon was smashed to kindling wood. The fender of car No. 821 was slightly broken, but otherwise the car bears no marks of the accident, not even the glass in front of the motorman being so much as cracked.

When the accident happened, J. Z. Wygal, of No. 824 Hawthorne street, was motorman, and Gus Thornquist, of No. 827 Parker Drive, was conductor.

As soon as possible, the car was stopped and it was found that five were dead and the rest more or less injured, one fatally.

The bodies of little Elsie Kuehner, Theodore Kuehner and H. Oller were picked up and laid out on the platform in the rear of the car, the injured taken aboard and the car made a quick run to the Pacific Electric Hospital in the Huntington Building.

The bodies of Oller and his son, Joseph were brought in on another car, unloaded at the Hewes Market on Center street, and were removed to Pierce Brothers' morgue, where later the other bodies were taken.

TRAGEDY GROWS.

At the Pacific Electric Hospital the injured were given first aid by Drs. Cates and Hall, the Pacific Electric physicians, and were then taken to the Emergency and General Hospital, where it was stated than an operation for the removal of the leg of Peter Kuehner might have to be performed. He died a few minutes after midnight, the heartbroken wife and mother beside him.

The passengers on the car from Santa Ana and way stations hurried to leave it when it reached the Pacific Electric building. Many of them were almost overcome with the horror of the accident and the sight of the mangled bodies of the two little boys and little girl lying in pools of blood on the rear platform. Little Elsie had been thrown under the wheels of the car and her body was crushed, while one of the wheels had gashed her throat.

Her face was uninjured but blood-flecked, and she lay in the rear aisle with her head pillowed in her broad-brimmed straw hat, her fair curls clustered about her forehead and her blue, sightless eyes looking straight upward. Her legs were encased in long white stockings and a white shoe still clung to one foot, but the other shoe was missing.

FELL UNDER WHEELS.

The bodies of the little boys were shockingly mangled. The right arm of Theodore was cut off just below the shoulder, while his right leg hung by a shred. The heads of both boys were deeply gashed and the bodies more or less crushed. Each boy was dressed in a white waist, short trousers and black stockings.

In spite of the fact that the accident was apparently due in no way to the negligence of the company or of its employés, some officers did all they could to suppress the facts and to mislead newspaper men. They gave out first that only two children and to sound a key note, still smarting with the paddling given him by his whole delegation.

T'dore threatens to knock out the appointments, and the rest of the delegation only hopes he tries to; each one has a sharp ax out for Bell.

But he has one friend at court. "Silver Dick" Warner, with great gusto has sent a telegram to the Peerless One, asking that T'dore be still allowed to speak a piece at the opening of the convention.

There is no doubt that the appointment of Isidore Dockweiler to the Resolutions Committee will be a bitter disappointment to the Bell outfit in California. Even some of the Bryan men feel a little uneasy.

I interviewed several members of the delegation tonight on the stand California ought to take on the injunction plank, the popular election of United States Senators, physical valuation of railroads, etc.

Most of them seem to think that Dockweiler ought to swallow whatever the Peerless One orders if it chokes him.

"SWALLER THE ORDERS."

"Swaller the orders," is their slogan. Dockweiler doesn't seem to think so. He said tonight that he should advocate a strong navy plank before the committee; that he thought the injunction law might stand some modification but that it should be left to the lawyers on the committee and not be a plank drawn up as a sop to the labor unions or anybody else. Senators by popular election he favors. Physical valuation of railroads, he confesses he knows not enough about to express an absolutely final opinion.

Many politicians here seem to think that Bryan may have a hard time forcing any extreme ideas on the Resolutions Committee.

AND THE BAND PLAYED ON.

It is hardly necessary to say that the band was playing "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight." That foolish, inconsequential tune will yet become a national air. Old Joe Hayden, a vaudeville actor, whose inspirations usually are about equal to a guinea pig, made it up and since then it has helped men to die for their country. Fraternal orders have sung it to get drunk by. The troops have invariably marched away to war by it, since Joe Hayden made it up.

But these Indians from Oklahoma got something new out of it. With the brass band at their head and the whole outfit yelling like Apaches they turned into the hotel rotunda.

The clerk tried to dance them up to the register. Pough! They waved him to one side. What cared they for beds to sleep in? What they wanted was speechmaking.

Somebody called for Gov. Haskell and Alfalfa Bill reached down and planted the little Governor feet first on the top of a chair.

"Now, go on speak," growled Bill.

So the Governor waded into the wicked rich and twisted the tail of the railroads. Gov. Haskell is a nice little man, but the trouble is somebody told him he has a star of destiny, and it worries him a good deal. So he takes it out on the railroads.

When he was through, Alfalfa Bill reached down and pulled up another Oklahoma orator, and it turned out to be Senator Gore, the blind Senator.

One of the most weirdly pathetic things I ever saw in my life was this blind man cheering. It seemed so wanton, and so ineffective and so aimless.

He made a good speech. Then Alfalfa Bill Murray gave a deliberate preparatory lick to his lips, and drew a good preliminary breath, and I shudder at the recollection of what Alfalfa did to things in general.

I remember that he alluded to our genial Republican standard-bearer as that fat party."

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION.

They finally persuaded the Oklahoma people to go to their rooms long enough to leave their suit cases so the bell hops could clean up a few dollars. But early this evening they were out again.

With so many Oklahoma Democrats the atmosphere became charged and finally broke into oratory. Sort of spontaneous combustion.

"Let's have some speakin'," shouted an Oklahoma man, and one of their number was hooked out of the marble staircase.

One of the best things about an Oklahoma orator is that you don't have to listen to him. Every time his voice always suddenly upward and stops short, you know he has said something rocking and you all cheer.

Down in Oklahoma nobody listens to anybody else, but they cheer a lot and it's great for the lungs. After a few Oklahoma orators had turned loose Silver Dick of Los Angeles carelessly got out in the way and he was hooked up to the marble stairs.

What a contrast between this barnyard rough-house eloquence and the days that preceded the Republican convention when the Auditorium looked like a great, fashionable reception.

With a Democrat, every day he doesn't have to work is Fourth of July. The city is so overcrowded tonight that all the halls of all the hotels are lined with cots and belligerent Democrats are objecting to each other's snoring.

STIFF FIGHT PROMISED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DENVER, July 5.—The most aggressive and apparently determined delegation that has yet appeared in Denver are the twenty-two contesting representatives of Cook county, who arrived from Chicago on a special train at 11 o'clock this morning.

With the delegation came 150 representatives of the Cook County Democracy of Chicago, the big Democratic organization of that city, headed by a band of forty pieces. Forming in column at the depot, at the foot of Seventeenth street, the delegation marched for an hour through the principal streets, with the band playing patriotic airs and the delegates singing campaign songs, cheering for Bryan and waving flags and banners.

The delegation, arriving at their headquarters at the Albany Hotel, formed in a group in the street in front of the hotel and gave vent to great enthusiasm in song and cheers.

In the lobby of the hotel Judge William Prentiss of Chicago, one of the contesting delegates, and the man who will make the principal fight for the delegation before the National Committee and the Credentials Committee, addressed a crowd which completely filled the lobby and corridors of the hotel and spread far out into the street.

"We are here," said Judge Prentiss, in his speech, "as the true Democrats of Illinois. We are here in the interest of justice and fair play, which have been denied us in Chicago. We are here for William J. Bryan, and we are the only properly accredited delegation from Chicago to this convention which does represent him, and what he stands for."

The contesting delegation claims twenty-two seats in the national convention, two of which are seats of delegates-at-large. The contested districts are in Cook county. The contests are directed against the Roger Sullivan faction and is a continuation of the bitter fight that has been raging in Chicago for nearly five years. The fight centers about the place of national committeemen from Illinois, now held by Sullivan. If the contesting delegation is seated, Sullivan will be turned down for reelection, and Millard F. Dunlop, a banker of Jacksonville, and close friend of W. J. Bryan, will be chosen for the place.

The Burke-Prentiss delegation will contend that the State convention which selected the Sullivan delegates was illegally held in that it was called at a time which did not allow for party primaries in Cook county as required by law, and that the delegations to the State convention from Cook county were selected unlawfully.

SURRENDER.

CONSERVATIVES FAIL TO INFLUENCE DEMOCRATIC BOSS.

Unionites Show Power in Party Circles by Admission of Opponents That They Cannot Hold Majority Within Reason in Regard to Gompers's Demands.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DENVER, July 5.—Conservatism has been the prevailing note of discussion on the subject of the National Democratic platform today. This discussion has been indulged in freely among prospective members of the Resolutions Committee as well as among leaders of the party generally, and Mr. Bryan has been quoted as being in harmony with the idea.

The one radical plank which seems to be conceded will go into the document will be the expression on the subject of injunction as applied in labor disputes. Those who oppose strong language on this subject are conceding that their influence will not be potent to prevent the adoption of a plank which will pledge the party to an amendment of the law which will make notice of the issuance of a preliminary injunction imperative; also that provision will be made for hearing of a case before a different judge than the one issuing the injunction, and for a hearing of the facts in the case before a jury.

There promises to be a struggle before the Resolutions Committee over the question of an anti-Mormon plank. Four years ago at St. Louis such a plank was made a part of the Democratic platform, and an effort is to be made to have it reinserted in that document. Former United States Senator Fred Dubois of Idaho has today been making an active canvass of the situation in behalf of the plank. Mr. Dubois is involved in a contest for a seat in the convention, but he has announced that however that may be settled he will go before the Resolutions Committee with an anti-Mormon plank and bring to bear every influence possible in its behalf.

It is asserted by the Utah delegation that no such plank will be adopted. Judge W. H. King of Salt Lake, who has been chosen as Utah's member of the Resolutions Committee, has the unanimous backing of this delegation in opposition to the plank. His argument is that the Mormon question is a dead issue. He asserts that the practice of polygamy has ceased in Utah, and that the only remnant of it is in the lives of a number of old Mormon patriarchs who married their wives long before the practice was declared unlawful and who are not by their quiet lives creating a ripple in the new order of things.

Efforts were made today, the matter being engineered by members of the New York delegation, to have Mr. Dubois abandon his efforts for an anti-Mormon plank, but without avail.

H. R. Fuller, legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Railway Men, will offer the same injunction plank to the Resolutions Committee that was presented to the Republican convention at Chicago. It recognises the right of workingmen to strike and to induce others to do so, and concludes with a plank against the use of injunctions without notice, and jury trial where the alleged contempt is not committed in the presence of the court.

DUBOIS SEEKS SUPPORT.

BLAMES MORMONS FOR FIGHT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DENVER, July 5.—With the entire delegation trailing at their heels, former United States Senators Dubois and Heitfelt of Idaho, today made the rounds of the various State delegations in the interest of the retention of their names on the convention roll. Their seats are being contested by a delegation which claims that the Dubois-Heitfelt convention was irregular.

"They contend," said Mr. Dubois, in effect, to the delegates whom they met, "that some of our delegates were not properly elected, but in reality the contest is made by and in the interest of the Mormon organization. The Mormons in Idaho are all Republicans and in close alliance with the Republican party of the State and nation. They do not participate in Democratic politics or vote the Democratic ticket. Their only claim to recognition by this convention is that if the Democracy will cease its fight on polygamy and Mormon domination in political affairs it will get some of the Mormon vote.

"The American citizens, regardless of party, in Utah and Idaho, are practically united in their determination that the political power of the Mormon organization in politics and the continuation of polygamous living shall be brought to an end. The national party in its platform at St. Louis in 1904 declared strongly for the separation of the church and State in political affairs and the extermination of polygamy in the United States.

"All the Democratic members of the Senate on the committee voted to expel Apostle Reed Smoot from the Senate and all the Democratic Senators, with the exception of four, voted in the Senate to expel him. They took this position because it is proven that Mr. Smoot belonged to an organization which continues to teach and practice polygamy.

"The position of American democracy is plain and unmistakable and the contention of the delegation of which I am at the head is that the Democratic party should declare even more plainly against polygamy in the approaching campaign than it has heretofore done."

The National Committee will hear the Idaho contest tomorrow.

GATHERING OF CLAN.

"ALLIES" ARE DISAPPOINTED.

MURPHY REFUSES TO COMMIT HIMSELF AGAINST BRYAN.

Tammany Chief Is Too Wise to Attempt Openly to Stem Tide of Democratic Feeling But Opposition to Nebraskan Is Far from Dead—Supporters Are Confident.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DENVER, July 5.—The convention throngs have been pouring into the city by every train today. It has been a noisy, boisterous Sunday with bands escorting delegates through the streets, with steadily swelling crowds in the hotel lobbies, and with leaders and delegates buttonholing the new arrivals and holding private conferences on candidates and measures.

Most of the leaders and more than half of the delegates are now here and the tide of humanity which comes to look on and cheer is now in full movement toward the city.

The weather is almost perfect, warm, but not unbearable, with a clear sky and a brisk mountain breeze, just the sort of weather to bring comfort to a convention. Many of the delegates have embraced the opportunity of a Sunday lull for a trip to the near-by Rockies, others have enjoyed the more exciting diversion of tournaments where bronco busters are presenting a picture of real Western life.

Tonight the crowds are turning to the splendid auditorium where the convention will be held. The vast amphitheater is lighted and open to the public for the first time, for a band concert, and the brilliant scene within the enclosure, hung with flags and packed to its full capacity, suggests the throngs which will soon gather for the convention struggles.

MURPHY FAILS ALLIES.

A unique feature of the evening is the appearance of Charles A. Towne of New York, one of the leading Vice-Presidential candidates, in the pulpit of the People's Tabernacle.

But while these outward evidences of activity have been going on, the leaders, who have been shaping the affairs of the forthcoming contest, have been holding meetings in the upper chambers of hotels arranging their final plans.

The chief interest of the day has centered in the movement of the "allies" to galvanize the opposition to Bryan into something like a formidable movement. But their best efforts, begun yesterday, have not been entirely successful. Chief Murphy of Tammany, on whom the hopes of the "allies" have been centered, will give no sign committing his forces against Bryan. He is too shrewd a politician for that when the tide seems setting toward Bryan. On the contrary, his lieutenants are passing the word around today that New York's vote will be for Bryan. However, the allied opposition still contends the fight will be continued.

The Bryan managers have at no time shown any nervousness over the renewed activities of the "allies" and today Mayor Dahlman of Omaha, one of the Bryan chiefs, made a very definite statement, showing the expectations of the Bryan forces. He expressed his views as follows:

"Mr. Bryan will be nominated on the first ballot."

BRYANITES ARE SURE.

"The Bryan forces now control thirty-six delegations and will have at least that many members of the Committee on Resolutions and possibly more. The platform adopted will be in accordance with Mr. Bryan's personal views and express his well-known ideas on all of the important political issues.

Gov. Charles N. Haskell of Oklahoma, is now regarded as the leading candidate for the chairmanship of the Resolutions Committee, but there are many other prominent men being mentioned for the place. It is needless to say that a loyal Bryan man will be chosen.

"The Vice-Presidential question may be described as being 'in the air.' If the men who call themselves the 'old guard' can unite on a strong Eastern Democrat, the Bryan men will not show animosity as was the attitude of their candidate toward Mr. Bryan in 1896 and in 1900. If the eastern Democrats fail to get together on a man we will make a selection from a hundred available candidates, any one of whom would be satisfactory to Mr. Bryan."

BROTHER CHARLES TALKS.

Charles W. Bryan, brother of the Nebraskan, is looking after the Bryan leaders as they arrive, and is making the compilations of Bryan strength. He said:

"Although we already have more than enough to carry out our programme, there are still good seats on the band wagon."

The arrival of delegations began early this morning and has been going on steadily all day, by all routes from all directions, and by regular and special trains. One route reports twenty-seven trains, stalling the lines up from Kansas City, and all the other lines are equally choked with the tide of travel.

The local committee started an elaborate plan of reception today, with re-

PITH OF NEWS FROM THE MIDDLE WEST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] But for a lively breeze from the southwest it would have been very hot in Chicago today, as in all points of the Middle West States it was just an ordinary summer day, not too hot and far from being cool. The mercury reached the maximum point of 88 deg. at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, having registered 75 deg. early in the day. Middle West temperatures recorded at 7 o'clock tonight follow:

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Now, Dolly, dear, we must hurry home and get cleaned up, 'cause you know we're going to the park—we're going to have a nice long ride and a good time." Thus lisped little Jenny Ross, aged 4, to her dolly as she played in the street in front of her home in Chicago Heights. But Jenny did not get to the park. Just as she started to cross the street to her home, she was run down by a wagon and died soon afterward.

JAPS WANT OUR IDEAS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "There is absolutely in Japan but the friendliest feeling for the United States. War talk is silly," declared Kametaro Hayashida, special representative of the Mikado, and chief secretary of the Japanese house of Parliament, at the Auditorium Annex Hotel. He reached Chicago today from San Francisco, coming direct from Tokio at the command of the Mikado to confer with architects of Chicago and other cities regarding the erection of buildings to cost $12,000,000. He said that the Japanese Diet had appropriated $12,000,000 for the erection of a home for the Parliament and that the Mikado wanted American workmanship and American ideas for the building of the palace.

DOESN'T KNOW WIFE'S AGE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Capt. John Finely Baker has been married sixty years and does not know how old his wife is. He owes much of his happiness during that long period, he believes, to his forbearance in refraining from asking her the displeasing question. He owns to 81 himself and secretly ventures to guess she is just about his age. They have three sons, a daughter and seven grandchildren living.

PRAY FOR DROWNED BOY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CINCINNATI, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A curious scene was enacted at the foot of Hill street today by a woman, who commands respect for her calm belief in supernatural power in her attempt to rescue the body of Robert De Rose, a white boy, about 15, who was drowned in the river. She knelt on the river bank opposite where young De Rose went down to his death, and prayed for the stream to give up its dead.

WOMAN'S FATAL LEAP.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MADISON (Wis.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Nathaniel B. Treat of Monroe, Wis., wife of Capt. Treat, a widely-known State politician, capitalist and banker, jumped from a runaway hack while out driving with her husband on the State university grounds today and was so badly injured that she died an hour later at the city hospital.

FIRST TIME IN LOS ANGELES TONIGHT

THE ROSE OF THE RANCHO

This is the play that packed the New York Belasco Theater for two continuous years—it is going to jam the Belasco Theater in Los Angeles as it has never before been crowded, and there will surely be thousands turned away because they cannot buy tickets—because they waited until it was too late to see this great performance.

THE ROSE OF THE RANCHO HAS NEVER BEEN PLAYED AT LESS THAN THE REGULAR BROADWAY TWO DOLLAR SCHEDULE OF PRICES. THIS WEEK, AT THE BELASCO THE PRODUCTION WILL BE AN EXACT DUPLICATE OF THE BIG NEW YORK PRESENTATION. NOTHING LIKE IT HAS EVER BEEN ATTEMPTED IN THIS OR ANY OTHER CITY BY A STOCK COMPANY.

JANE GREY, the new Belasco leading lady, will make her first appearance tonight in "THE ROSE OF THE RANCHO," in the part created in New York by Frances Starr.

"THE ROSE OF THE RANCHO" IS GOING TO BE THE BIGGEST THEATRICAL SENSATION THAT HAS BEEN KNOWN IN MANY A DAY. NO PRODUCTION THAT HAS EVER BEEN OFFERED AT THE BELASCO CAN APPROACH IT IN MAGNIFICENCE AND ELABORATENESS.

Notwithstanding the enormous expense, the regular Belasco prices will prevail. Every night, 25c to 75c. Matinees Thursday and Saturday, 25c to 50c.

SAYS ENGINEER IS TO BLAME

Committee Charges Him With Oakland Wreck.

Alleges He Ignored Signal. He Is Arrested.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Engineer Everett J. Barry, of the Santa Cruz train which was wrecked in last night's fatal collision at First and Webster streets, Oakland, was arrested today on a charge of manslaughter.

This action was taken by Chief of Police Wilson of Oakland, after a committee of high Southern Pacific officials, police and city officials and prominent business men had conducted a thorough investigation of the accident, and reached the conclusion that the main line engineer was to blame for the catastrophe.

The investigation was a new departure in the history of railroading on the coast, as in the past such inquiries have been confined to the railroad officials alone. On this occasion public officers and business men had an equal share in the proceedings along with representatives of the Southern Pacific.

The committee met at 10 o'clock at the offices of the company at the Oakland pier, and there listened to the testimony of the members of the train crews, Towerman McCurdy and others who could give authentic information. The committee was then conveyed to the scene of the wreck, and, the tracks having been cleared during the night, the main line and local trains were placed in positions for illustration. The towerman was ordered to drop the proper signal lights, throw the derailing switch, and lower the warning gates at the railroad crossing. The details of the interlocking system were explained, and the members of the committee were given an opportunity to see what had occurred and what precautions had been taken to prevent such accidents.

Another meeting was held, and the committee exonerated Towerman McCurdy, Engineer Marks of the Alameda local, and placed the responsibility on Engineer Barry. It was held that Barry was at fault in that he was running at too high a rate of speed, and in that he did not observe the signal that was standing against him, and which was protecting the use of the crossing by the other train.

Barry feels deeply the accusation, and says it is the first time in a career of 13 years of railroading that fault has been found with him. He does not hold himself altogether blameable, but says he was placed on a run the peculiarities of which he had not mastered before he was given the responsibility of taking trains over it without an experienced guide.

Barry also claims there has been much misunderstanding about the double system of semaphores, and in his case it was impossible for him to see the second semaphore in time to avoid the collision. He added that newly oiled tracks made his wheels slippery and prevented the prompt application of the brakes.

There have been no further deaths as a result of the wreck, and the injured are reported to be getting along well.

TO HAVE WIRELESS SYSTEM.

Apparatuses to Be Installed in Two Ships Engaged in Seattle Alaska Trade.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] As a direct outcome of the series of misadventures met by the same fleet this season, the steamships Yucatan and Victoria are to have wireless telegraph apparatuses installed at once.

The Nome ships this year were out of touch with the world for days, and anxious friends in the States besieged the offices of the companies to ascertain what had become of those on board. As day by day the steamship officials were obliged to repeat that no word had come as to the safety of the ships, the scenes in the offices were occasionally heartrending.

The companies were charged many times with concealing a disaster. Had the ships been equipped with wireless plants, their whereabouts could have been ascertained at any time, and all the while they were delayed in the ice they were within easy communication radius of Nome.

INVADES FORBIDDEN LAND.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Taking advantage of Sunday, when legal proceedings could not be brought to stop work, the Oregon Electric Company today invaded land on which it had vainly tried to assert a right of way, and by superior force of numbers threw its track across a broad field twelve miles west of Portland.

Louis Reghitto and a force of farmers tried to prevent the laying of the tracks but were overwhelmed. In the struggle Mrs. Reghitto, wife of the owner, had her arm broken by the hands of employés.

The high rail fence had been built across the land, and when the railroad employés sought to tear it down the owner and his employés ranged themselves behind it. Mrs. Reghitto was one of these, leaning against the fence, and was injured when they were hemmed down with sledges. As she is in delicate health her injuries are serious.

AMATEUR'S FAST MILE.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—The semi-final riding of W. G. Collins in the bicycle races at Tanforan track, the feature of the events today which concluded the two day's meet held under the auspices of the San Francisco dealers.

The five miles open event Collins won from Lorenzen, and in this race the winner covered a mile in one minute and a fifth of a second, which is the best mile on record for an American amateur motorcyclist.

Again in the ten mile handicap race, Lorenzen, the champion professional from Fresno, tried to break his own two miles record of 2:01 1-5, but failed by a fifth of a second. He covered five miles in 5m. 5s., and gave a great exhibition of fast riding.

Another feature event was a two mile exhibition by the Comet automobile, which made two miles in 2m. 12s.

COLLISION.

SAYS ENGINEER IS TO BLAME.

Committee Charges Him With Oakland Wreck.

Alleges He Ignored Signal; He Is Arrested.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Engineer Everett J. Barry, of the Santa Cruz train which was wrecked in last night's fatal collision at First and Webster streets, Oakland, was arrested today on a charge of manslaughter.

This action was taken by Chief of Police Wilson of Oakland, after a committee of high Southern Pacific officials, police and city officials and prominent business men had conducted a thorough investigation of the accident, and reached the conclusion that the main line engineer was to blame for the catastrophe.

The investigation was a new departure in the history of railroading on the coast, as in the past such inquiries have been confined to the railroad officials alone. On this occasion public officers and business men had an equal share in the proceedings along with representatives of the Southern Pacific.

The committee met at 10 o'clock at the office of the company at the Oakland pier, and there listened to the testimony of the members of the train crews, Towerman McCurdy and others who could give authentic information. The committee was then conveyed to the scene of the wreck, and, the tracks having been cleared during the night, the main line and local trains were placed in positions for illustration. The towerman was ordered to drop the proper signal lights, throw the derailing switch, and lower the warning gates at the railroad crossing. The details of the interlocking system were explained, and the members of the committee were given an opportunity to see what had occurred and what precautions had been taken to prevent such accidents.

Another meeting was held, and the committee exonerated Towerman McCurdy, Engineer Marks of the Alameda local, and placed the responsibility on Engineer Barry. It was held that Barry was at fault in that he was running at too high a rate of speed, and in that he did not observe the signal that was standing against him, and which was protecting the use of the crossing by the other train.

Barry feels deeply the accusation, and says it is the first time in a career of 13 years of railroading that fault has been found with him. He does not hold himself altogether blameable, but says he was placed on a run the peculiarities of which he had not mastered before he was given the responsibility of taking trains over it without an experienced guide.

Barry also claims there has been much misunderstanding about the double system of semaphores, and in his case it was impossible for him to see the second semaphore in time to avoid the collision. He added that newly oiled tracks made his wheels slippery and prevented the prompt application of the brakes.

There have been no further deaths as a result of the wreck, and the injured are reported to be getting along well.

TO HAVE WIRELESS SYSTEM.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] As a direct outcome of the series of misadventures met by the Nome fleet this season, the steamships Senator and Victoria are to have wireless telegraph apparatuses installed at once.

The Nome ships this year were out of touch with the world for days, and anxious friends in the States besieged the offices of the companies to ascertain what had become of those on board. As day by day the steamship officials were obliged to repeat that no word had come as to the safety of the boat, the scenes in the offices were occasionally heartrending.

The companies were charged many times with concealing a disaster. Had the ships been equipped with wireless plants, their whereabouts could have been ascertained at any time, and all the while they were delayed in the ice they were within easy communication radius of Nome.

INVADES FORBIDDEN LAND.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Taking advantage of Sunday, when legal proceedings could not be brought to stop work, the Oregon Trunk Company today invaded land which it had vainly tried to secure right of way, and by superior force of numbers threw its track across a broad field twelve miles west of Portland.

Mike Reghitto and a force of farm hands tried to prevent the laying of the tracks but were overwhelmed. In the struggle Mrs. Reghitto, wife of the owner, had her arm broken by the railroad employés.

A high rail fence had been built around the land, and when the railroad employés sought to tear it down Reghitto and his employés ranged themselves behind it. Mrs. Reghitto was one of these, leaning against the fence and was injured when they were driven down with sledges. As she is in delicate health her injuries are serious.

AMATEUR'S FAST MILE.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—The sensational riding of W. G. Collins in the bicycle races at Tanforan track, the feature of the events today which concluded the two day's meet under the auspices of the San Mateo dealers.

The five miles open event Collins won from Lorenzen, and in this race he covered a mile in one minute and a fifth of a second, which is the best mile on record for an American amateur motorcyclist.

In the ten mile handicap race, Lorenzen, the champion professional from Fresno, tried to break his own five miles record of 2:01 1-5, but failed by a fifth of a second. He covered five miles in 5m. 5s., and gave an exhibition of fast riding.

The feature event was a two mile exhibition by the Comet automobile which made two miles in 2m. 12s.

SAVED FROM FIERY DEATH.

Little Portland Girl Rescued from Burning Cottage by Heroic Act of Aged Neighbor.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Pretty Dorothy Woods, 6 years old, was saved from death in her burning home this morning by the bravery of Owen Regan, a neighbor, aged 70, who risked his life to save the child.

The little girl lived with her mother in a small frame cottage. After Mrs. Wood had gone to church, the child started a fire in the kitchen stove, and dropped a burning match on the matting-covered floor. The matting caught fire, and in a few moments the dwelling was in flames.

Regan, who lives next door, heard the girl's screams, and broke down the front door. The child was surrounded by flames in the kitchen, and her rescuer dashed through to the single door of the kitchen, took the frightened girl in his arms, and carried her to safety.

EARTHQUAKE OPENS SPRINGS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RENO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An earthquake was felt in Virginia City, early this morning. It lasted about six seconds and its course was from east to west, directly in line with Steamboat Springs, which are about ten miles from the Comstock.

As a result these springs have been in eruption throughout today, sending up vast clouds of steam and boiling water which, during the afternoon, could be plainly seen in Reno.

Not since the earthquake of 1906 has such a spectacle been witnessed. The spouting continues at regular intervals and is accompanied by a rumbling noise. This same condition prevailed for a week after the earthquake of two years ago. It is not causing any alarm. The earthquake was not felt in Reno.

SLOPE BRIEFS.

Mexican Family Burned Out.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) July 5.—At 2 o'clock this morning, a large frame residence occupied by a Mexican family was destroyed by fire of unknown origin, the man escaping clad in his underclothes and one hand badly burned. A neighbor's family of Americans was scorched out, and one woman narrowly escaped. Policeman William Ferris, in going to her assistance, received a slight shock from a fallen wire, and only by chance escaped electrocution.

Arizona Celebrity Dies.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) July 5.—Guillermo Vargas, a Digger Indian, who came to Arizona in the sixties, died here today at an advanced age. He was a prospector and a historical character. He once owned valuable placer ground, which he was supposed to have secured by murdering the former Mexican owner, though the fact could never be proved.

Sacramento Shops Reopen.

SACRAMENTO, July 5.—The Southern Pacific shops here will reopen tomorrow with 75 per cent. of the force employed at the time of the shut-down on June 26. The 1700 men who return will be given six days' work a week instead of five, as before the shut-down.

Redwood Retreat Hotel Burns.

SAN JOSE, July 5.—The hotel at Redwood Retreat, ten miles northeast of Gilroy, in the Santa Cruz Mountains, burned to the ground early this morning. Loss about $10,000, partly insured. The place was famous throughout California as a vacation resort for teachers.

Saginaw Proceeds Northward.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—With her port quarter rail carried away, the steam lumber schooner Saginaw, Capt. Stream, which collided with the three-masted schooner Zampa, in a dense fog off San Pedro on Friday night, came into port today, and after taking fuel at the foot of Second street, departed for the north. The Saginaw received damages estimated at $100, while those of the Zampa will come to about $1000.

ROPED IN.

MUST CONFESS THEIR CUPIDITY.

VICTIMS OF RHODUS BROTHERS MUST TELL GRAND JURY.

Many of Them Are Bankers, Brokers, Lawyers and Hard-Headed Business Men—Dislike to Divulge How They Were Duped, But District Attorney Is Inexorable.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Prominent bankers, brokers, lawyers, business men and educators, of whom many have sorrowfully admitted their credulity in connection with the enterprises of Rhodus Brothers, will tell their tales to the Federal grand jury tomorrow.

Financial experts and hard-headed business men who voluntarily or unwittingly lent their names and prestige to the exploitation of Rhodus Brothers' bubbles have been backward in announcing their connection with the corporations since the Federal grand jury, courts and receiver have taken them in hand.

Many of them have protested against being brought before the grand jury and forced to admit that their business acumen had been faulty at least once, but Dist.-Atty. Sims has declared their evidence essential to his campaign against alleged fraudulent stock-selling corporations of which the Rhodus Brothers companies are the first to be investigated.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES HELD.

Rites of Episcopal Church Over Remains of Rear-Admiral Thomas Observed at Del Monte.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DEL MONTE, July 5.—The rites of the Episcopal church funeral service over the remains of Rear-Admiral Charles M. Thomas, retired, who died here Friday night, were held today.

There were many naval and army officers present to pay their respects to the departed chief, and Del Monte chapel was buried in floral pieces sent from San Francisco and other points.

Tomorrow morning the body will be shipped East for interment. The widow, son and daughter will accompany it.

AT NEW YORK HOTELS.

NEW YORK, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] At the Manhattan, Miss M. M. Slocum; Continental, O. Charlton; Victoria, W. H. Welsh; Park Avenue, W. G. Bradshaw; Wolcott, W. B. Hutt, M. G. Cooper; Westminster, D. Mackinon, San Diego.

TURNS TURTLE.

CAUGHT UNDER FALLING AUTO

Mrs. O. Scribner of San Francisco Crushed to Death.

Her Son Teddy Suffers Fracture of Leg.

Machine Goes Over Grade Near Santa Cruz.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SANTA CRUZ, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Late this afternoon a big automobile in which O. Scribner, manager of the Associated Oil companies of San Francisco, with his wife, two little sons and two young ladies were on their way to the State Redwood Park, became unmanageable on a sharp curve and went over the grade, turning over several times.

Mrs. Scribner was crushed to death beneath the heavy machine, and her son, Teddy, had his leg fractured. All the other members were severely bruised but escaped serious injury.

The party left Santa Cruz shortly after 2 o'clock, and enjoyed a run through San Lorenzo Valley to Boulder Creek. On leaving Boulder they took the wrong road and upon inquiry were directed to continue through a cut-off. The chauffeur made a sharp turn to avoid striking a large rock in the middle of the roadway, and was unable to turn again. The machine turned completely over and rolled down the sharp grade.

Scribner does not hold the chauffeur to blame.

MURDERER FOR PRESIDENT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, July 5.—Candidates for President and Vice-President of the United States were named, and a platform was adopted by the national convention of the Socialist Labor party here today. The ticket named is:

For President—Martin R. Preston of Nevada.

For Vice-President—Donald Munroe of Virginia.

The nomination of Preston for President was unanimous. The candidate was placed in nomination by Daniel de Leon, who characterized the man he was naming as "an honest workingman, not a professional workingman," and added:

"The name of that man is Martin R. Preston and he is now in jail at Goldfield, Nev. Preston is in jail today for conduct that is honorable and which no workingman should be ashamed of."

De Leon explained that Preston had been sentenced to twenty-five years' imprisonment for shooting a restaurant keeper in Goldfield three years ago during a strike. Preston, De Leon asserted, had acted as the protector of defenseless girls and by so doing his action enraged a restaurant keeper named Silver. Silver was shot by Preston while threatening to kill the latter.

The platform is identical with one adopted by the party four years ago and declares for the substitution of the coöperative commonwealth "for the present state of plantless production, industrial war and social disorder."

MEXICAN RIOTERS ARRESTED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

EL PASO (Tex.) July 5.—Forty alleged Mexican revolutionists were arrested last night three miles southwest of Neuvas Casas Grandes, by armed Mexicans, and escorted to the Carcel at the town, where they are held.

A number of the representatives of the band attempted to purchase ammunition for rifles and pistols from the hardware store of the Morgans in Casas Grandes, and they were arrested by a force headed by the hardware merchant, their cart brought for carrying out ammunition being confiscated.

Armed Mormons overtook the band from which prospective purchasers had been sent out and rounded up forty Mexicans, all surrendering without firing a shot.

Mexican Consul Loemeil has been advised of the capture.

PRAY IN VAIN FOR RAIN.

BARI (Italy) July 5.—The long drought, with intense heat, reaching at times 90 or more degrees, is causing disastrous effects throughout the Apulia region. In the hope of receiving rain through divine intercession, it was decided to carry in procession through the town the centennial image representing Calvary. Thirty thousand of the faithful participated in the celebration which was attended by dramatic ceremonies but no rain followed.

COUNTS IN FATAL DUEL.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 5.—Count Sumarkoff-Elston, eldest son of Prince Yussupoff, was killed by Count Manteuffel, an officer of the Fourth Guards, in a duel with pistols today, because of a family quarrel.

ANARCHY SPREADING.

TABRIZ (Persia) July 5.—During the last week's fighting in this city 350 men were killed and 700 were wounded. The horsemen under Rachin Kahn, who are fighting on the side of the Shah, continue their pillaging, and anarchy is spreading throughout the whole of Northern Persia.

New Use for the Auto.

An autocar screwdriver has been designed for the purpose of making it possible for railroads to use screw-spikes in track construction, a method of spiking rails hitherto impractical because of the labor and expense of boring holes and setting the screws by hand. The machine is driven by a two-cylinder, twelve-horsepower gasoline engine and runs at a speed of from five to forty miles an hour.

A Business Head.

An expert golfer had the misfortune to play a particularly vigorous stroke at the moment that a seedy wayfarer skulked across the edge of the course. The ball struck the trespasser and rendered him briefly insensible. When he recovered, a $5 bill was pressed into his hand by the regretful golfer.

"Thanky, sir," said the injured man, after a kindling glance at the money. "An' when will you be playin' again, sir?"—[Lippincott's Magazine.

ATLANTIC FLEET.

BATTLESHIPS ARE READY.

Second Half of Big Cruise Begins Tomorrow.

Vessels in Line Await Only Orders to Start.

Fleet Due in Hampton Roads Late in February.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Fresh from dry docks, with bunkers full of coal and magazines filled with ammunition, freshly painted and looking as spick and span as the day they left Hampton Roads, headed for the Pacific, the sixteen battleships of the Atlantic fleet are riding at anchor tonight in the harbor ready to sail next Tuesday on the second half of the long cruise around the world.

At 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, two months and a day after it entered the portals of the Golden Gate at the end of a 13,000-mile voyage, the flower of the American navy, headed by the flagship Connecticut, will steam out of the harbor of San Francisco under the command of Rear-Admiral C. S. Sperry, the third commander-in-chief since the fleet sailed from Hampton Roads.

The fleet will reach Honolulu on July 16, remain a week and then proceed to the Antipodes. Elaborate preparations for its entertainment have been made at Auckland, Sydney and Melbourne. The fleet will reach Manila, after a visit to Japanese ports, about October 1. Before returning to Hampton Roads the latter part of February, fourteen months after starting from the Atlantic, the battleships will have sailed nearly all the seas on the globe and completed the most remarkable cruise in naval history.

The reassembling of the fleet began more than a week ago, and the Kearsarge which finished loading ammunition at Mare Island navy yard yesterday, was the last to drop anchor in her column in Man-of-War Row last night.

The fleet, according to Admiral Sperry, is in better shape than when it left Hampton Roads last December. The fire-control system, which was only complete on a few of the ships, is now thoroughly installed on each one.

The places of the Alabama and Maine, which came around South America with the fleet and which sailed from here June 8, homeward bound, as a special service squadron, have been taken by the battleships Wisconsin and Nebraska.

Commodore H. Morrell of the Wisconsin, has been retired, and Commander F. C. Beatty of the cruiser Charleston, has been assigned to the command of that ship. The Charleston is at Bremerton, and Commander Beatty is expected to arrive tomorrow to assume his new duties.

Today was the last day that the public was admitted on board the warships. Tomorrow the visitors will be restricted to relatives and friends of officers.

Quality rather than quantity is the motto of the Pacific Electric Grill. (Huntington Depot Waiting Room.) new management. Daily commercial lunch 11 to 2 p.m., 25c. John Bernhard, manager; formerly Palace restaurant and Belasco Theater buffet.

WOMAN MURDERS MAN ON CROWDED STREET.

Mrs. Margaret Finn Slays J. E. Mahaffey, Whom She Expected to Wed, but Who Sought Postponement of Their Marriage.

IN A sensational encounter on the crowded sidewalk at Seventh street and Broadway at 8 o'clock last night, Mrs. Margaret Finn, a widow, shot and almost instantly killed J. E. Mahaffey, who, she declares, had broken his promise to marry her. The southwest corner of the two thoroughfares was the scene of the murder, which followed an attempt of the woman's brother to effect a reconciliation between the pair.

Mahaffey lurched forward when the first shot was fired and uttered a cry. A moment later the second bullet entered his back and he fell at the feet of Miss Marie March and Miss Margaret McGrath, who were standing at the entrance of the Nance drug store.

Figures in Tragedy.
Woman who fired fatal shots yesterday, and her victim who, she said, had endeavored to break his promise to marry her.

Before Mrs. Finn could fire the third shot, her brother, J. G. Lang, rushed forward and disarmed her. She collapsed and Lang carried her into the drug store, telephoning for an ambulance and notifying the police.

A score of persons were standing at the corner at the time. Immediately after the shooting a morbid crowd gathered and soon 2000 persons blocked street car traffic in their efforts to get a glimpse of the man lying on the sidewalk in a pool of blood.

When detectives took Mrs. Finn out the rear entrance of the drug store, the crowd made a rush to see her. After she had been placed on a car it was necessary for patrolmen to clear the streets. The car on which Mrs. Finn was conveyed to the Police Station was packed to the guards with gaping spectators.

WANTED POSTPONEMENT.

A few minutes before the shooting, Mahaffey, a paper-hanger, who lived at No. 241 West Forty-seventh street, called to see Mrs. Finn, who conducts a rooming-house at No. 763½ South Broadway.

Mahaffey went to ask her once more to postpone indefinitely their marriage, which had been set for next March.

It is stated that Mahaffey told the woman he intended to leave the city, but would return within a few months. On account of a shortage of money, he is reported to have said that he did not know whether they could be married in March, and that the date better be changed.

A quarrel followed, and Mahaffey left the rooming-house. Lang was in the hall and overheard the dispute between his sister and the paper hanger. He asked Mahaffey what the trouble was. Together the two men descended the stairs, Lang asking Mahaffey to do the right thing by the woman.

The men were standing near the curbstone on Seventh street, when Mrs. Finn slipped out on the street. She approached them cautiously. Mahaffey was standing with his back toward her, and Lang was standing within two feet of him.

Quickly Mrs. Finn walked up within ten feet of Mahaffey and shot him; then fired again.

HER LIFE OF TROUBLE.

Mrs. Finn is a frail woman, 30 years old, and has had a great deal of trouble in her life. She has been married twice, and both of her husbands met with tragic deaths. Her last husband, a railroader, was killed in an accident in the Southern Pacific yards about two years ago, leaving her destitute with three children. About ten years ago her first husband, also a railroad man, was killed in an accident.

A year ago last January Mrs. Finn met Mahaffey's brother. They kept company for some time, and then Mahaffey came here from Indiana, and was introduced to Mrs. Finn. She became infatuated with Mahaffey and renounced his brother.

Mahaffey and Mrs. Finn became engaged last January, and were to be married in the following March, on his birthday. Then it was postponed until May 22, which was her birthday. Mahaffey then persuaded Mrs. Finn to postpone their marriage until next March. When he did this she accused him of turning against her, and it is said, threatened him if he deserted.

When Mahaffey went to see Mrs. Finn last night he told her of his desire for an indefinite postponement. Mrs. Finn had been ill all day and had taken some morphine for a severe headache. When she was taken to the Police Station she appeared to be still under the effect of the drug.

DIDN'T MEAN TO KILL.

"I didn't mean to kill him," she said, weeping bitterly, when she was told of Mahaffey's death. "It is all a mystery to me what happened. My head is bursting with pain and I remember little of the quarrel we had.

"When he came to see me he told me we would have to postpone our marriage. He gave me no apparent reason. Time and again he has shattered our plans and broken his promises to me. I loved him dearly and I couldn't stand it any longer. Whatever happens to me, don't let my folks know it."

Mahaffey's body was taken to Pierce Bros.' morgue, where an inquest will be held. Both bullets entered his back, between the shoulder blades, and penetrated his lungs.

Mahaffey was handsome and well dressed. He was 30 years old and a skilled decorator and paper hanger. His brother, R. E. Mahaffey, is manager of the Monarch restaurant.

Mrs. Finn has two brothers in Los Angeles. J. G. Lang, who witnessed the shooting, lives at No. 2440 West Pico street. Her other brother, C. E. Lang, is a carpenter, his home being on East Washington street.

HIS DEATH MYSTERIOUS.

PECULIAR FEATURES ATTEND RICH MAN'S PASSING.

Left Note That Friends and Enemies Killed Him—Strain on His Fortune Had Been Tremendous. Millionaire Bond's Daughter Said to Live Here.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SWAMPSCOTT (Mass.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The sudden death of Charles H. Bond, Boston's multi-millionaire philanthropist, real estate owner and cigar manufacturer, who was found dead in the bathtub at Peace Haven, his handsome summer home here, Friday, has caused considerable gossip among society folk along North Shore, and is puzzling both the authorities and many of Mr. Bond's intimate friends.

The news of his mysterious death was so carefully concealed that it did not become publicly known until yesterday, when Medical Examiner Joseph G. Pinkham filed a death certificate. A note found in Mr. Bond's bedroom sheds but little light on the case. It reads:

"I've been killed by my friends and enemies; it is more than I can bear; I can't stand it no longer; my heart is broken. I leave everything to my wife.

"CHARLES H. BOND."

The sudden and mysterious death followed close upon the heels of immense real estate ventures by Bond, which Boston business men declare were more than even his immense fortune could stand. The first signs of an impending crisis in Mr. Bond's affairs came last month, when he placed all his extensive property in the hands of trustees.

He is survived by his widow, three daughters—Mrs. Pomeroy Trood of Los Angeles, Cal., and Misses Mildred and Edith Bond—and two sons—Kenneth and Lawrence.

KILLS WITH SHOTGUN.

Thermal Negro Followed by Posse and Found in Mesquite Thicket. Trouble Over Woman.

THERMAL, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Bob Nash, a negro, shot and instantly killed José Martinez early last evening. "Nigger Bob," as he is known, came back from Los Angeles Saturday, after celebrating the Fourth not wisely. He went to the camp of Martinez and began to quarrel with him over his wife. About 8 o'clock Nash left the camp, but in a short time returned, armed with a sawed-off shotgun.

He caught Martinez unawares, and shot him in the back. Early this morning a posse was formed and tracked the negro from his tent to a ranch, about one and a half miles from town, where he had secured his breakfast and some provisions. After tracking him several miles farther, he was discovered in a mesquite thicket. The posse surrounded the thicket, and he surrendered.

The prisoner was taken to Riverside Sunday morning by deputy constables.

KILLED BY ROBBER.

TRIED TO SAVE SALOON'S CASH.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Two masked men entered the saloon of Tim Sullivan on Harrison street shortly after midnight last night and, covering the proprietor and John Farrell, the only other person in the place, began to clean out the cash register.

Farrell sprang at the man, who had covered him, and was shot through the head. He is not expected to recover. The hold-up men escaped. Farrell died tonight at the Emergency Hospital.

SAFES CRACKED AT BANNING.

Burglars Blow Open Strong Boxes in Expos Station and Store But Get Nothing.

BANNING, July 5.—Burglars cracked the safes in the Southern Pacific station, and in Hathaway's store last night, and made their escape, leaving no clew. It chanced that no money had been left in either strong box, so the supposed professionals got nothing for their labors.

A number of detectives are now here, and have made a thorough examination of the buildings, and the approaches to them, but have found nothing which could lead to the discovery of the criminals.

ROBBERY ALLEGED.

R. Lopez and S. Belarde were arrested, yesterday, on the charge of robbing Juan Garcia of $10 in a restaurant at No. 616 San Fernando street. Garcia says that he was taken into a back room and overpowered. He followed his assailants when they left the place and pointed them out to a patrolman.

HALL DIES OF INJURY.

Young Society Swell of Reno Said to Have Confessed to Having Injured Him.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RENO (Nev.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Because of the carnival celebration in Reno Friday night, Edward L. Hall died late yesterday afternoon, and E. E. Fontaine, a well-known young society man of this city, was placed under arrest on a charge of murder.

Hall died from the effects of a blow alleged to have been struck by Fontaine. Fontaine was with a young woman at the time, and resented Hall's throwing confetti on her. In the excitement that followed the fight Fontaine escaped. No one seemed to know his identity. The arrest was made as a result of remarks made by Fontaine since the tragedy.

It is understood he has made a confession to the State police officials, but they refuse to say whether or not it is sufficient to warrant a conviction for murder.

LEADERS ARE GATHERING.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

HOT SPRINGS (Va.) July 5.—Senator Murray Crane and Representative Lawrence of Massachusetts arrived here today, and are the vanguard of a coterie of political leaders who will confer with William H. Taft, the Republican nominee for the Presidency, on political matters, and especially on the question of the selection of a National Committee chairman and treasurer before the committee meeting next Wednesday.

Mr. Taft stated today that Senator Beveridge and Representative McKinley of Illinois will be here tomorrow, and Senator Hemenway and Representative Watson of Indiana on Wednesday.

None of these leaders of the party is a member of the Executive Committee, so their suggestions and advice will be given before the meeting of the subcommittee. The action of Mr. Taft in calling upon prominent Republicans to confer with him is in line with his statement today to the effect that he would bring in many leaders of the party for conferences from time to time.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Although the great Realization stakes is scheduled to be run tomorrow, to mark the closing at the Sheepshead Bay track, the topic of discussion today in turf circles was not the historic race. Instead, arguments and counter arguments were advanced as to the exact status of the betting situation.

That there was betting, and plenty of it, on Saturday, was clear to all. On the other hand, it was practically impossible to see any money passed. Few police were on hand and these seemed to devote their efforts to breaking up groups which collected around men formerly close in the ring.

Inasmuch as the gate receipts were far above the amount of purses given, the track made money on the day. Moreover, Ringmaster Cavanaugh has started the practice of selling "stationary" slips, containing jockey's names, scratches and similar information at the cost of $2 for each race, to men who were formerly recognized as bookmakers.

RUEF'S LAWYERS HAPPY.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—The attorneys for Abraham Ruef are confident that before tomorrow is over they will have the former boss out of the county jail upon bail, his appearance before the courts being guaranteed whenever he is wanted for trial by bonds to the amount of $1,500,000.

There remains but one stumbling block to be removed from the pathway to freedom, and that is the District Attorney's objection to the Ruef properties, now in the hands of Ruef's father and sister, being accepted as surety for the amount of $800,000, a cash valuation of $400,000.

Judge Murasky has already accepted $760,000 worth of sureties besides these.

FANATICS CAPTURE TOWN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

REGINA (Man.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Armed with Winchester rifles, Colt revolvers and Bowie knives, a horde of religious fanatics swooped down upon the town of Pierson, near the boundary line of Manitoba and North Dakota and, taking possession of the place, defied interference by the police by pointing their guns at the officers and threatening to fire. They are still in command of the town.

BISHOP POTTER BETTER.

COOPERSTOWN (N. Y.) July 5.—With each succeeding hour hope brightens for the recovery of Bishop Potter, who is seriously ill here from a complication of stomach and liver troubles. His physicians tonight believe his improved condition warrants a decided hope for a favorable outcome of the case.

NEGRO'S SHOT MAY BE FATAL.

Samuel Druckman Disobeyed Order, "Hands Up!"

Robber Flees With Pursuer Hot on His Trail.

Tragedy in Aliso-street Blacksmith Shop.

For disobedience of a highwayman's call of "Hands up!" Samuel Druckman is at the Receiving Hospital with a wound in his abdomen that the physicians fear will prove fatal.

The tragedy took place last night about 9 o'clock in Druckman's blacksmith shop, No. 420 Aliso street. Druckman had visited the shop to prepare material for an early start this morning on some important work. When he entered he left the door open, and lighted an incandescent lamp while he attended to his work.

He was suddenly startled by the appearance of a small, young negro, who approached him with a revolver in his hand, and who peremptorily ordered "Hands up!" Druckman had scarcely seen the negro when the startling demand was made.

Having $125 of hard-earned money in his pocket, which he did not want to lose, Druckman, instead of throwing up his hands, attempted to dodge and shouted for help. The next instant there was a flash and a report, and Druckman fell to the floor with a wound in the right side of his abdomen.

NEGRO FLEES.

The negro turned and ran from the shop. But before he had entered, James Conners, who lives on North Myers street, saw him. The negro came from the west, and turned suddenly into the shop, and this act, Conners says, made him suspicious. Conners waited developments and soon heard the cry for help and heard the shot.

When the negro ran out and away to the east Conners started in pursuit. He chased the negro two blocks east of the shop, where the negro ran into a yard and out the rear of it and eluded Conners's pursuit.

The help that Druckman's shout and the revolver shot had aroused rushed to the shop, only to find him writhing in pain on the floor, and bleeding profusely from his wound. The police were called promptly, and Druckman was removed to the Receiving Hospital, where Drs. Wiley, Garrett and Bonynge attended him. Their examination disclosed that the intestines had been penetrated, and that an internal hemorrhage was in progress. An operation was deemed necessary at once, if the wounded man was to have a chance for life. Druckman was placed under an anesthetic and the operation performed.

The operation was successful in stopping Druckman's hemorrhages, but the patient had suffered the loss of so much blood that a large saline injection was necessary to stimulate his heart action. He seemed to be resting easily, being of good constitution, but the dangerous nature of the wound make the physicians regard his recovery as improbable.

The wounded man is married and lives with his family, a wife and two children, at No. 741 South Olive street. He is 28 years old and is known as an industrious man.

DESCRIBES THE NEGRO.

Failing in his pursuit of the negro, Conners went to the detective bureau, where he gave a description of the highwayman. He said the negro was young, very dark, wore striped brown clothing, a soft black hat, white shirt and was without a collar. He was about 5 feet 6 inches in height.

When this description was given, which coincided with that Druckman was able to give, the detectives recognized it, in general, as that of one of the three negroes who held up Frank Moore and John Hill, also negroes, at Jackson and Alameda streets, Friday night about 10:30 o'clock. The three negroes attacked the two and the negro described cut both Moore and Hill in their faces. Nothing was taken by the trio, however, and they fled after the cutting.

The negroes in the Friday night hold-up were also young, one of them being very dark, about 6 feet in height and the other, a small youth of 20 years, so light in complexion that it is thought he may be a white man.

A WOUNDED HAND.

The description of Druckman's assailant also coincides in general with that of the negro who attacked William Ory on the Macy-street bridge about a week ago. He pointed a revolver at Ory and ordered "Hands up!" but Ory was expecting attack and had a knife open. With it he struck the negro on the hand cutting it and causing him to drop the revolver and run.

The police think the negro who shot Druckman is one of the three and expect to arrest him soon.

CROSSED WIRES BLAMED.

Crossed electric wires, it is believed, caused a fire in the residence of W. E. Smuther of No. 695 West Vernon avenue early this morning, that resulted in $500 loss. The blaze started in the attic of the building and destroyed the roof and the second story. The house was owned by E. Crigg and was insured.

BRAZILIANS ARE WRATHY.

Object to Our Scrutiny of Their Naval Programme.

Say They Will Sell Ships If They Want to.

Are Planning Discriminating Tariff Against Us.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Because, they say, the United States is interfering wantonly in the carrying out of her naval plans, Brazil, through her diplomatic agents here, is planning a sweeping system of retaliation, whereby the 30 per cent. preferential tariff to Americans in Brazil will be abolished and Brazilian war craft disposed of in any way which the Brazilian government sees fit.

"The government will be begun by concerted agitation in the Brazilian newspapers," a Brazilian diplomat said to a United States naval officer. "We consider it our right to do what we please with our ships. It is nobody's business. There is no reason why the United States should closely supervise our naval programme and ferret out each informal agreement which may or may not have been reached."

Proof that Brazil had already sold one torpedo boat to Japan prompted these drastic statements. After Brazil denied that any sale whatever had been made, it was learned in London that one ship had already been sold, and that there was danger of a future sale. Confronted with these proofs, Brazil was unable to offer an explanation, and then announced that Brazil's naval programme or the future sale of her ships was nobody's business but Brazil's.

Commodities Sold for More Last October Than for Any Time in Ten Years.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In October of last year the cost of living in this country reached the highest point, judged by the wholesale prices of 258 staple commodities.

Since then there has been a recession. Notwithstanding the decline of prices after the panic, the cost for the whole of 1907 was 5.7 per cent. higher than the preceding year and 44.4 per cent. higher than for 1897, the year of lowest prices since the keeping of such statistics began in 1890. It was 29.5 per cent. higher than the average for the ten-year period, 1890-99 inclusive.

The absolute high water mark was reached in October of 1907, when the average was 1.2 per cent. higher than the average for the whole twelve months, and 2.3 per cent. higher than the average for December, 1906, which was the month of highest average for the year preceding the panic.

These interesting figures are set forth in the annual report of the Bureau of Labor of the Department of Commerce and Labor just issued. That bureau has been keeping statistics on the cost of living for eighteen years, beginning with 1890.

THREE HOUSES IN BIG BLAZE.

EXPLOSION STARTS FIRE IN A NEGRO CLUBHOUSE.

Police Think a Bomb May Be Responsible for Destruction—Early Morning Conflagration Is a Puzzle, Though Loss Is Comparatively Little—Firemen Make Brave Fight.

An explosion, which aroused the neighborhood, followed by fire, destroyed three buildings and damaged another, about 2:15 o'clock yesterday morning at Ninth and Hawthorne streets. The Mutual Club, a two-story frame building at No. 1602 East Ninth, in which the explosion occurred, was shattered and the flames immediately spread to the blacksmith shop of Nick Rudelet at No. 1600 East Ninth street. A vacant house in the rear of the club also took fire and was consumed.

When the fire department arrived the three buildings were ablaze. R. E. Risco's house, which adjoins the club was endangered, and two streams of water were kept constantly on it to save it from destruction. Despite the efforts of the firemen the house was partially destroyed, the damage being estimated at $400.

The buildings were owned by Risco and he places his loss at $2000. None of the property was insured. The Mutual Club was conducted by negroes. About a month ago it was raided by the police and the proprietors were charged with keeping a "blind pig" and gambling. Rudelet, who runs the blacksmith shop, estimated his loss at $200.

The police investigated the explosion but were unable to determine the cause. It is believed, however, that it was caused by a bomb. Since the raid the club was supposedly closed until the case could be settled, but neighbors say that it has often been occupied at nights by some of the habitues.

one man were killed and only one man seriously hurt. It was not until late that the full horror of the accident developed.

CHEERFUL SUNDAY PARTY.

It was a cheerful little party that started from Los Angeles early yesterday morning to spend the day in the country with friends of the family, who own a ranch in Lynwood, about three miles beyond Watts, on the Santa Ana line. The party consisted of Peter Kuehner, a brewer, of No. 404 North Vignes street, his wife, Antonia Kuehner, and their three children, Alexia, Theodore and Elsie. Death overtook three of the five before the day was ended.

At the ranch of Joseph Oller, the party spent a happy day, and the eight children of the two families played games and had a splendid time. After supper there was a scurry to get the farm wagon out to take the Kuehners to the car line to catch the 7:40 car, at which time it was due at the Lynwood station on the way to Los Angeles.

Oller was to drive them in and at the last moment his own children cried out that they wanted to ride out as far as the car. They all piled into the wagon and it was a merry crowd which drove away from the ranch, calling farewells to the wife and mother left behind.

DEATH IN SPEED.

As the wagon approached the tracks the occupants saw the car coming down the line and Oller whipped up the horses to get on the right side of the track for his passengers to board the car. The car was close to the station, but it is evident that Oller thought it was going to stop there and deliberately drove in front of the car, which at this point runs at a speed of probably forty miles an hour.

But Wygal, the motorman, had no picion that the wagonload of people were intended passengers and it was only when the wagon drove in front of the swiftly moving car at the last minute that he realized the danger. Then he did everything a man could to avert the crash, but in vain.

THREE MORE HURT.

BUGGY STRUCK BY CAR.

While driving across the tracks at Fourth street and Central avenue about 11 o'clock last night, C. E. Shaw, his wife and seven-year-old child, who live near Huntington Park, were struck by outbound Washington-street car No. 236, which was going to the barns, and were seriously injured.

An ambulance was called, and they were taken home, where they were attended. Shaw was the most badly hurt. His back was wrenched and he suffered a slight concussion of the brain. Mrs. Shaw and the child were bruised and lacerated.

The buggy in which they were riding was demolished and the front trucks of the car left the rails. The horse escaped without injury, running several blocks before he was captured.

CLOTHING STORE BLAZE.

Firemen Find Oil and Shavings After Fire Which Is Menace to Natick House.

After extinguishing a blaze in Harry Klibonsky's clothing store at No. 107 South Main street, about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the firemen discovered a can of kerosene and a charred box of shavings. Sam Loeb, a clerk in the store, who left the building about half an hour before the fire broke out, was detained by the police, but later released when he made a statement. He says that the oil was being used by a painter who was working on the inside of the store. The police were unable to find Klibonsky yesterday and a further investigation will be made today. The loss on the stock was estimated at $50.

The store occupies part of the Natick Hotel building and the fire originated in the rear end of the room. It was discovered by R. M. Davies, who was standing in front of the place. He sent an alarm to the fire department and then broke in the door. The store was filled with smoke and the seat of the fire was discovered in the box which contained rubbish and shavings.

While Klibonsky has been having his store remodeled he was advertising a bankrupt sale of goods.

AUTO CAUSES DEATH.

Old Man Run Down Three Weeks Ago Succumbs to Injuries—Inquest Probable.

Without regaining his faculties since he was run down by an automobile three weeks ago, C. E. Ferris, 81 years old, died yesterday at his son's home at No. 974 Vermont avenue. His skull was fractured and his right leg broken. The accident took place within half a block of his son's house when the old man was returning from a grocery store. The body was taken to Pierce Bros.' morgue and it is probable that an inquest will be held.

Several witnesses of the accident say that S. Sundine of No. 2731 West Pico street, who admits that he was handling the car, was driving at the rate of about twenty miles and hour. When Mr. Ferris was hit, the machine, which belongs to W. N. Stole, skidded and ran into a delivery wagon in front of Moreland's grocery. The front wheel was broken and Sundine deserted the auto.

J. O. Smith of the Lyon, McKinney & Smith Furniture Company, who is a son-in-law of Mr. Ferris asked the police to investigate the case. Several days later Sundine was found and taken to the Police Station. He made a statement and was then released. He could not be found last night at his home and it is believed that he has gone to San Francisco.

Mr. Ferris had been a resident of Los Angeles for about twenty years. He came here from Omaha. He has a son, J. W. Ferris, and two daughters living in this city.

ROYAL DINNER TABLES.

Royalties Who Do not Fare Sumptuously Every Day—The King's Tastes Simple.

[Tit-Bits:] Some weeks ago a proposed dinner menu was submitted for the approval of the Princess of Wales. Her Royal Higness noticed that there were strawberries included in the dessert, and inquired the price. On being informed that they were a guinea a pound, she there and then gave the order that on no account were they to be served, remarking at the same time: "We can do very well without such luxuries until they get cheaper. I won't allow such prices to be paid." This incident illustrates the fact that royalty, when they dine privately, are very modest in their culinary requirements.

King Edward, who always entertains on a lavish scale, has very simple tastes when dining with the royal family. At 9 a.m. he has his breakfast served in his study, consisting of eggs, cold meat, toast and tea. A light luncheon of three or four dishes is served at 2 o'clock, tea with little cakes at 5 o'clock, followed at 7 by a modest supper, with cold meats, and lastly, about midnight, a serious supper, which includes several French dishes.

The menu is headed "His Majesty's Dinner," and printed on illuminated cards, surmounted by the royal arms, and having a view of Windsor, Buckingham Palace, or Sandringham, according to the place where the King is staying.

Comparatively little wine is now partaken at the royal tables, but His Majesty has a weakness for a cocktail of his own invention. It is made of a little rye whisky, some crushed ice, a small square of pineapple, a piece of lemon peel, a few drops of maraschino, a little champagne, and a dash of Angostura bitters, sweetened with powdered sugar.

On the other hand, however, when the tables are spread for a State banquet, His Majesty entertains in a right royal manner. Only those who have seen the gold plate, which is valued at £2,000,000, can have any idea of the dazzling scene. It includes a gold service, ordered by George IV, for 140 persons, and one of the finest wine coolers in the world, added to the collection by the same monarch; a shield formed of snuff-boxes, worth £9000, and thirty dozen plates, worth £10,000. There is also a variety of pieces brought from our colonial and eastern possessions. The latter include a peacock made of precious stones of every description, worth £30,000, and a Tippoo's footstool, a tiger's head with crystal teeth, the tongue being a solid ingot of gold.

The late King Carlos of Portugal was fond of a good table. His three chief meals put to shame any ordinary eater, besides which he declared he could not exist without a "snack" every two hours.

A story is told about His Majesty that while on a visit to Paris on one occasion he became so ravenously hungry that he could not wait to have a meal prepared for him at a first-class restaurant, but he must needs enter an automatic buffet and consume half a dozen cheap sandwiches. The Portuguese monarch was also very difficult to entertain, owing to his many "fads." One was, that once his lips touched a glass it had to be changed, which meant for twenty or thirty sips the same number of glasses, which necessarily meant a great waste of good liquor.

The Emperor of Austria when dining ordinarily takes his meals alone. His dinner consists of four courses, and his luncheon of two. He strictly forbids the use of butter or sugar on his private table. At Austrian state dinners, however, the menu is a yard in length. The dishes are so numerous that only a few seconds are allowed for each course.

Silk Petticoats $4.50

You will never expend money to better purpose than investing it in one or more of the following good petticoats:

Extra wide petticoats of black satine, in strictly tailored styles; special values at $2.75 and $3.50

Think of buying a really good silk petticoat for only $4.50! These we know to be splendid for wear; they are carefully tailored, finished in three different styles; with an extra dust ruffle; may be had in black and almost any shade you care for; and while we do not guarantee them, we believe that they will wear almost if not quite as well as the guaranteed sorts at $5. Shown in a good range of sizes at $4.50

$1.00 to $1.50 Novelty Suitings 85c

While every piece of these novelty suitings is thoroughly good and stylish, they've dwindled down until there are only, in some instances, a single waist or skirt length. So out they go at the price we think will quickest move them.

Pretty hairline and chalk stripes; chevron effects, plaids and dainty checks; values $1, $1.25 and $1.50; now 85c

Women's Vests 3 for 25c

We bought these cotton undervests to sell at 20c apiece. When they arrived we found them imperfect, so we want to close them out at once at the price of imperfect goods, for this store never knowingly misrepresents values:

Women's cotton vests; some showing slight imperfections in the weave—dropped stitches, etc., at 3 for 25c

Special Silk Values

Going to devote these before-inventory days to sales of short lengths and little lines of silks at below their early-season prices. That's the Coulter way of keeping stocks clean and up to date.

TAFT AND SHERMAN.

For President. For Vice-President.

Editorial Pro Points

No matter what the mask Bryan dons, the people can see the same old face behind it.

The Atlantic Coast has had its day; now comes the new day of the vast and mighty Pacific.

If earthquakes continue and balloons threaten us from the air, is it worth while to try to dodge?

When the Democratic party is most in his power is the time that Bryan appears to be in the worst humor.

Heaven help us; along with everything else we must all step up to the polls and elect a State Legislature.

As matters are now we must all do the best we can, always taking care not to let the other fellow do us.

No matter what else there is to distract attention, everybody forgets it when a real summer girl comes along.

The worst of it is that this week will not end it. The country must suffer to be pestered with Bryan until November.

We already grow things here; the next move is to manufacture things; factories as well as farms, that's the idea.

Every anti-Bryan delegate who went to Denver will return with the lashes of Bryan's whip red on his shoulders.

The week just passed furnished ample evidence to the most skeptical mind that the Star Spangled Banner still waves.

Bryan and Gray, eh? Well, they will both be gray and more than that before they are placed in control of this government.

Mr. Bryan is up on the classics and he surely must have read that "Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad."

We judge from the Fourth of July dispatches that the people of this country still favor a republican form of government.

Instead of yacht races to Hawaii we shall soon be witnessing races between steamers trying to keep up with Pacific commerce.

"The Angel Gate" was christened with water and not with wine. This ought to please our friends, the temperance people.

Now for business, prosperity and, incidentally, the election of William H. Taft to the Presidency of the United States of America.

An old farmer from the rural districts of Los Angeles county recently referred to a pessimist as a "pesterist." It is a better word.

The only vacation a man really needs in a climate like this is to take a trolley ride a few miles out in the country to look at the flowers.

San Pedro harbor looks good as it is, but what will it look like when ships are crowding there bearing the flag of every maritime nation?

"The question is," said Judge Pierce on the Fourth of July, "whether Los Angeles shall extend to the sea or San Pedro to the mountains."

"It's every one his own way," but we can't help thinking that 13,000 persons spent the Fourth of July in Los Angeles looking at a prize fight.

We shall not be surprised to yet see Bryan drop his long-distance telephone in Lincoln and rush into the Denver convention like an enraged bull.

Times are not so tight that this town and its immediate neighbors could not burn up about $75,000 worth of fireworks to celebrate the nation's natal day.

It is the Taft smile against the Bryan scowl; the Taft song against the Bryan "beller;" the Taft word of cheer against the Bryan wail of destruction and despair.

People desiring to do business should locate where the business is to be done, which is to say the golden shores of glory that extend from Monterey to the blue bay of San Diego.

A correspondent writes to ask what is the difference between the Republican and Democratic parties. Well, the principal difference is a matter of something like a million votes.

Pretty soon when a man is awakened in the night by a noise on the roof he will say, as he turns over to go to sleep again: "It was something that fell from a passing airship; that's all."

It is not thought that after what he said about them, Col. Guffey of Pennsylvania and "Long Pat" McCarren of Brooklyn will break their necks trying to elect William J. Bryan to the Presidency.

Let the Landmarks Society propose a monument to old sailorman Cabrillo, on the spot—as near as may be—where he lies buried on the golden coast. It is a thing that ought not to be neglected.

THE SEA! THE SEA!

"And there shall be no more sea." So said John the Divine in that trance on Patmos when he thought he "saw into the future far as human eye can see." Science tells us that the time foretold by the prophet will come, when all the waters on the globe shall have been evaporated. But then the earth will be as lifeless as the burned-out moon.

The seer on Patmos thought the earth would become a paradise when the seas were all dried up. Perhaps he had been out in a storm on the waters of the Levant and had suffered from seasickness which made the tossing of the blue wave so disagreeable to look at.

It all depends on the point of view. When the Greek general, Xenophon, had led his 10,000 troops for weeks from the banks of the Euphrates near Babylon north along great streams, beset by hostile armies, and through the rough mountain passes of the Kurdish tribes, as the men saw the Euxine from the high peak one mighty cry went up: "Thalatta! Thalatta!" "The sea! The sea!" What comfort, hope and joy there was in those blue waves through which they were to sail back to Athens!

When the earth becomes what the Apocalypse says it will be, a sealess expanse of barren rocks, men will have become disembodied spirits and will see with other eyes, have other aspirations and tastes than in the present state. While in the body the sea will be what it has always been, a source of infinite delight.

Surely Southern California would be bereft of at least half of its charm if it could be said of it, "And there shall be no more sea there." Of all the elements that go to make this "land of pure delight" not one plays a more prominent part than the long line of sea coast which lies for hundreds of miles basking in the noontide sun to the south of the broad valleys and below the towering mountain peaks. In these midsummer days the sea is an inspiration and an uplift to body, mind and soul. A single day at one of the beaches will cure the most melancholy person of the blues, and set a smile as broad as Mr. Taft's on the face of the ingrained pessimist. One returns to the city in a spirit of universal charity with all men, feeling years younger, as if there was no need henceforth for doctor or drug store. The world is all bright in his eye, all men are brave and true, all women fair and kind. The sky is bluer from the reflection of the sea left on the retina, and the flowers are fairer than they were yesterday.

There are 100,000 persons in Southern California who will bear testimony that these things are so. Saturday they were at one or another of the many beaches, and like the vase around which the scent of the roses clings after the flowers are withered and dead, the sheen of the sea, the glint of the blue waves, the bronze of the sea weed, all linger in our sight after we have left the entrancing scene. Nor is it all the kaleidoscope colors rich as a rainbow that make up the charm of these sunlit seas. There is the music as well. It sobs out the life of the ripple that dies in the vain attempt to reach grass roots and the flowers along the bluff. It sings in the paean of victory the breaker utters as it climbs the shingle and washes back a portion of land to add to the realms of the king of the trident. It thunders in the hoarse threat of the billow that breaks against the rocks and warns the headland that in time it must crumble under these repeated onslaughts. The deep diapason rolls upward over the land and echoes on the mountain top. And as the wavelet sobs and the breaker sings, the breeze whispers its lullaby of peace to sea and land, and the tempest adds its voice of terror to the billow's war cry, telling the earth that ere there be no more sea the days will come when there will be less and less of the land.

And in the turquoise skies there will float on the broad wings of the winds fleecy clouds as white as wool which will cast their shadows on sea and strand, on wave and bluff, playing a game of tag with each other as the clouds chase one another across the sky and their shadows on the earth beneath. And while we gaze on all the beauty of the scene and listen to the concert of sea and air, we drink in health, good cheer, hope and life with every suspiration. The artist, the naturalist, the invalid, nearly all find what they are looking for, most in need of. Here is the moving picture for one, the habits of various forms of life for the other, health for the weak, rest for the weary, a new joy of living for all.

There are enough of these beaches for all the dwellers west of the crests of the continental divide, and there will be standing room, elbow room, breathing room for as many more. The beaches of Southern California stretch 250 miles and one is at a loss to decide which is the most picturesque. The breezes are as balmy at one as at another. The same blue sky bends over all, and the same blue seas pulsate at them all. The great curve at Santa Monica Bay is one glory, and the broad channel at Long Beach and San Pedro, with the blue hills of Santa Catalina in the distance, is another glory. Santa Barbara, so like famed Naples, has a beauty different from the coast at other points, and north to Port Harford the mountains come down to cool their feet in the waves, giving a charm all its own to that long stretch of the golden coast.

The golden coast it is in very deed. In the far north the charm of the landscape is the vivid green. These are the lands of the sun and he has gilded all these shores with his own rich colors. It may take time to reconcile the eye to the golden brown of a California summer. But the education will come in time, and once acquired the hold is more intense than that of any other scenes. The sea weed floats in glittering bronze upon the almost purple wave. The hills around are a brown in which the sun's rays are reflected back like the glint of an old coin of gold.

It must be tame to descend from these scenes of nature's most glorious art to consider what man's feeble efforts have done along these golden shores by waves of blue. But the charm has exercised a spell over the souls of 100,000 beings who make their homes beside our sunlit seas. Tens of thousands come in summer from torrid plains and burning mountain brows where they dig the metals from the earth to dwell amid these scenes of loveliness, and to enjoy the comforts of fresh ocean breezes and the health that comes from an atmosphere always pure. In winter they flock from the rigors of ice and snow to live for months by waters whose temperature in January is only five degrees below that of July.

Those who spend days and weeks in contemplation of the things nature has done to make these golden shores so glorious must devote an hour now and then to think of what man has done to make life at the beaches as comfortable and as luxurious as in the largest city in the world. Long Beach, one of our seaside resorts, boasts a hotel rich as the Orient which "showers on her kings barbaric pearls and gold." As nature has made these beaches the glory of all seasides, man has eclipsed his own efforts elsewhere in making them beautiful with all the builder's art of the twentieth century can do.

We don't want war with Japan and it is inconceivable that we should ever "get into holts" with old friend China. Business is the slogan—business with our yellow and brown brothers of the fateful and mighty Pacific.

Los Angeles and San Pedro have now been joined in the holy bonds of wedlock. Try to stagger your imagination with a picture of the family this happy couple will have on, say, the golden anniversary of their wedding.

An eastern poet has written some verses about "the fountain's sluggish spill." He was probably thinking of the average fountain pen.

"READY TO MEET ALL COMERS!"

TWO PEDAGOGIC VIEWS.

Ambassador Bryce, in an address at a college commencement, lays much stress on the value of a broad, general education, embracing the fundamentals of mental training. President Hadley of Yale, in a similar address, dwells on the desirability of specialization in education.

There is no need to try to reconcile these views. They are not antagonistic, but supplementary. Sir James Bryce was dealing with a university education in its broadest application; Prof. Hadley was looking at the subject in its practical details. The British Ambassador would not contend that all who go to college should be taken through the course he recommends for one class, and Prof. Hadley would not argue that no students should attempt the curriculum in the mind of Mr. Bryce.

In practical life the specialist is the one who wins the race today. Classical languages do not necessarily belong in the education of a dentist, of a painter of portraits, or of a performer on the violin. If persons who are to follow those professions have the time and money to spend in a broad university course, their own lives will be the richer for their learning, while in their intercourse with their fellow-men they will achieve larger success and leave a deeper impress on their age. But one will not of necessity pull teeth the better, nor will it follow that the other will lay on oil or water colors more artistically.

This is what the Yale professor had in mind. Many persons attend college for a special purpose, and lack both time and money to go into broader fields of investigation and study than is necessary. A knowledge of chemistry and physiology is more important to the dentist than that of conic sections. It is better for a man or a woman to master a few branches of human knowledge with some thoroughness than to waste time trying in vain to cover more ground than he can go over with profitable cultivation.

Sir James Bryce had in mind a class of students whose lives are to be spent in broader fields of endeavor. A lawyer can hardly know too many things, for his profession touches life at almost all points. The clergyman should be broadly educated, as he has to deal with many phases of thought, even although he be not a modern pulpiteer who harangues on politics and sociology rather than preaches the Gospel.

But outside of all practical uses to which education is to be put there is the making of the most out of the man for his own sake and for the world's sake. Here is where the broad culture in all the fundamental branches of knowledge has its meaning. For a career like that of President Hadley or of Ambassador Bryce no special course of study will suffice. Their minds must rest in equipoise on a broad foundation including nearly all the range of modern knowledge. Bryce's erudition in the classics is a great aid to him as a statesman. His knowledge of history and of literature is of advantage in his use of the law and of statecraft. Although despised by some of those who follow eagerly any new light, the study of higher mathematics gives the mind a severe training in close reasoning not to be had in any other way.

The newspaper writer needs about as broad an education as any man. What does not a newspaper deal with? What branch of knowledge does not enter into the sphere of its activity? Large papers have a corps of writers more or less specialized. But even a reporter may be called upon in one hour to report an autopsy or a surgical operation, when a knowledge of anatomy is almost essential. He is an hour later at a meeting of bankers where the science of finance is in evidence all the time. His next detail may be a political meeting, and there a knowledge in detail of the principles on which parties divide will help him much.

The broadly educated person has a great advantage in every-day life outside of the earning of a living or making a dollar. He meets others on a plane which they must occupy because they are specialists. He always can be entertaining to those he meets and enjoy converse with others in proportion to his comprehension of what they know most about. And when alone he is a host in himself, never lonely, because he carries in his mind a whole world of people to commune with.

All this supposes the broadly educated person to be a human being with at least average natural gifts. A clam impressed, if it were possible, with all Bacon knew, would not be Bacon.

DEMOCRACY IN PERSIA.

When the Shah of Persia declared a constitution some two years ago there was first a gasp of astonishment and then a chorus of premature approbation. That an oriental people should abandon its time-honored despotism and so far flatter the western world as to imitate its methods of government was regarded as an event auspicious of the political regeneration of the whole East. A constitutional government, a widely-based suffrage, a Parliament, ballot boxes, and perhaps conventions and platforms—these were the panaceas that would cure the East of its political ills and establish the reign of law and respectability. The western world, deeming its own methods as the high water mark of sagacious government, rejoiced in an imitation that was a justification of its own self-approval and proceeded forthwith to place Persia within the charmed circle of civilization. And the Persians, having secured their constitution and elected their Parliament began at once to fight like Kilkenny cats and to express their political convictions by a series of murderous combats as ferocious and as destructive as any in the history of the nation. There are evidently limits to the remedial influence of constitutions and ballot boxes, and human nature remains about the same in spite of improvements in the machinery of government. Persia, in short, seems about as badly off under a constitution as she ever was under the despotism of an irresponsible Shah.

The constitution was granted by the Shah with every appearance of cordiality, but no sooner was its mechanism in motion than he began to regret the reforming zeal that he had shown. Perhaps he realized that he had created a power greater than his own. Perhaps he merely succumbed to the pressure of the conservative elements of his people and of the various highly-placed officials who felt that their own perquisites were in jeopardy. However that may be, it is certain that the Shah began at once to thwart and to cavil at the constitutionalist in every way possible to him, and a condition of suppressed hostilities at once ensued. Take for example the events of last December. Certain of the Shah's soldiers were accused of the murder of some shopkeepers. Popular feeling was aroused to fever heat and the unthinking mob blamed the Parliament for a lukewarm espousal of the popular cause. Quick to turn every weapon against his enemies the Shah promptly arrested the ministers and tried by a coup d'état to upset the constitution. But the people were not so easily beguiled as all that. They might have their private grievance against the Parliament, but they did not intend to commit political suicide. The popular mood changed as though by magic and two thousand armed constitutionalists garrisoned the Parliament house against the royal troops. Then the Shah released the ministers and made a momentary peace with the specter that he had himself conjured and that had so quickly acquired a dangerous and baffling strength. There have been many incidents such as this, all tending to show that constitutional methods in Persia are subsidiary to the ancient appeal to arms that is so well understood everywhere.

Persia, it seems, has a clerical party whose influence is quite as pernicious as that of a Russian diplomacy which is not satisfied with spheres of influence in Persia and would willingly foment disturbance as affording opportunities for further interference. The clerical party is made up of the muj-ta-hids or leaders of the mullahs. The priests have discovered, and not for the first time in history, that the establishment of democratic government means a curtailment of their own influence on the well-known principle that the man to whom power is given becomes at once a competent critic of the boasted powers of others. Now that the Persian can in some measure work out his own salvation by means of a vote, he is a little less prone to render homage to the mullah or to continue the superstitions that accompany ignorance and impotence. As a result the mullahs have cursed the Parliament as "bad for trade," and although their following is smaller than it was, it is still considerable and dangerous. As with the mullahs, so it has been with others who have grown fat upon exemptions and privileges and who find themselves threatened by new and orderly institutions. The Shah himself must be placed in this category. His good resolutions have met with the usual fate and he has placed himself at the head of the great army of reaction. He seems to be momentarily successful, but it would be good for him to remember that the world moves forward and not backward.

We may well wish Persia a safe deliverance from her troubles, but not without an uneasy consciousness that western political methods may not be good for all sorts and conditions of men, and that perhaps not every despotism may be overthrown in too great a hurry.

HOROSCOPE.

Monday, July 6, 1908.

Through the new opened door shall custom enter in. Promise is high for all that men begin.

The moon in this one hundred and eighty-eighth day has Neptune in ecliptic conjunction and Jupiter in benefic aspect.

All things are favorable for the beginnings of new undertakings or duties large and small.

In the daily routine, favor looks on opening new sets of books, beginning new office or shop systems, changing positions or undertaking new duties and responsibilities.

An excellent day for baking.

In the household, luck should attend engagement of new servants, domestic changes and the introduction of new methods.

Deal with merchants, particularly those who handle wearing apparel.

Excessive indulgence in pleasure and society threatens to affect harmfully the health and happiness of women of this birthdate. During the twelve-month they will probably discover that renunciation of something they desire will bring them a greater joy.

Difficult problems will arise to vex the minds of men whose birthdate this is. The results will depend on the course into which they set their feet early in this twelvemonth.

Children born today are under aspects that tell of desire for pleasure, a dissipation of talents in mere social amusement and a bent toward extravagance. Girls will need guidance to make them prudent in dealing with men. Boys will probably profit from being trained to finish tasks ere they go for pleasure.

BITS OF VERSE.

Look Up.

Look up, the light is there!
Look out—the steeps are far!
Dark valleys hold the care;
Over the hills, the star!

Look up, not down; 'twere vain
Long seeking at one's feet;
Under the shadows, rain;

Look up, and with firm tread,
Go on, straight on;
Only the blind are led;
—[Folger McKinsey, in Baltimore Sun.

Sonnet.

In beauty on the dusk thy thin cold ray!
The dawn hath all the rainbow to display;
And through the dark of moonless nights thy beams
Some loveliness of stars; yet, fairer seems
Thy lftlie light, as down the slopes of day
Thou swingest, slow, upon a lonely way,
A mystic way, to some dim house of dreams.
Strange glory!—vision, thought, frost, music,
As wert thou some lost note from some lost lyre;
Some passion that hath outworn joy and fear;
Some pureness that hath never known desire;
Some dream of God made visible and clear.
—[Humphreys Park, in Appleton's Magazine.

Let Something Good Be Said.

When over the fair fame of friend or foe
The shadow of disgrace shall fall; instead
Of words of blame, or proof of thus and so,
Let something good be said.

Forget not that no fellow-being yet
May fall so low but love may lift his head;
Even the cheek of shame with tears is wet
If something good be said.

No generous heart may vainly turn aside
In ways of sympathy; no soul so dead
But may awaken strong and glorified,
If something good be said.

And so I charge ye, by the thorny crown
And by the cross on which the Savior bled,
And by your own soul's hope of fair renown,
—[James Whitcomb Riley.

The Bewildered Guest.

I was not asked if I should like to come,
I have not seen my host here since I came,
Or had a word of welcome in his name.
Some say that we shall never see him, and
That we shall see him elsewhere, and then
Why we were bid. How long I am to stay
I have not the least notion. None, they say,
Was ever told when he should come or go,
But every now and then there bursts upon
The song and mirth a lamentable noise.
A sound of shrieks and sobs, that strikes our ears
Dumb in our hearts; and then some one is gone.
They say we meet him. None knows where or when We know we shall not meet him here again.
—[William Dean Howells.

MUSIC AND THE STAGE.

Just to remind his players that the stage profession still has some heart-breaking tasks, and incidentally to satisfy his own taste, Frederic Belasco held another of his all-night rehearsals last night. The last curtain should ring down on "The Rose of the Rancho" this morning about the time most of the population are sitting down to breakfast.

When Richard Walton Tully wrote the first draft of "The Rose of the Rancho" it had another name, and was produced in its original form at the Burbank Theater here. At that time it had five acts, and the story was somewhat disconnected. When the original Tully manuscript reached David Belasco that adapter ripped out two entire acts as his first touch, jammed the rest into a semblance of continuity, and renamed it.

Frances Starr was not at first thought of in connection with the piece. It was Bertha Galland, who was under contract with Mr. Belasco for a starring tour, to whom the new play was to be intrusted. Miss Galland is a young actress of acknowledged physical attainments who first came into prominence when James K. Hackett played "The Pride of Jennico." In this particular instance, Miss Galland's ambitions and hopes had even ascended to the point where she was summoned to the first rehearsals of "The Rose of the Rancho," and she had really started to take the famous Belasco treatment for turning out stars overnight.

Then her voice began to cut up capers, and in a few days it became inaudible, and all the lost, strayed or stolen advertisements could not find it. Mr. Belasco recalled that the ingenius of the David Warfield company, which was at that time playing "The Music Master," was just the type of girl suited to the portrayal of this leading role, Juanita Kenton. So, presently, little Frances Starr, who had been a stock actress in Albany and San Francisco, and whose real Gotham introduction had been made in a little comedy called "Gallops," was hailed as the most delightful little player New York had seen in many a day.

"The Rose of the Rancho" was played continuously for two years at the Belasco Theater in New York, with intermission for a few weeks of summer rest, and then it went on a tour of the principal eastern cities—or at least in those cities where the Belasco booking arrangements could be used.

The present production at the Belasco, which will be seen tonight for the first time, has been in preparation for some weeks, and the management hopes it will rival "The Girl of the Golden West" in popularity, though such a run as that play achieved can hardly be expected.

The piece was recently given at the Cæsar Theater in San Francisco, where Bessie Barriscale took the leading part.

It is reported, unofficially, that the Orpheum Circuit Company is expecting large addition to its family of theaters, as arrangements for new houses are said to be well under way in Portland, Seattle, Butte and Tacoma. In Portland the well-known Marquam Grand Theater has been acquired.

At the Colonial Theater, Chicago, the management is trying an innovation with moving pictures of high class, delivered with intepretative lectures—and the lecturer is Joseph Kilgour, of Ferris's leading man during the season past at the Auditorium.

Fiance O'Neill commenced a short engagement in San Diego last night. She will present the repertoire of plays in which she was seen in Los Angeles.

"A Society Pilot," the new Moroccochman play, entered its third week yesterday afternoon, with popular interest apparently undiminished.

"The Rounders" of the Gay White way," the first peace of the new musical company at the Grand Opera-house, commenced its second week yesterday afternoon.

Willy Pantzer, head of the acrobatic troupe, which is a current novelty on the Orpheum bill, is the husband of Lilla Selbini, the "bathing beauty," whose local appearances scored something of a sensation several months ago. Mlle. Selbini is spending the summer at Tronville, France, where she is under contract with the Casino of that resort to appear on the sands twice daily, in bathing costume. Her next appearance here will be with next season's Road Show.

Mauricia Morichini will commence her return journey to New York this morning. Before leaving for Europe she will make a number of red-seal records for the Victor talking machine company. She intends to spend the summer in France.

Dr. Richard Burton will begin a series of lectures on the modern drama at Cumnock Hall tomorrow morning. Burton is the author of the poetic drama, "Rahab," which is to be produced in September at the Garrick theater, Chicago.

Actors are notoriously addicted to practical jokery, and while the audience is smiling at some spoken jest, a jester may be struggling with indigestion and mirth at some happening not understood by the audience. There is a standing rule in every company against "kidding," but the actor is a curious Indeed who will not risk his ten per cent. fine" to get back at a comrade who has put one over him.

After rehearsal last Thursday afternoon at the Grand Operahouse Tom Waverly volunteered to show Charles Allyn and two ladies "the most delightful restaurant in town." They accepted his guidance and were conducted to the most distinctively Spanish kitchen in the city. Waverly and the young women found everything to their taste, but Gibiyn, who was bred in a New England pie foundry, was on fire by his first mouthful of Spanish food, and thereafter dined darkly on bread and onions, amid the jeers of the rest.

However, he accomplished his revenge yesterday afternoon. In the course of the first act of "The Rounders" the action of the piece demands that Haverly drink a long schooner of iced water, flavored enough with strawberry juice to make it drinkable. It is a long drink at best, but it must be downed.

Yesterday, though, Gibiyn dropped a glass behind his mimic counter for a moment, and poured in a whole vial of Jamaica ginger. Haverly coughed, sputtered and almost exploded, to the amusement of the audience and the wrath of the other actors in the play, but he had to drink it or "crab the act."

The next scene in the melodrama promises to be even more interesting.

CHAPTER XI.

"ARE YOU GAOLER OR SPY?"

I was conscious of a new feeling of elation now as I thought of Masita. I had done something for her. I recalled a weird Italian story of the Middle Ages I had once heard about a fabled beauty who to test the zeal of her suitors threw her ring into a bag of asps and bade them recover it, if they dared.

In a sense I had plunged my hand into the bag of asps for Masita's sake; at any rate, I had run a very real risk of capture, with life-long imprisonment to follow, in order to aid her, and the thought of it filled me with jubilation. I had made good in act the promise to serve her; and had proved to myself at least my zeal in her cause.

I felt that I had established a claim to her good will and confidence, and the knowledge delighted me; although she would not know what I had done. The fact that it would be my secret added to my pleasure, indeed; and I was glad that I had ordered Pepita not to say that it was I myself who had gone to the mainland; nor let fall a hint of the risk I had run.

I found Breva at his post, and he had more to tell me about the anger of Giuseppe and the rest against me. He confirmed all that Molta had said about their belief that I had gone to betray them; and repeated some ugly threats which had been uttered.

"You must be on your guard, Beppo. Giuseppe is hot against you," he said. "I think he knows why you went; but sees how to use the thing to accuse you of treachery."

"He has set Agapa to inflame her jealousy against Masita. I overheard them together, planning the tale she should tell."

"Let them plan. I go my own way," I said. I was, in fact, as indifferent as my reply suggested.

"I believe they have been planning some scheme against Masita," he added.

"Let them plan," I said again, with a shrug; but a thought occurred to me and I decided to have a good look round the old fort.

The building stood, as I have before described, at the edge of a steep bluff on the crown of some rising ground, about fifty feet higher than the rest of the island, and right on the edge of a bluff, with a sheer descent to the beach some two or three hundred feet below. The approach from the island side was by a short winding path cut between the rocks. It was at a turn in this path, about half-way between the mouth and the fort, at a spot which commanded the approach, that Breva stood by day and I by night. But I wished now to assure myself that no one could get into the place from the other side.

I made a very careful observation, and seeing that it was possible for a skilful, sure-footed climber to get partly round, I deemed it best to make the attempt there and then. With great effort and at the risk of my neck I succeeded; and satisfied myself that while the thing was possible in the daylight, no one who did not court an almost certain death would attempt it in the dark.

Not caring to risk a return trip I looked about for a means of gaining an entrance into the building by one of the upper windows. There was a ledge of rock which served for this purpose; and scaling it without difficulty, I found myself on a level with the windows of the upper story.

The window nearest to me was that of Masita's sitting-room; and as I peered in, I saw her and Pepita engaged in very earnest talk. Masita, whose back was toward the window, held her brother's note in her hand and was listening eagerly to what her companion as saying.

My face was not at the window more than a second or two; but, as ill luck would have it, Pepita saw me and her start and cry of astonishment drew Masita's attention to me before I could make sure enough of my footing to move off.

I made my way to the furthest window and gained an entrance through it into the building. That my action would be misinterpreted was certain. Masita would think that I had been spying upon her; and would laugh to scorn the explanation that I had merely been endeavoring to assure myself of her safety.

And so it proved. Pepita had hurried away at my appearance and met me close to the door of Masita's room. She was very confused and as she bade me good-morning stammered out nervously something about having been trying to cheer Masita.

"Why are you so confused, Pepita?" I asked. "I have not forbidden you to speak to Masita."

"No, I know that. But you appeared so suddenly at the window, Beppo. You—you startled me so."

"Did Masita see me?"

"Of course, I was silly and cried out. I am sorry. I didn't know that anyone could get there and—and——" She broke off with a nervous little laugh.

"It is of no consequence. I came round by the cliff to make sure that no one could get that way at an awkward time."

"You—you came by the cliff?" she cried, her eyes widening. "Why you risked your life. Don't you remember Giacomo's falling to his death there, some three months ago, when he had wagered with Ahmet that he could do it?"

"I am not dead, anyway," I replied with a smile. "Now tell me—you gave the packet and the letter to Masita?"

"Yes. Yes, on, yes," she said with a return of her nervousness.

"And said nothing as to who fetched them?"

"Listen," she cried, putting up her hand, "is that Breva calling?"

"Go and see," I told her; and she hurried off.

I went to Masita's room and in my character as gaoler opened the door without any preliminary knock and glanced round as if to assure myself that all was well.

She was bending over the packet I had brought from her house and her brother's letter lay open on the table beside it. She looked up at my entrance and waited for me to speak. I was drawing back to leave again, when she stopped me.

"Why do you come here?" she asked sharply.

"Are you gaoler now, or—spy?"

The pause before the word and the angry glance emphasized it. "Gaoler," I said bluntly.

"You could have satisfied yourself by the window, surely." She spoke coldly and contemptuously; but changed suddenly and added with great vehemence: "Did Beltano order you to spy on your prisoner? Or is that an added insult born of your own cunning?"

"The child rather of discretion than cunning," I replied slowly.

"Discretion!" she exclaimed with a scornful laugh. "It is not enough, I suppose, that I am kept a prisoner and subjected to all the indignities of this place, but you must set the spy upon me also, watch my actions even when I am alone and listen to the very words I utter in secret. Discretion! To play on my fears and make me dread that even these stone walls have ears and eyes to guess my secret thoughts. A discretion that is worthy of you!"

It is more than a little hard that an act dictated by no thought save for her greater security should have been so interpreted. But I could not blame her any more than I could explain. She would not have believed me.

"Have you any further wishes?" I asked after a pause.

"None, save to be freed from your spying; and that of course is impossible."

"No, not impossible. You are not spied upon and will not be."

"I have seen that already," she cried, with a curl of the lip, as she pointed to the window.

"Think what you will, I speak the truth."

"Then why were you there staring in upon me?"

"Think what you will," I said again.

She looked steadily at me for a space, and her hand fell upon the packet; she gave a slight start. "I don't understand," she murmured as if to herself.

"Have you any further wish?" I asked once more.

"Yes. When is my brother coming?"

"How should I know?" I replied with a shrug of the shoulders.

"You saw him. He gave you this," and she held up his letter.

"What is that?" I asked, affecting not to understand her.

"I thought it was your boast that you spoke the truth!"

"What is that paper?" I repeated.

"It was you who went to him. Why do you seek to deny it?"

So that was the reason for Pepita's confusion. She had told Masita that I had gone and they had been discussing it when I had looked in upon them.

"He said he would come today. When he arrives you shall see him," I answered, seeing that further denial would serve no purpose.

"Why did you go to him?"

"Some one had to go. That is all."

"Is it true that you were in danger, and had been proscribed?"

"You were not there to accuse me. That is still open to you."

Involuntarily her hands clenched. "I shall keep my vow," she said, as her thoughts flew back to the night of Vicino's death.

"I shall not ask you to do otherwise," I said.

Her brows drew together and she looked at me almost as if resenting my reply. "Why did you take this risk?"

"Pepita had no right to speak to you of it."

"I questioned her closely and made her tell me."

"She must learn to hold her tongue or I shall have to find another attendant for you."

"No, no, I like the girl," she cried quickly; so eagerly indeed that I thought there was something behind the words. I resolved to question Pepita. She noticed the change in my looks and a flash of new suspicion came into her eyes. "Say rather that for some secret purpose you meant her to tell me," she added.

"There is always that supposition of course; but at least it is true that I have a secret purpose."

"I would that I knew it."

"If you did, you would not believe it," I replied and without replying to the question which face and gesture alike asked, I turned and left the room.

I found Pepita waiting for me below. "What have you told Masita?" I asked.

"That you risked capture to do her bidding, Beppo." She had shed her nervousness and replied frankly. "We were speaking of you when you showed at the window. It maddened me that she should talk of accusing you when you had risked so much for her sake."

"Why did you deny it when I questioned you before?"

She smiled. "I did not. I left you on the pretense I could hear Breva. I have told him everything, and he says I should tell you."

"What is everything?"

"Masita asked me to help her to escape when her brother came. Breva says you will do so. I believed that, too; but asked him first. She wants me to persuade him to have a boat in readiness for them both to get away. You will do it, Beppo? She is good and true and loathes the thought of marrying Beltano. I know you wish to help her," and she laid her hand on my arm and smiled wistfully and yet meaningly into my face.

"Have you thought of the consequences of discovery? Of Beltano's anger?"

I recalled the Greek's threat of an hour before. "I will speak to Breva," I said after a pause of thought.

I said nothing to him then, however, as I wished first to think out the best plan. I did not want any blame to fall either upon Breva or Pepita, and the matter would need some contriving to prevent this.

That afternoon, on the pretense of fishing, I took out my felucca; and on my return stored the gear where it would be more readily accessible than in the hut which was used for the purpose.

I heard then that Julius had arrived, and found that instead of going to Masita, he had been philandering with Agapa. Her influence over him was absolute, and it was with evident reluctance that at my instance he left her to go to his sister.

"Julius has news for Masita, Beppo," said Agapa, her eyes glittering viciously. "Beltano will be here in three days and brings a priest with him for their marriage."

"As well then as later,' I replied.

Her eyes fastened on mine as I spoke and her lips parted in the curiously disfiguring snarl which so marred her face. "For once we think alike," she said meaningly, as she turned away.

A Prophet in His Own Country.

"I don't believe," remarked good old Aunt Loeezy, "that Lige Potter is doin' very well in Chicago."

"Oh, I don't know," replied Uncle Liphalet. "Lige uster be a purty sharp chap before he went there."

"Yes, but we've been takin' this Chicago paper four years now, and it's never once mentioned his name, even when the hull Potter family went there to visit him."—[Puck.

Brings Two-Ton Piece of Coral.

What is believed to be the largest and most valuable piece of coral ever gathered for any institution in the world was brought to New York recently by Capt. Joshua Slocum in the Spray, the ten-ton yacht in which he formerly sailed alone around the world.

The piece of coral, which weighs almost two tons, is the property of the American Museum of Natural History. It was found by Dr. B. E. Dahlgren, who spent several months off the coast of Andros Island exploring reefs, gathering coral, and getting photographs for the museum.—[New York Press.

Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 56 deg. and 73 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 94 per cent.; 5 p.m., 55 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., south, velocity 3 miles; 5 p.m., west, velocity 10 miles. Maximum temperature, 77 deg.; minimum, 56 deg. Barometer reduced to sea level.

YUMA (Ariz.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch from the U. S. Geological Survey.] Gauge height Colorado River 22.90 feet.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Fair weather prevails over the Pacific Slope except in southern Nevada and Utah. In California warm weather with light northerly winds prevails in the interior, and cool weather with fresh westerly winds on the Coast. In the Great Valley the maximum temperature approximate 100 deg. Conditions are favorable for fair weather Monday in the interior, and fair along the coast with fog in the morning and afternoon.

Santa Clara Valley: Fair; fresh northwest winds.

Classified Liners.

Times Classified Rates: The rate for inserting "Want" ads in The Daily Times is 1c per word for each insertion; in the Sunday Issue 1½c per word, each insertion; minimum charge 25c; except under following classifications the rate for which is 10c per line, minimum charge 1 center: "Society Meetings," "Personals," "Special Notices," and "Baths and Massage."

"Liner" (classified) advertisements for Sunday insertion received over the counter or by telephone after 11:30 o'clock Saturday nights will be inserted under heading "Too Late to Classify."

Sunday real estate advertisements, to be classified properly, must be in The Times office before 10:30 o'clock Saturday nights, Rate 1½ cents per word.

The Sunday circulation of The Times exceeds 77,000 copies, and more "liners" are regularly printed in its columns than in the five other Los Angeles newspapers combined.

Telephone your want advertisements. Ring up "The Times" any time of day or night and secure prompt and careful attention.

The Times cannot guarantee accuracy or assume responsibility for errors of any kind occurring in telephoned advertisements.

THE TIMES will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion of any advertisement ordered for more than one time.

Advertisers should retain receipts given by the "liner" in payment for "Liners," as no mistakes can be rectified without them.

SPECIAL NOTICES—

SUNDAY REAL ESTATE LINERS—Classified real estate advertisements for insertion in the Sunday issue of TIMES must be in the office not later than 10:30 o'clock Saturday night. Other "want" advertisements for Sunday issue will be taken over the counter until 11:30 p.m.

The great volume of liners printed in The Sunday Times, numbering regularly over 2000, makes the announcement of this regulation absolutely necessary in order to get the big Sunday issue out on time.

At the Churches Yesterday.

The Country's Dangers.

AT YESTERDAY morning's services at Temple Baptist Church, Rev. John Roach Straton, D.D., of Baltimore, Md., preached a "Fifth of July sermon." He is filling the pulpit in the absence of Dr. Burdette. He discussed some of the dangers confronting our country at the present time, but blended the note of optimism and expressed the faith that our trying problems would be solved successfully and that the American republic was destined to endure. In speaking of the dangers of materialism, he said:

"The true greatness of a country is not to be measured by its material achievements, its military heroes, or its successful wars. The material greatness of Greece has perished. The glory has departed from the Attic plains and the Aegean shores. The splendor of Athens is no more. Her temple of Theseus is in ruins. Her parthenon is the home of the bat and the owl; and even the tombs of her heroes are but as the dust which they were vainly intended to commemorate. But Greece still lives in the works of her immortal minds. She enjoys perpetual youth through the eloquence of Demosthenes and the heroic metre of Homer; through the wit of Aristophanes, and the stirring tragedies of Aeschylus; through the mighty thought of Plato and the matchless grace of the cantilas of Pindar.

"The empire of the Caesars, too, has crumbled to ruins. The glory of Rome has faded. Her Coliseum is mouldering away. The pathetic silence of her Forum is unbroken by the eager eloquence of her great orators. No fluttering flag kiss the breezes. No triumphal procession moves along her streets. No golden-throated bugles sound the thrilling tocsin of war, and the tread of the Roman legion shakes the earth no more forever! Yet the Eternal City is not dead. She still flourishes in the laws of Justinian and the master works of Virgil, Cicero and Caesar!

"And indeed is this decay of nations, and its lesson for us is that these higher things alone are the measure of a country's greatness. When her prosperity has passed, and her glory vanished like a dream of the night then must she live, if live she does, in the thoughts of her philosophers, the deeds of her philanthroplists, the chisels of her artists, the visions of her seers, and the songs of her bards. If we would see America truly great, then we must build upon this sure foundation. Side by side with her mighty achievements in the material sphere, she must put ever more prominently her higher achievements in the realms of the spirit.

"At the night service, in speaking upon the subject "Fighters Wanted," Dr. Straton continued the spirit of his morning sermon by pointing out some of the things that are necessary for America to win the victory over the sins that now beset us. In this connection he said:

"God at never before in her long and storied history, the Church of Jesus Christ needs to assume the position of leadership in social and political reform. This is to be done not by making the church, as an organization, a political machine; but by insistence that every individual within the church shall apply his religion to practical affairs. We have swung so far in our efforts to get away from the awful iniquities arising from a union of Church and State, that many have actually come to believe that religion has nothing whatever to do with political life. Here is the fundamental error. There is a vast difference between the union of church and State, and the union of Christianity and State. We need this latter union imperatively.

"The ministry of the modern church needs to become more militant in its call for righteousness. The ministry is not called to the delights of literary research nor the charms of scientific speculation. The true ministry is not to consist of a round of pink teas and social coddlings, punctuated on Sunday with dainty discussions of Browning's poetry, sandwiched in between the dulcic strains of operatic airs. Such ideals prostitute the pulpit. They constitute treason to our sacred trust. The sermons of today need more of the fire of the prophet and less of the perfume of the priest. We will be better if we watch them, as Christ did, in the open air, as we go about doing good and fighting evil in obedience to His commands to take up our cross daily and follow after Him. Preaching thus, they will have, perhaps, less finish, but more force; less polish, but more power; less rhetoric, but more truth.

"And the lay members of our churches need also more of the warrior spirit which made early Christianity so heroically successful. The follower of Christ should assert himself in political affairs and should stand for religious principles in every walk of life every day that he lives. The great need of our time is for a Christian citizenship with backbone enough to fight. This age is calling for brilliant warriors and not for sim-pering sentimentalists in the ranks of the Christian army.

"Two men were speeding one day past each other on bicycles. One of them was cross-eyed, and they became involved in trying to guide around each other and smashed together with tremendous force.

"Why don't you look where you're going?' exclaimed the cross-eyed man, as he struggled up from the tangle of wheels and spokes.

"'Well, my friend, that's not the reason,' replied the other, 'why don't you look where you're looking?'

"If we would only go in social, commercial and political life, the way our cross-eyed eyes are looking, we could soon nation for Christ. If we will but as we pray and pray as we vote, if we will live out our religion between times, our God will soon get unto us a mighty victory."

Good Citizenship."

At St. John's Episcopal Church yesterday the rector, the Rev. Lewis G. Morris, preached on "Good Citizenship." He said, in part:

"Josiah Strong has aptly said in one of his books, 'We are afflicted with a lack of citizenship of good people.' There are many Christians all about us whose private lives are exemplary, who are loyal and faithful to their church, but very lightly regard the sacred and solemn obligations of citizenship. No man is a good Christian unless he is a good citizen. I do not care what party he belongs to, nor how regularly he attends services, nor how frequently he prays, nor how much he reads his Bible, nor how piously he lives, nor how virtuously he lives—if he is not a good citizen, he is not a true Christian. The very fundamental principles of our holy religion compel us to give heed to our citizenship. They are social principles. They advocate the common weal. Christianity and citizenship are married into one, and cannot be divorced.

"But what constitutes good citizenship? It stands first of all for an active, unselfish devotion to the general welfare. It stands for the sentiment that 'you love the land and not alone the land for the sake of whatsoever tends to the prosperity and betterment of society. It is a principle which does not expend itself in sentiment. It gets out and does things. It is a principle which is fighting for the commonwealth is today shamefully widespread. It is exceedingly difficult to get people, even our good church people, to take an active interest in public affairs; it is almost impossible to get them to come out into the open and personally work for better legislation, even for legislation aimed against the most glaring vices and the most abominable places of iniquity. This nation has no more formidable enemies than these indifferent men, or these men who put private interests above public interests.

"Good citizenship commands every man to vote—to vote his best convictions, not simply upon matters which personally interest him, but upon every matter put to the vote of the people. Why is it that incompetent and unscrupulous men so often get into the high offices? Oftentimes because our 'good people' do not take the trouble to exercise their right of franchise.

"'Good citizenship stands for reverence for law. Disregard for laws is widespread. It is not confined to the vicious and ignorant of our population. The spirit has crept into high places. Much of it is, I acknowledge, in regard to what we may perhaps call the lesser laws. Lawlessness of any kind is a serious matter. It is fraught with danger to our public welfare; it is a menace to the prosperity and stability of the nation. By defying or disregarding any law, we sow the seed which yields that anarchy which from time to time shocks the civilized world by some atrocious crime. This spirit of lawlessness is a breach in our bulwarks. 'Everywhere it is a traitor and rebel to the country.' Good citizenship stands unswervingly for the inviolability and sacredness of law. Reverence for law is one of the foundation virtues upon which the prosperity and stability of the nation rest."

"Our Declaration."

At the First Congregational Church yesterday morning, Rev. William Horace Day, pastor, preached on "Our Declaration of Independence." He spoke in part as follows:

One hundred and thirty-two years ago our fathers declared themselves free and that the will of the people should rule. Every generation must proclaim this declaration if popular government is to survive.

"In Psalm 119 we read: 'And I shall walk at liberty, for I have sought thy precepts.' A man or nation is free when following God's law. The business of human government is to lead the nation to obey God's law. The noblest and wisest state is that which best finds and enforces the divine precept. Because the republic can best teach the people the will of God it stands. The authority of the state rests upon its claim to represent the Diety. Monarchy sets up a king who claims the divine right to rule as God's proxy. The American colonies revolted because a foolish king forgot he was God's representative and betrayed his stewardship. Monarchy often fails because the king whom men crown is not a man whom God can approve. The oligarchy, or the rule of the few, is based upon the theory that the strongest and wisest men will be the best men and that God can disclose through them divine laws that they will establish them among the people.

"Careful reading of current political discussions would lead us to suppose that independence of trusts is the paramount issue. It is not. There are two kinds of corporations. One is incorporated production and the other is incorporated destruction.

"If we are to remain a republic, all the people must make the law and all the people must obey the law. If Long Beach ordains complete prohibition no one has a right to sell liquor whether it is a beautiful hotel that looks like a million dollars or a drug store that looks like thirty cents. But incorporated production is not per se a foe of civil liberty. Thank God for high powered men. American life is infinitely stronger because we have produced many such. The people need not seek to exterminate them. Popular government does not banish the man who does things; it only insists that he mind the rules of the road.

"The whole family of perdition which center in the liquor business is nothing but incorporated destruction. If we make our modern declaration of independence good and if the people rule we must begin by saying 'The American saloon must go.' State after State, county after county, and city after city have discovered that the saloon does not pay. The great majority of the people are against the whisky business and all its sisters, and the will of the people shall prevail. Today one-half the territory of the United States is under prohibition and more than one-third of her people dwell where there is no legalized saloon. The world is waking up to the paramount issue. In England we see what has never appeared before, the established church is joining with the free churches in the support of Mr. Asquith's new bill restricting the public-house evil. The English church is fighting beer, though the great brewers have threatened to cut off donations to that church.

"After all, it is a question of faith. The reason the saloon has not been routed before is that men, yes Christian men, have not dared to believe that the will of the people could rule. Today we find that popular government can enforce law. On June 3, 1906, there were over 200 illegal saloons in Kansas City, Kan. Thirty days later there was not one and the traffic of the streets was impeded by the frantic efforts of the great breweries to get their costly fixtures over the State line. In spite of hard times, the banks added over $3,000,000 to their deposits during the year of real prohibition. The rest of the nation forgot that Kansas' farmers may wear pants that bag at the knees in seeing that they have heads that bulge over the eyes with forceful gray matter. The tide of faith rises; we believe our declaration of independence and the saloon must go."

Highest Patriotism.

At the Universalist services in Cumnock Hall, yesterday, the pastor Rev. C. Ellwood Nash, D.D., took for his theme the progressive ideals which real patriotism must ever be conceiving and obeying. He said, in part:

"Unlike an individual, a country may enjoy perennial youth. Reborn with every generation and keeping pace with time, a thousand years may be as a day in her evolution, and she may ever be turning upon the future the questioning, aspiring look of hope. It is the vice of much of our national sentiment that it draws its inspiration chiefly from the past, rather than from noble dreams of still higher achievement. Splendid, indeed, has been the record viewed as an advance upon what it superseded, but far from satisfying as a finality. The fathers won their honors by daring to take the next step in humanity's forward march; if their spirit controls us we shall evince appreciation of their glory, not mainly by rehearsing it, but by improving upon it. The plan of our Independence Day should sound no requiem but a bugle call to the waiting battle.

"We are often the victims of mere words. Names and epithets exercise a spell over the mind and paralyze its free activity. We shout for liberty and independence, with no true sense of what those terms should mean. We shut the door in the face of new ideas solely because some wit or mud-slinger has given them a bad name. We thus hug the delusion that we are free because America is 'the land of the free;' we deem ourselves patriots because we feel a sentimental sympathy with the martial exploits and sacrifices of the soldier. We almost inevitably link the suggestions of the 'glorious Fourth' with memories and symbols of war, and mimic its tumult and tragedy with toy explosives and sham engagement on sea or land.

"Now, loyalty to country may in rare exigencies demand resort to armed strife, and when that challenge comes, the heroic, prompt response of the citizen is worthy the applause it compels. But the main business of the patriot is surely not concerned with such crises, coming perhaps once a generation and with lessening frequency as the thoughts of men are widened with the progress of the suns. It is not the State as such, but the citizen whose welfare must be the patriot's first study and when we withdraw our eyes from the glamor of mere phrases and governmental mechanism, and fix them on the case of the separate member of the body politic, we can but recognize the patent fact that freedom and independence are still only 'iridescent' dreams,' and that the highest patriotism must busy itself with making them realities.

"What is my country, and why should I cherish her and count her claims supreme? Is it merely the land of my birth or residence, the home also of my kinsmen and associates? Why, then, should the approach of the foreign foe be so detested? Were he to succeed with his invasion, might not his rule be as just and gentle as that to which I am accustomed, and should I not still enjoy my possessions and familiar ways? It might be so, and in that case would a genuine patriotism force me to combat the change of masters with sacrifices which might involve me in sorrows, ruin, death? Is it not possible that men have sometimes deceived themselves into struggles which, however fine in their instances of personal valor and devotion, were not suited to accomplish any actual good for the fighters themselves?

"Only when 'my country' is synonymous with security, or opportunity, or other tangible blessing can it rightly challenge our fullest homage.

"But the most meager and rugged soil may afford this charm, if we see there the privilege of toiling to embody the ideals of a humanity whose happiness is guaranteed by equality of right and mutual helpfulness.

"It is time for us to consider whether the vision of the fathers of a government really for the people and by the people, drawing its just powers from consent of the governed, and founded at last upon the self-evident truth and inalienable rights voiced by the Declaration, does not now summon us to new advances and new evolutions. If we leave off prating about our 'glorious institutions' and attend to the situation of today as it affects classes and individuals, we shall not need to be told that the problem of securing to every one a chance to live and to pursue the common quest of happiness is by no means solved.

"So far from it, there has grown up recently, and been given voice in the highest quarters, a doubt whether the very idea of equality of any sort among men is not a vicious fantasy, whether it is not the plan of providence that the many should serve and be exploited by the few. The highest patriotism must go to the roots of this question, and develop the truth of the Declaration upon firm foundations. It must cease to be appeased by the progress of yesterday and gird itself for the new campaign which await it. Prophet eyes are beholding, and prophet lips forecasting a day of greater freedom in which every individual shall share. Vested interest as always stands athwart the path and denies right of way to these glorious dreams.

"By bloodless strife, let us hope, but by strife nevertheless which will try men's souls, must the issues be settled. There is a call for heroes, for men of faith and foresight, for new declarations, and for the making of other chapters of history more splendid than any ever yet written."

A Christian Nation.

At the First Presbyterian Church yesterday morning the pastor, Dr. W. A. Hunter, preached a sermon appropriate to the national birthday. His text was "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord: Psalm xxxiii:12. He said in part:

"Every nation has a history. If the lines are written in blood and the pages stained with crime it must remain so. The terse and emphatic word of Pilot to the Jews respecting the epitaph over the cross of Jesus, 'What I have written, I have written,' becomes God's word, respecting a nation's record. The history belongs to God as well as to the nation, and every citizen owes it to God and to his own nation to keep his individual record clean. God spreads the history before the eyes of other nations that they may shun the vices and imitate the virtues. So any nation that tolerates iniquity may read its doom in characters as legible as those traced by the mysterious fingers upon the walls of the King's palace, 'God hath numbered the kingdom and finished it.'

"The history of every sinful nation has been verified in the Prophets' words: 'The nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish. Yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted.' God has thus spread out page after page to teach wisdom.

"God rules. Sometimes it seems that some men are almost supreme. The liberty of millions may seem to depend on the signature of a Lincoln. The destiny may appear to hang on the strong arm of a Grant, but after all these men are only agents—wheels in the great moral machinery, for back of all human agencies is the Divine will and power. Study history and learn that in every case the nations that recognized God and sought faithfully to obey Him have been exalted. The righteous in all ages have been the true strength and real conservators of a nation, often averting calamity, and restoring strength and blessing.

"Sodom is a striking illustration. They were obdurate and God-defying. God gave them a fair chance and opportunity. One righteous man, Abraham, plead for them and God said, 'I will not destroy it if ten be found there.' Righteousness then and now was and is the chief factor in the safety, the continuance and prosperity of the city and nation. Apply it to our nation and our times.

"I wish to specify two great sins found not only in low places of society, as the dramshops and gambling rooms and race course, low kennels of vice where the infamous and abandoned resort, but also in high walks.

"First, Sabbath desecration. Of Israel God said, 'They pollute my Sabbaths. Then I said I will pour out my fury upon them.' God has never changed His command 'Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.' Yet business, traffic, travel and pleasure are opening avenues of sin in this direction. It must be averted or invite the indignation of the Almighty as before. A nation may for a time essay. Like Israel they may disregard it. Like France they may flaunt the flag of defiance in God's face, but sooner or later its doom will come. Let us beware.

"Second, Intemperance. It is a reproach to the nation that suffers it. It is a viper that stings and poisons all that is good and beautiful. It is a social and national evil that must be met with strong arm, and mighty intellect and telling tongue. I am no pessimist, always deploring the degeneracy of the times—the wickedness and weakness of the government, but evils exist and must be resisted, and I believe there is enough good leaven cast into society to leaven the whole.

"There are in politics some Judases, some unprincipled men, but many noble ones into whose hands you can put no bribes and who would say with Henry Clay, 'I would rather be right than President.' Give us more like Moses: like the three Hebrews in the fiery furnace; like Daniel in the lions' den. Men, who in the face of sin and temptation and bribes and threats will say with Paul: 'None of these things move me.'

"Give us the family altars in all Christian homes. Give us the right training in the young peoples' societies; right teaching in day schools and Sunday schools and we will have such men and there will be no bounds of the nation's growth and moral power.

"No nation can rise above its individual parts. Therefore we, as individuals must measure up to the high moral standards. As a nation we find our motto on our currency, 'In God we trust.' So God has watched and blessed us and here God purposes making the grandest display of His power and grace. Let our sympathies and our plans of evangelization be broad as the country for which we act, and high and noble as the love that inspires it. Let us keep before us the Bible, the cross and the Constitution of the United States, and we will go on and up in political purity, social elevation and religious progress.

"We are proud of our country and all say, 'With all thy faults, I love thee still.'"

LITTLE THINGS ABOUT DRESS.

COUNT FOR MUCH IN THE SUCCESS OF A COSTUME.

Neckwear an Expensive Item. Belts to Match the Frock—Bags on the List of Dress Accessories. Parasols Bewitching—Novelties in Ruches—Belt Buckles.

[New York Sun:] The little things of dress make a shocking hole in a modest dress allowance nowadays, but while they may promote sins of covetousness and extravagance they do unquestionably add much to the charm of the fashionable woman's toilets.

The neckwear alone is an expensive item today if one indulges in the newest fancies in this line and wears chic cravats, frills, jabots and rabats with her blouses and her low cut coats. The hand embroidered linen collars, hand embroidered bows and tabs, guimpes and lace standing collars are often even more expensive than the frilly things, unless the latter are made rich with real laces, and yet one needs them all to complete a summer outfit.

The high turned down linen collars, hand embroidered, are still much in evidence and are worn with the new jabots, the big fluffy bows of net and lace, the little hand embroidered bows and tabs indiscriminately; but there are many high transparent collars of lace or lace and lingerie or lace and net in neckwear displays this spring.

These are cut with the high points behind the ears, are carefully boned and are finished at the bottom by some sort of little cravat which will hide the line of junction with the blouse and tie in front. Sometimes jabots or plaited frills accompany these collars, and they are considerably worn in place of the stiff linen collar, though they are not appropriate in all cases in which the later might be appropriately worn.

There are too high collars of plaited net, with scarfs which are brought back to the front and knotted once or tied in a big bow. When they are merely knotted the ends of the tie are finished with full plaited frills.

Such things may be inexpensively made by any woman who has the time and patience to fuss over them and has some slight skill in needlework. The same thing is true of the big Merry Widow bows of net and the jabots and frills. It is the little hand embroidered bow or tab that seriously bothers the average needlewoman.

Belts are another of the problems for the woman of moderate means. One must have them to match various frocks or hats and gloves and shoes, and they come in most tempting guise.

For many purposes the plain leather belt with smart buckle is the most modish belt that can be worn, and there is great variety in this field. But the French belts of webbing, leather trimmed, have great popularity, and the designers bring them out in all grades at prices ranging from 50 cents to $35.

The soft scarf girdle, of which we have spoken on the opposite page, has cut into the vogue of the elaborate belt in Paris, and the popularity of the princess and semi-princess jumper frocks also militate against the belt; but coat and skirt costumes with blouses still have their important place, and that fact insures ready sales for smart belts.

The embroidered linen belt will be worn again with linen frocks, and such belts fitted with little embroidered change purses are among the novelties. The belt slips through straps on the back of the small purse, which is usually no wider than the belt itself. The small embroidered bags matching the linen belts popular last summer are seen again.

Purses and bags of all kinds are on the list of necessary dress accessories, and while there is little that is absolutely new in this field little variations of shape and fittings give variety, and the beauty of the colorings in the leather is a never ending surprise. Pigskin still holds its popularity for general shopping purposes, but the bag of the well dressed woman should on most occasions match her toilet, and the leather dyers have made this possible.

Some beautiful blues are offered in the glossy moroccos, which perhaps, take colors better than any other leather, and the browns and biscuit and pongee tones are myriad, echoing the demand for such colorings in costumes. Particularly beautiful bags, purses and vanity cases in white are provided for the summer season, and patent leather, for a time discredited by the designers, is used for some extremely attractive imported models.

A moderate sized bag, perfectly square and with a little strap at the top, through which the hand may be slipped, in place of the handles, is new, and the bracelet bands, one of which is illustrated here, are novelties. These bags may have either two handles or one, and are sometimes fitted with the double handles and two gold bracelets, through which the hand is passed, though the bag of the sketch with its bracelet of leather buckling round the wrist is in better taste.

There are a few new things in neck ruches—variations of the Pierrot ruche in plaited net or tulle with satin bows, which are knotted coquettishly at the side and a little to the back instead of in the front. Similar effects are achieved in ostrich feathers, but the tulle ruche is really smarter.

As for the parasols, they are simply bewitching this year. At another time we will discuss them more at length, but now the charming models in printed cottons claim our attention.

The mania for the ancient printed cottons, toiles de Jouy, cretonne, etc., has extended to the province of the parasol, and though the genuine antiques which Parisians resurrected for waistcoats and cuffs and collars when the fad was launched last year were not available for parasol purposes, the manufacturers have brought out most delightful stuffs on imitation of the old weaves, designs and colorings.

These have been seized upon by the parasol makers and are used as effective borders for plain one tone covers or for whole covers. The loveliest thing of the kind we have seen was a parasol which has been sketched for us, a parasol with a cover of heavy cotton in unbleached tint over whose surface birds were posed among reeds, flowers and branches.

NEVER DANGEROUS.

TAIL ENDERS WHITEWASHED.

Fail to Hit Nagle Safely When Hits Mean Runs.

Los Angeles, 4; Oakland, 0.

Nagle was Nagle yesterday, and that means that the cellar champions from Oakland couldn't have told the difference between the home plate and the north pole, for they never saw either.

Hardy was stuck in to heave the ball for the tail enders and he actually did it better than Nagle, but the fellows behind him were up against too much class. The majority of them biffed the ball easily, but when they made a bluff at going any further than the next station, some of the brakemen generally threw them off the train. With such fielding and pitching, Bill Bryan has more chance than they had, and that's only enough to make one laugh.

The cellar champs soon saw they were drawing against an ace in the hole, and before the deal was ended they really believed it, for of the thirty-five men who shuffled up to the plate to bat in the nine innings, but one reached third base, and he arrived in the ninth inning when it was too late.

Van Haltren must have said many things that one hears at labor union picnics, for his dead ones had a lot of hard luck. In the second inning Truck Eagan tried to throw the ball over the right-hand bleachers, and in the first round Pitcher Hardy attempted to invent a new curve and it had such a sweep on it that Catcher Slattery could hardly see it, much less stop it. In addition to these catastrophies the Oaks couldn't do anything with their swats after they made them, for the succeeding gentleman who went to the starting point generally biffed the ball into a fielder's hands and the first gentleman arrived at the next bag in time to find the ball there.

It was very disheartening for the visitors and the acted as if they wanted to throw themselves away in every inning. Hardy tried it in the first inning and helped a run to score that was enough to win the game. With two out, Dillon singled to left and then Hardy tried out his new curve. It tipped the ends of Slattery's fingers and bounded against the grand stand, and when the catcher recovered it, Dillon was on third base. Then Hardy walked Wheeler, and when George made a bluff at stealing to second, Dillon dashed to the plate before Wheeler was caught.

In the next inning, Smith bounced an easy grounder to Eagan and he made a fearful heave of the ball over first base, Smith going to second. He ran to third on Ellis's out, and after Delmas had fouled out, Smith easily scored on Happy Hogan's two-bagger to the left fence.

Four swats helped the two final runs, and in these the locals showed they are there on bunts. Delmas singled to left and was safe at second, when Hardy tried to force him with Happy Hogan's bounce. Nagle followed with a poke over third base and when Delmas tried to score from second on this, he was thrown out at the plate by Cook. Hogan ran to third on this and scored when Bernard hit safely to left. Altman got the ball and shot it to the plate to catch Hogan, but the throw was wild and Nagle scored.

GET EVEN BREAK.

JONES BEATEX AGAIN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Portland broke even with San Francisco in the usual Sunday double-header today. Across the bay at Freeman's Park, it was Hard Luck Oscar Jones who first gave the Beavers a lead by which they eventually won, 5 to 1, but in the afternoon it was different. Harry Sutor, who had shut the Portlanders out earlier in the week, was sending the benders across like clockwork, and shut out the northern aggregation, 7 to 0, allowing them but three hits. Marshall, who started to pitch, was wild and freely hit, and McFarland, who followed, was in the same condition. Add to that the deplorable fielding of the McCredie aggregation, and you can understand why they lost.

Berry put across the first San Francisco run in the third inning, when he singled through short, was advanced on a sacrifice to second, and finally scored on George Hildebrand's hard hit infield ball.

Another was made in the fifth, when Mohler and Hildebrand walked, with two out, and Zeider was safe on Cooney's error. Williams was hit on the arm, forcing in the captain.

The seventh and eighth were also good innings. In the seventh Sutor singled to center, and Mohler sacrificed the pitcher along. Hildebrand walked, and with Zeider out, Williams hit a long two-bagger that struck the left-field fence and scored both men.

Two errors by Cooney in handling gorunders were chiefly the fault in the eighth. Of the two so placed on first, McArdle was scored by Sutor's single and Berry tallied on McFarland's error in throwing to first. Mohler sacrificed with a long fly to center and Sutor scored from third on the throw in.

In the morning the Beavers commenced to find Jones after the third inning, and kept it up until they had a couple of runs. Zeider was substituted in the eighth and worked two innings. Kinsella was in form and held the locals to three hits and a single tally. The scores:

WON IN FIRST.

HITS ARE SCARCE.

The Eagles won from the Christopher-Levys in the Southern State League at Joy Park yesterday afternoon by the score of 4 to 2. The game was decided in the opening inning when Lyman allowed the Eagle stickers to bang him at will, Davis, Cleveland and Haight each scoring a tally. Berryman, catcher for the losing aggregation, smashed a finger in the second inning and suffered much inconvenience during the remainder of the game.

Bhumgara Proves Superiority of Ball Over Bat.

Walker and McCombe Make Top Score for Winners.

The third of the second series of interleague cricket matches, between the Marylebones and Wanderers, was won by the former at Vineyard Station yesterday afternoon by 26 runs.

Heavens, the Wanderer captain, having won the toss, put the Marylebones in to bat first. Cochrane and Walker went in to face Stanton and Tempest. Cochrane opened his account with a 4 to square leg off Stanton, the only runs of the opening over. Walker then faced Tempest, who sent down a maiden. Stanton then took the ball and likewise sent down a maiden. Walker then broke his "duck" by neatly cutting Tempest for 2. With only 6 on the board, Cochrane was clean bowled by Stanton. Packman then went in and played out the balance of the over.

Without opening his account, Packman was clean bowled by Tempest and gave place to McCombe. That batsman at once started in to score by getting Tempest nicely away to square leg for 2 in the last ball of the over. Walker then put Stanton to leg for 4. McCombe then made a powerful hit to leg for 4, off Tempest, followed by a single to mid on. He then got Stanton away to leg for 4, followed by another leg hit for 2. At 37, Hunt relieved Stanton and his first delivery should have dismissed McCombe, who skied the ball to the deep field, but Tempest failed to hold it.

Watts then relieved Tempest and with his third delivery caught and bowled the left-hander, who retired for 20, made by powerful hits to leg. Ramsden then went in and played out the balance of the over. Walker then hit Watts to long off for 2, followed by a 3 to square leg, after which Rasmden broke his "duck" with a single to mid on, followed by a 2 to long leg. With the total at 57, and after he had just snicked Hunt for 4, Ramsden was smartly taken behind the wickets by Thomas. Bhumgara, the next man, played out the balance of the over. Hunt then sent down a maiden. With the second delivery of Watt's next over, Bhumgara had his leg stump knocked clean out of the ground, and was retired for a "duck."

Kitchin then joined Walker, and scored a single to square leg off Watts, Walker hitting that same bowler to leg, also for 1. Walker then neatly cut Hunt to the boundary for 4 in the last ball of the over. Kitchin then made a powerful hit to the square leg boundary for 4 off Watts, followed by another 4 to leg off Hunt. With 72 on the board, Walker was clean bowled by Watts. Going in first at 2:05 o'clock, he kept his end up until 3:15 o'clock. His score included three 4's, one 3 and four 2's, and he gave a splendid exhibition of defensive play.

Giles, who then went in, was out first ball, leg before wicket, and with the total still unchanged Kitchin was smartly caught out by Le Bas, at mid on, off Heavens, who had previously relieved Hunt. Wright then went in and played out the balance of the over. Brown, after making two nice hits for 2 apiece, sent up a catch to Gadsdon at point, which was safely held. Hunt, the last man, then joined Wright, the latter breaking his "egg" with a single off Watts. Hunt then made a single to leg off Watts, while Wright put Heavens to square leg for 2 in the following over.

Hunt then neatly cut Stanton, who had relieved Watts, for 2. At 93, Gadsdon went on in place of Heavens, but was promptly hit to square leg by Wright for 4, who followed this stroke up with a single to the slips. Hunt then further increased his score by cutting Gadsdon hard for 2. Four runs short of the century, Hunt again went on bowling in place of Stanton, and with his second delivery, caught and bowled Wright; Hunt carrying out his bat for 5. These two batsmen between them put on 17 before the fall of the last wicket, which was a very creditable performance.

HEAVENS SCORES.

At 4 o'clock Thomas and Roden opened the Wanderers' innings. The former breaking his "duck" with a single to mid on, off McCombe. Ramsden, who bowled from the opposite crease, sent down a maiden. With only one on the board, McCombe upset Roden's wicket, that batsman retiring in favor of Heavens, who played out the balance of the over. Thomas then made a single to leg off Ramsden, while Heavens broke his "egg" with one to mid off. With only 6 on the board, Thomas sent up a catch behind the wickets, which Packman accepted. Tempest, the next man in, hit McCombe to square leg for 4, followed by a drive to the deep field for a like amount, off Ramsden, in the following over. With only 28 on the board, Tempest was then run out, after making 15 in punishing style. Hunt then joined Heavens, who was batting with great confidence. Bhumgara at this stage of the game relieved Ramsden and sent down a maiden. Cochrane then relieved McCombe at the opposite crease, but had his first delivery sent to the deep field by Heavens, followed by a single to cover point.

PARSEE IS DEADLY.

That batsman then got Bhumgara way to square leg for 2, followed by a single to the slips. This last hit should have dismissed Heavens, but Brown failed to hold the ball. With only 40 on the board, Hunt was dismissed leg before wicket by the Parsee. With the total unchanged, Watts was clean bowled by Bhumgara. Five good wickets being down for only 40 runs. Mould then partnered Heavens, and prevented the East Indian from performing the "hat trick" by straight driving that bowler for a single. After making a 2 to long on and a single to mid off, Mould was then clean bowled by Cochrane.

Bhumgara then sent down a maiden. With the total unchanged, Gadsdon was smartly caught out by Bhumgara in the slips, off Cochrane. Seven wickets being down for only 46 runs, Stanton then went in and opened his account with a single to mid off. Three runs later, however, Stanton was clean bowled by Bhumgara. Le Bas, the next man in, neatly cut Cochrane for 2, followed by a single to leg. Heavens then got that bowler away to square leg for 2 in the last ball of the over. Le Bas then put Bhumgara to leg for 2, followed by a powerful hit to square leg for 4.

At 60, Giles went on bowling in place of Cochrane, but was promptly hit to mid on for 2. With the total at 70, Heavens was dismissed leg before wicket and retired for 29, compiled by careful and pleasing cricket. Still 26 runs short of the Marylebone score, Heavens, Sr., the last man, then went in, but was bowled first ball by the Parsee. With Le Bas not out 13, the innings came to a close at 5:15 o'clock for the modest total of 70 runs.

There seems to be some misunderstanding as regards the rule for leg before wicket. The M.C.C. rules for 1908 clearly state that: "The ball must pitch in a straight line between wicket and wicket. Umpires should, therefore, memorise this simple rule before accepting the honor of officiating in that capacity.

G. M. Salter and S. C. Hardwicke acted as umpires, while W. Lane officiated as scorer. Following is the full score and bowling analysis:

New World's Record.

NEW YORK, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Going at the rate of 64.290 miles an hour, Jake de Roscier, the daring motorist of Springfield, Mass., thrilled 6000 spectators as he dashed around the new six-lap banked track at Clifton, N. J., this afternoon, and established a new world's professional mile record of 56 seconds flat, replacing the old mark of 56 2-5 seconds, made by Fred Hoyt of Boston, on a four-lap track in 1905. This he accomplished immediately after winning the ten-mile professional race by outspeeding his nearest rival, J. King of Newark, by two laps.

Champion Wins.

LONDON, July 5.—Cecil (Hunch) Fars, holder of the professional court tennis championship of the world, defeated E. Jenson, challenger for the title, yesterday.

Jack Sullivan Quits.

TONOPAH, July 5.—Terry Mustain was yesterday awarded the decision over Jack Twin Sullivan in the thirteenth round before 2500 people. The fight was tame up to the twelfth and in the thirteenth Sullivan refused to fight, claiming his hand was broken.

Rube Smith Wins.

GOLDFIELD, July 5.—Rube Smith of Denver was given the decision over Frank Fields of Goldfield at the end of twenty rounds of fierce fighting at the Hippodrome yesterday afternoon.

FINISH ONE-TWO.

DOUGLAS PAIR BEST MARKSMEN.

MAKE HIGHEST SCORES AT LOCAL PISTOL RANGE.

Many Shooters Are Absent Owing to Effects of the Saturday Holiday. Fair Scores Made in Practice for the Big Match With St. Louis Club Next Sunday.

It was a case of the "morning after" with the hand-gun cranks yesterday at the Bishop-street pistol range. Half the old standbys were absent, either on trips out of the city or reducing aching heads left over from the holiday. Even the small squad that put in an appearance shot as though they expected a 10-inch cannon cracker to go off directly behind them, just as they pulled the trigger.

From the stack-up Sunday, the Colonial Revolver Club will have sweet revenge next Sunday, when the return match with that hitherto unbeaten organization comes off. Los Angeles is the only club that has managed to turn the trick of beating them.

President Holcomb put in an appearance with his right hand done up in bandages, and it was learned that he had picked up one of the numerous cannon crackers that had supposedly gone out.

Shooting with his left hand, Holcomb did some very fine work. A. B. Douglas, as usual, climbed up on top of the heap, boring out the fine score of 95, his score in detail being half nines and half tens, even shooting that turned some of the other Fourth of July wrecks green with envy. I. C. Douglas landed second for even shooting, although Crossman, shooting a .22 caliber squib load pistol, landed second high score with 90.

Eisenmeyer and Norton shot a match for the club championship calf-skin medal, Norton scoring 31 and Eisenmeyer going him better with 32 out of a possible 100.

Mrs. J. E. Holcomb and Mrs. E. C. Crossman shot an interesting match, but it had to be stopped, as the marker complained that unless some one hit the target once in a while he was going to quit the job. The match was declared a tie, with seven misses and three hits each, and the special medal was awarded Mrs. Holcomb, who won the shoot-off by landing a shot on the edge of the pit, and knocking a peck of dirt down the marker's neck. Much interest was taken in this match by the large gallery.

The team was selected by the new system of a team committee of four members and the team itself was made up of the members having the highest average for the four past shoots, irrespective of their record before this time. This does away with the members who only put in an appearance at team shoots and expect to be given places on the strength of their past reputation.

The scores yesterday were as follows:

A. B. Douglas	95	89	87	85	82
E. C. Crossman (pistol)	90	87	82	76	75
I. C. Douglas	87	84	85	82	80
W. E. Smith	87	87	84	84	83
J. E. Holcomb	84	83	81	76	76
H. D. Thaxter	83	80	..	..	..
J. M. Smith	82	78	78	74	71
J. B. Fox	76	73	67	..	..
W. G. Eisenmeyer	74	70	66	32	..

H. G. Norton	61	41	31	21	..
Mrs. J. E. Holcomb	56	43	..	..	..

It is hoped that some improvement may result during the week or the Missouri club will have a walkover. The conditions for the match with Colonial are as follows: Ten men per team, thirty shots per man at fifty yards, scores to be wired at the finish of the match, targets to be exchanged by mail. The Los Angeles team is as follows:

A. B. Douglas, I. C. Douglas, W. A. Wright, J. B. Fox, W. R. Cutts, D. H. MacFarland, C. W. Linder, W. E. Smith, J. E. Holcomb, E. C. Crossman.

RELIABILITY RUN.

ARREST ONE CONTESTANT.

Charged With Killing Horse Near Escondido.

Fifteen Drivers Still Have Perfect Scores.

Second Day More Difficult Than First.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RIVERSIDE, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] E. B. Smith, one of the entrants in the reliability run, was arrested by an irate constable at Temecula this afternoon. The officer drew a large revolver on the Los Angeles man as he was driving through the little town, and, though Smith protested, he was taken into custody and was forced to drive with his wife to the Town Hall. On a telephone warrant from Escondido, the Los Angeles autoists are charged with having killed a horse near Escondido. Smith is driving car No. 8. He secured bail and resumed the run. He was unable to make the Riverside control because of the delay at Temecula, and lost many points.

Of the twenty cars which started on the reliability run from Los Angeles, fifteen have reached Riverside with perfect scores. Tanned to a rich brown, the automobilists rolled into Riverside about 5 o'clock. The heat over the valley route was intense, but the run has been enjoyable thus far, and no accident has marred it.

E. B. Smith and wife, in an Elmore, who lost their way on the down trip, failed to report at the Elsinore control on time. J. S. Green, in an Auburn, reached Elsinore three minutes too late.

With such a large percentage of the machines holding perfect scores, the touring contest up the valley assumed the proportions of a real fight for each point.

Early breakfast was served at the Hotel Glenwood and the machines crossed the ferry to the control on the San Diego side at 7 o'clock. As if on a record run, each car shot out of San Diego for the race up through the mountains. An extension of fifteen minutes was made in the time allowance for the reason because of the extreme difficulty several had experienced on the down trip. There was some objection to the change in the rules, as those who had made the controls comfortably thought the first time allowance of 45 minutes should stand.

The first control was established at Escondido, thirty-five miles from San Diego, with two hours and fifteen minutes in which to make the journey. Winding over the hills, the cars passed and repassed each other in the struggle to get in on time. The struggle ended a mile before reaching Escondido. It was easy.

After waiting in the broiling sun to see themselves being penalized, the cars began to roll into the control in the two three order. Each wasted but a minute, and they were off again for Elsinore, which lay baking in the sun forty miles away.

Steadily the sun poured down on the dusty travelers and again strenuous efforts were made to reach the Elsinore control. Four hours was the allowance given from Escondido to Elsinore. Again it was easy and the running machines had another long wait. This was more bearable, as the drivers and others spent the interval in the plunge, waiting to check in time.

After leaving Elsinore, the machines dropped down into the sun-scorched valley for the thirty-mile run to Riverside. The first car to reach here was the tourist roadster, which checked into the control about at 4:45. Then the machines began to arrive one by one and a fair-sized crowd gave the dust-covered tourists a glad welcome. There was an informal reception in the shade court of the Glenwood Hotel while the incidents of the run were discussed.

E. A. Raney and wife were among the first to arrive here. Mrs. Raney, who is an enthusiastic autoist, took the wheel of the Stoddard-Dayton runabout at the summit of the Box Springs grade and drove the car into the Riverside control on time. For the entire 125-mile run up the inland route the car maintained an average speed of twenty-two miles an hour.

Following closely in the wheel prints of the Stoddard-Dayton came the Auburn touring car driven by P. B. Jeffries, which lost its chance for a perfect score on the run down. Jeffries drove headily, and thus far has lost no additional points.

Miss Gladys Moore, the intrepid girl driver, has pulled her Cadillac into Riverside with a perfect score. It was necessary for the plucky young woman to take her full time allowance at Elsinore because of the strain of the fierce contest from San Diego up. She swung her machine around the difficult mountain grades like a veteran and reached Escondido on time. The heat caused her much fatigue during the sixty-mile drive to Elsinore. With her wrists almost numb, Miss Gladys drove up to the Glenwood with a few minutes to spare and a perfect score. She had driven the long grind on her nerve and a rest is necessary before she can resume the short run into Los Angeles.

H. E. Gilley is making a wonderful run with his Autocar roadster. He plugged steadily over the roads, maintaining an eighteen-mile-an-hour gait, satisfied to make each control on time. He was passed many times by later model cars, but Gilley is driving a winning race and is almost certain to finish with a perfect score. He has had no trouble and says he will take the little "boat" in the next run with a sealed bonnet.

Mrs. W. J. Burt is another almost certain winner. Her Tourist roadster is making a good record over the roads and Mrs. Burt is establishing a reputation as a road driver. She has many of the men drivers backed off the boards. Mile after mile has been reeled off by the car without mishap.

The cars will start for Los Angeles at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning. They will drive to San Bernardino, thence to Claremont and to Los Angeles and should reach the city shortly after noon.

HARD TUGGING.

BIEL VICTOR IN WRESTLING.

DEFEATS VANDER PRIEM AFTER FIERCE TUSSLES.

First Two Rounds of Twenty Minutes Each Results in a Draw, but Biel Wins in Last Part of Third Round—Big Indian Is Looking for an Opponent.

Billy Biel succeeded in defeating William Vander Priem yesterday at Chutes Park in one of the hardest wrestling matches seen in this part of the country. The men were to wrestle sixty minutes, in three twenty-minute rounds. The first two were draws, but in th elatter part of the third bout Biel succeeded in getting the toe grip on Priem, and after a minute of hard struggling had his man flat on his back, and Referee J. Hogan raised Beil's hand as a sign of victory.

Neither of the men have been on the mat for some time. Priem says that he has not wrestled for four months, and the winner's last experience in tumbling was in his match with Kid Welsh, which was held several months ago at San Pedro. Biel was at least fifteen pounds heavier than his opponent, and although he was untrained, Vander considers the weight the chief reason for his defeat. He wants to meet Biel again after they have had a few weeks to train, but it is doubtful if this card can be arranged, as Manager Lehigh wishes to match men of equal weight.

Referee Hogan called the men to the center of the stage and explained to them that they were to follow the catch-as-catch-can style for three twenty-minute bouts. After his instructions, Priem tried for a center hold but missed and Biel missed a half-Nelson. Biel threw his man, but failed to place him on his back. The men again tried for a hold and Priem almost got a half-Nelson on Biel, but the latter freed himself.

In this round Vander made his best showing, although throughout he was on the defensive. Several times he dropped on his hands and knees, allowing Biel to take the aggressive.

From the opening of the next round it was plain to be seen that it was all Biel. He started in briskly and kept it up until they were parted at the end of the alloted twenty minutes. Time and again Priem by clever manipulation succeeded in parting himself from the deadly Nelson. Four times in this round he rose from the mat when it looked as if it was impossible for him to move. He showed cleverness and knowledge in all his defensive work, but he was up against a strong man and when it came to strength against strength he had the worst of it. At the end of the twenty minutes both men were on the mat, with litle show of either being mat-backed.

At the opening of the last down it looked as if Biel would close it before it was really started. Biel by getting a toe hold on Vander turned him around, then quickly changing his hold, dumped him straight over on his head, letting him fall on the mat. But Priem was too fast and before the victor could change his hold, Priem was up and looking for more. After the men had feinted, Vander rushed for a Nelson hold. Billy side-steeped and tried for one himself, and as the two men fell Biel succeeded in getting a toe hold on his man and in a fraction of a minute the trick was done, and Priem was on his back.

S. Kakihara and S. Seki opened the card with a jui-jitsu match. These two little Japs had a lively tumbling match. They fought fast for fifteen minutes, before Kakihara could safely down his opponent. Jui-jitsu is a much more clever game than American wrestling, and it depends more on cleverness than bull strength to succeed. These two men will probably be matched again.

Jack Hogan, who refereed the match yesterday, will probably be seen on the mat next week. He weighs 170 pounds, and has had several years of experience with wrestlers, and should give any wrestler of his weight a good run for his money. He has met some of the best men in the country, and he claims that he can make a creditable showing against any one his weight.

The big Indian Chief, Middlesky, was on hand yesterday, and he seems anxious to find an opponent.

NOTHING IN IT.

NORTHERN SPORTS SCOUT FAKE STORY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In all the talk today over the lightweight championship battle yesterday, few except poor losers really expressed a belief that Gans faked. Some one sent the fake story to the East, but there is nothing in it. The result was simply a sensational upset which is unparalleled in the ring since Corbett knocked out old John L. Sullivan at New Orleans. There was no inducement for Gans to throw the fight as all his friends had backed him heavily, including his manager, Selig, who lost $5000.

But the main reason why Gans could never have consented to throw the fight was his hatred of Nelson. He would easily have given his end of the purse to demonstrate that he was the Dane's master. This feeling is due to Nelson's constant talk about the Goldfield fight that he had outpointed and that he practically had whipped.

Gans was more surprised at the way he blew up in the ring than Nelson himself. At the end of the first round Gans warned his seconds he was losing his strength. Gans trained entirely for wind and strength, but these failed him early.

Especially did he complain of his legs which felt like lead. It was simply age that took the suppleness and spring out of him when Nelson set the pace and hammered Gans over the head with his savage half-arm jabs.

Manager Selig, speaking for Gans today said:

"Gans trained wrong and wasn't in condition. I never favored so much hard work and cutting out of boxing. In my opinion he was stale and the fact that he tired in the first round proves this. Gans will not retire. He will want to make a match with Welsh or McFarland, and after that get a return match with Nelson. Gans, if he is right, can whip Nelson."

Gans talks of retiring, but as Battling Britt has become Nelson's manager there is no probability of this. Gans will try to match Nelson with McFarland or Welsh, as there would be good money in each fight.

PACKY AFTER BAT.

WILL BET REAL MONEY.

Packy McFarland, the Chicago fighter, was a very much disgusted boy yesterday over the decision of Referee Jim Jeffries in the Welsh battle on Saturday and naturally thought that he should have had the decision. Hundreds declared Welsh was entitled to it and many others say a draw was fair to both men. Post mortems, however, are only good for dead ones and neither of these pugs are, for both are anxious for more fighting.

McFarland will leave here Wednesday for San Francisco to look over the ground, and Manager Gilmore stated last night that he would post $5000 for a match with Bat Nelson for a twenty-five round fight in San Francisco or Los Angeles or any place, at the lightweight limit, but would not go over twenty-five rounds. He declined to say at what hour McFarland would make the weight.

Jeffries will make a proposition to the fighters tomorrow for a return match for September 1 or September 9, but McFarland intends to see what offer he can get from the various promoters for a match with Nelson. Welsh is waiting for something to turn up and is ready to meet any one at the lightweight limit. He is a very clever boy, but locally is not thought strong enough to go against such a tough proposition as Nelson for a long fight.

JOY IN HEGEWISCH.

BAT'S FRIENDS CELEBRATE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There is joy in Hegewisch, now called Burnham by the postoffice authorities. Bat Nelson, the Columbus of the South Chicago hamlet, is once more king.

The Hegewisch hoi polloi never doubted Bat. In the ups and downs of his career it has trudged after him faithfully. When the big news came of Bat's decisive victory over Gans, Hegewisch, otherwise a quiet, church-going suburb, celebrated. It was a wild orgy. Cheering like mad, Bat's faithful followers paraded the streets with a band in the lead.

Nelson's mother was overcome with joy when she was told of his victory. She said she never doubted for a moment but that her boy would win.

GALVESTON'S PLAN IN ACTION.

ALMOST EIGHT YEARS OF GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION.

Business of City Is Divided Into Four Departments—All Branches of the City Work Go Along Harmoniously and Economically—City Club Manages Elections.

I venture to suggest that there are two things to be done of vital importance, both of which require the highest degree of intelligence. One is that for the solution of the complicated questions that are now before us, government should be simplified in the highest degree. And to simplify is the function of learning. The other is that responsibility shall be fixed, so that the people may know whom to hold responsible for failures to produce good government. The fixing of responsibility is a matter for the highest intelligence and courage.—[Secretary Elihu Root at Harvard University.

The city of Galveston, after long experiment, has reached the definite conclusion that it has at least partly solved the problem of municipal government with its commission plan—a simple and direct administration of the city's business by a Mayor-president and four commissioners elected at large.

Originally, Galveston was governed by a Mayor, elected by the voters of the entire city, and twelve aldermen elected by the respective voters of each of the twelve city wards. This was a most unsatisfactory system, and was changed for a plan calling for sixteen aldermen, four elected at large and twelve by wards.

This change was a failure.

The number was reduced back to twelve and the aldermen were all elected at large. This was an improvement, but still unsatisfactory.

On Sept. 8, 1900, the great storm struck Galveston. The old government broke down. The "Deep Water Committee," an organization composed of about eighteen business men, upon its own initiative, took up the question of redeeming the city government from bankruptcy and ruin. A subcommittee of three from this organization prepared a new charter embracing the commission plan. This was granted by the Texas Legislature.

HOW IT IS WORKING.

Experience, extending over a period of six and a half years, has proved that the Galveston plan of city government by commission is a success.

There is nothing at all remarkable about the Galveston plan, or about the men that are directing its municipal government. The city commission is simply a board of directors, elected at large by the qualified voters of the entire city every two years. This board is composed of five practical business men, each fully recognizing the fact that economy and business methods, not politics, should be employed in transacting the business affairs of the city.

The business that is being directed by these five men, as agents for the citizens of Galveston, can be briefly summarized as follows: Furnishing the people with pure, wholesome water, adequate sewerage; efficient police and fire protection, well lighted, clean and well paved streets, drainage, sanitation, public hospital for the sick and a careful management of the city finances.

The business of the city is divided into four departments, each department being under the charge and direction of a commissioner. These four commissioners and the Mayor collectively constitute what is termed the "Board of Commissioners of the City of Galveston." The Mayor is the president of the board and the executive head of the city government. He has all of the rights, powers, and duties conferred upon the office of Mayor by the constitution and laws of this State, has the right to vote upon all questions, but has no veto power. Majority rule always prevails.

DIVIDING THE WORK.

The commissioners at the first meeting after their election, or as soon thereafter as possible, by a majority vote, designate from among their members one commissioner who shall be known as "Commissioner of Finance and Revenue," and under whose direction is placed the officers of City Assessor and Colector, the City Treasurer and the City Auditor. He is also charged with the duty of examining into and keeping informed as to the finances of the city, and with the advice and assistance of the other members of the board he prepares the annual budget of the city. Great care is exercised in preparing the city budget and it is never exceeded in expenditures.

Another commissioner is designated as "Commissioner of Water Works and Sewerage." He has under his special charge the construction, maintenance and operation of the water works and sewer system and departments. The superintendents of these two departments and the joint secretary and all employes are under the direction of this commissioner.

Another commissioner is designated as "Commissioner of Streets and Public Property." He has under his special charge the supervision of all matters relating to the streets, alleys and property belonging to the city, and is charged with the duty of lighting the streets, looking after street cleaning and sanitation, the supervision of street paving, construction of drains and seeing that the conditions of the grant of public franchises are complied with.

The City Engineer and his assistants, city health physician, superintendent of drays, health inspectors, city sexton, sidewalk inspector and all employes in these departments, are under the direction of this commissioner.

The other and fourth commissioner is designated as "Police and Fire Commissioner." He has charge of the enforcement of all police regulations and the general supervision over the police and fire departments. The Chief of Police, police officers, chief of the fire department, and firemen, and the judge and clerk of the corporation court are under the direction of this commissioner.

The City Secretary and City Attorney—corresponding to the city counselor of Kansas City, are officers with which the Mayor-president is closely associated, and are usually nominated by him. All officers and employes are nominated by the commissioners in charge of the respective departments, and are elected by a majority vote of the entire board.

The Mayor, or any commissioner, can be removed from office for official misconduct, drunkenness or incompetency upon a proved charge made before a district judge.

LIKE A DIRECTORS' MEETING.

The city charter requires that the board shall meet in regular session at least once every week. These meetings take place every Thursday afternoon at 6 o'clock. These meetings are conducted in a dignified, businesslike manner, and are free from wrangling, disputes and confusion. The commissioners sit around a directors' table, the Mayor presiding.

The City Attorney and the heads of the various departments are required by the city charter to attend all meetings of the board. Little speechmaking is indulged in. Business is transacted promptly, but without any undue haste. All important matters are discussed and differences adjusted in conference. The City Attorney has great influence with the commissioners and his advice is freely sought.

"Too many cooks spoil the broth," is an old saying, which can well be applied to a board of twelve or sixteen Aldermen. In Galveston it has been clearly proven that four commissioners and a Mayor, or a president, can transact the business of sixteen Aldermen and a Mayor, and do it better, more expeditiously and with greater harmony.

WHAT THE COMMISSION HAS ACCOMPLISHED.

The Galveston commission government began September 15, 1901. At that time the city was practically bankrupt; its taxable values were greatly reduced, it owed a heavy floating debt in the shape of scrip issued for current bills; the City Hall, waterworks station, and some of the fire-engine houses were in ruins and the street paving in wretched condition.

One of the first acts of the board was to obtain the services of three eminent engineers, for the preparation of plans for the protection of the city from calamitous overflow. Their report called for a seawall to cost $1,500,000 and the raising of the grade of the city at an expense of $2,000,000. The county built the seawall, and the city has raised the grade. Galveston county has also just issued $500,000 bonds for its share of the cost of a $1,400,000 causeway to connect the island with the mainland. Eighty-five per cent. of the taxable values of Galveston county are located in the city of Galveston, hence the burden of taxation falls largely upon the city proper.

The tax rate for city purposes in 1907 was $1.60 and for State and county purposes $1.14½. Valuations for assessing purposes are quite reasonable, and notwithstanding Galveston's experience and accomplishments, its taxes are lower than any large city in Texas.

The next step of the commission was to get the majority of the bondholders to accept 2 1-2 per cent. interest instead of 5 per cent. for a period of five years.

The taxpayers were the beneficiaries of this compromise, not the city, as the tax levy was reduced accordingly. Out of current revenues from date of their inauguration into office and up to February 29, 1908, the city commission has paid for the following extraordinary expenses:

Brick pavement on sand foundation at $1.40 per yard	170,660
Shell roads	125,000
Storm drains	300,000
Repairs to city hall, new engine house, new water works station and pumping plant	70,000
Total	$802,000

In securing the services of heads of departments and employes the commissioners have ignored political influence. Capacity and fitness alone have been considered. Each commissioner has taken a deep personal interest and a pride in the success of his department.

CITY CLUB AND PEOPLE.

It is true that the commission plan simplifies city government and centralizes responsibility. Under this plan the searchlight of public opinion plays upon the work of each commissioner. If a department is badly managed the commissioner in charge cannot escape censure or blame. Bids must be advertised for in every instance where the expenditure exceeds $500 and no bonds can be issued without a favorable vote of the taxpayers.

It must be remembered, however, that with a commission or any other plan of government the question of men and of citizenship is highly important. No plan ever devised will successfully run itself. Patient labor, personal sacrifice and selfdenial, is the price of good government.

Sleep and Study.

The problem which confronts parents is a serious one. They see their sons and daughters of 12 and 14 years, and those in college as well, anemic, emaciated, with nervous systems preparing for breakdowns. What can they do about it? The family physician will tell them that until the tenth year the child must have 10 or 11 hours' sleep; from the tenth to the sixteenth year, nine hours is the minimum, not as much as the child needs, but the least his body demands when it is obtained regularly. The adult may be able to maintain health on seven or eight hours, but when hard work is done more sleep is required to restore mental and physical vigor.

If the children in the school room are asked how many of them get nine hours' sleep each night, they reply that they have to study. Are the children who are acquiring irritable, nervous systems going to bed about 9:30 during the summer, when they are expected to wake at 7? Are the college students asleep from 10 to half-past 6? Yet those hours would give a minimum for each.

At the end of a period of three months, when the paths through their brain-cells leading to accurate thinking and correct doing have become grass-grown, suffering from loss of sleep, students in school and college go back to take up work where it was left off. Of course they bring their books home; of course they study, and the debt to sleep is increased the first night and each night thereafter.

Study is not the only element causing lack of sleep and nerve strain. In the society column of the papers in any city small enough to have personal mention made of average individuals it will be seen that "Miss Ellen Jones entertained at cards in honor of her fourteenth birthday." Twenty years ago Nellie Jones would have celebrated her fourteenth birthday with her friends in the apple orchard, and the newspapers would have known nothing about it.

NEWS REPORTS FROM CORRESPONDENTS OF THE TIMES.

CITY'S CHARTER IS UNDER FIRE.

ELECTION OF COUNCILMEN BY WARDS PROPOSED.

PASADENA, July 1.—The proposition of electing Councilmen by wards instead of at large will be taken up at a mass meeting in the Board of Trade rooms Wednesday night. For several days C. C. Brown, one of the pioneers of the city, has been circulating a petition favoring the calling of an election for a charter amendment. He maintains that the present system of election is unfair to the wards. Under the régime proposed, a Councilman would more directly look after the welfare of his constituents.

Mayor Earley is said to oppose election by wards on the ground that it has proved in other cities, where such practice is in vogue, that Councilmen are inclined to act solely for their own wards and not for the betterment of the city as a whole.

City Attorney Wood says that there were many points in which the charter is deficient and he believes the wisest course is to appoint a committee of responsible men to go over it and recommend changes and then to bring these before the people prior to submitting them to the Legislature.

FEDERAL BUILDING SITE.

Speculation as to the location of the new Federal building is rife among the business men of the city. Eight sites have been offered, among them the property used by the Academy of the Holy Names, at the southeast corner of Walnut street and Fair Oaks avenue, which can be had for $50,000. Frank C. Monroe offers the southwest corner of Walnut street and Raymond avenue; Mathew Slavin, the northwest corner of Vernon avenue and Colorado street and property at the southwest corner of Delacy and Colorado streets; C. V. Sturdevant and C. J. Platt, the property at the northwest corner of Colorado street and Worcester avenue, the site of the old Presbyterian Church, and also the southeast corner of Colorado street and Los Robles avenue. Mrs. Sarah Harrington offers the corner of Mills and Green street; J. C. Brainard, the southeast corner of Colorado street and Oakland avenue; B. O. Kendall, the corner of Raymond avenue and Pacific Place, and H. H. Goodrich, the southwest corner of Union street and Broadway.

Bids were opened at Washington on July 2. The site at the corner of Worcester avenue and Colorado street is said to be the favorite with the majority of the people, as it is so central. It is valued at about $125,000 by the owners.

All the sites offered will be inspected by government officials and reports will be made to Washington before definite action is taken.

QUEER MOUNTAIN EQUIPAGE.

One of the queerest camping outfits ever seen in this vicinity made a record-breaking trip to Mount Wilson on July 4. Two men and an 18-year-old boy pulle and pushed a pony cart, laden with blankets and provisions for two families, up the toll road in seven hours. The start was made Friday evening and the party traveled most of the night. The nine-months-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Scofield of No. 475 North Wilson avenue, slept all the way to the peak, the parents accompanying the vehicle on foot. Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Bennett of No. 785 North Wilson avenue, their son, Earl, 18 years old; Elisa, Bennett, 11 years old, and Theodore Bennett, 5 years old, were the other members of the party. This is the first time that a vehicle drawn by a man has made the trip up the mountain.

MANY HEAR EVANGELIST.

"Talk not so much about the church, talk more of Jesus Christ," was the message of Rev. Frank Reign Scoville at the evangelistic service at the First Christian Church, yesterday morning. His text for the morning was "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men." His appeal for personal work in saving souls for Christ was strong and convincing. At the close of the service forty persons came forward to the altar. The evening service was also largely attended.

NEW LOCUM TENENS.

Rev. Dr. Badger has been chosen as the locum tenens for All Saints' Episcopal Church. Rev. Milton C. Runkle, the former rector, left for the East last Thursday.

No direct call has been extended to Rev. Leslie E. Learned of Ridgeway, N. J., as it is necessary to wait three weeks after a choice is made by the vestry before official action can be taken.

PASADENA NEWS NOTES.

The Altadena Improvement Association will hold a meeting this evening in Mariposa Hall.

Considerable interest is centered in the opening of the Good Roads campaign at La Casa Grande Hotel, this evening, when Mayor Earley, C. D. Daggett and W. L. Green will address the Pasadena Realty Board. Dinner will be served at 6 o'clock.

No meeting of the directors of the Tournament of Roses Association will be held until after the return of Attorney Walter S. Wright, who is expected to make a full report on the problems confronting that body.

For a Sprained Ankle.

As usually treated, a sprained ankle will disable the injured person for a month or more, but by applying Chamberlain's Liniment and observing the directions with each bottle faithfully, a cure may be effected in many cases in less than one weeks time. This liniment is a most remarkable preparation. Try it for a sprain or bruise, or when laid up with chronic or muscular rheumatism, and you are certain to be delighted with the prompt relief which it affords.—[Adv.

The "Odylic Dynamo."

Mr. R. G. Doyle, whose discovery of his marvelous odylic force has crowded his real estate office with sick and suffering humanity, wishes to announce to his real estate clients that temporarily his personal time and attention at his office, room 501, Frost building, will be devoted to the sick and suffering. Free demonstration every Sunday afternoon from 2 to 3 o'clock at Chutes Pavilion.

PATHETIC.

FRIENDS LAUGH AS HE SINKS.

ALHAMBRA MAN DROWNED AS COMPANIONS LOOK ON.

Butcher Tipped Out of Boat, Calls for Aid But Is Supposed to Be Joking—Tragedy Takes Place at Garvey's Dam—Leaves Wife and Children.

ALHAMBRA, July 1.—Fritz Mammele, a butcher of this city, was drowned at Garvey's dam, this afternoon. Friends watched his struggles in the water but offered no assistance as they thought he was pretending inability to swim.

Mammele and a number of other men went to the dam, which is in the hills about three miles south of the city, to enjoy a barbecue. After the feast, the butcher got into a boat and was paddling about the reservoir, when it tipped over. He began to swim but stopped, after a few strokes, and called for help. The men on the bank laughed, supposing he was joking. In a few seconds he sank and did not come to the surface again.

Then the other members of the party realized the situation and made ineffectual efforts to save their friend. The reservoir has been dragged but at a late hour tonight the body had not been recovered.

MARRIED WOMEN IN RACE.

SIERRA MADRE, July 5.—This city was the scene of one of the finest Fourth of July celebrations in its history, and fully 75 per cent. of the population turned out to do honor to the occasion. Through the untiring efforts of William Gootlieb and the Fox brothers, a series of athletic sports had been arranged for. The citizens donated the prizes, and contributed the funds for the music, which was furnished by the Crown City Band. Mayor Jones, J. W. Keys, president of the Board of Trade; Recorder J. A. Madden, Trustee J. Krafft and other city officials added to the success of the affair by acting as timekeepers and scorers, and by distributing the prizes, which consisted of many expensive and useful articles, from a pocketknife to a Winchester rifle.

The events took place on a course laid out on Grand View boulevard. Standing jumps, running races, bicycle races and potato and obstacle races were indulged in. Many exciting contests took place, and it is said that some amateur records were eclipsed. The highest number of points in the contests by the older boys were made by Robert Merrill and Earl Krafft. Marshall Wright and William Wright scored the highest points among the smaller boys.

The married women's 50-yard dash was won by Mrs. S. C. Collins, and Mr. J. H. Wright came in a close second. The maidens' race, by the "sweet sixteens," and under, was won by Miss Janet Stevenson, with Mabel Olsen second.

The prizes were distributed by Trustee J. Krafft on the schoolhouse grounds, after which an exciting baseball game took place between married and single men. The latter outplayed the former at every point. When the scorers got tired marking up the runs, the score stood 23 to 14.

The day passed without a mishap.

Catholic Institute to Open at Santa Monica Today—Bishop in New Residence.

SANTA MONICA, July 5.—The Catholic Institute, for teaching sisters, will convene at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in Columbia Hall. Bishop Conaty will preside at the sessions, which are to be continued during the week and will be attended by sisters from all parts of the Southwest. The speakers tomorrow will include Rev. R. J. Cotter, Miss Alice Osden and Homer B. Sprague, who was formerly a professor in Cornell University and later president of the University of North Dakota. All who are interested in educational work are invited to attend the institute.

Bishop Conaty has arrived, with his official family, and will pass the rest of the summer in his new residence in The Palisades. One of the matters to receive his early attention will be the preparations for the annual picnic of the Catholics.

ANGELENOS ARRESTED.

Today and the Fourth proved lively days for the special officers whose duty it is to see that the automobile speed ordinance is not violated. Seven Angelenos were arrested and deposited cash bail as an earnest proof that they would appear in the Police Court tomorrow. The victims include W. W. Robinson, H. H. Boose, W. W. McElhaney, F. C. Stearnes, A. L. Osburn, W. H. Holliday and J. L. Lane.

ALL EMBRACING SUIT.

The new action brought against Santa Monica in the Superior Court by the Trustees of Ocean Park seeks to force the collection of more than $22,000. In this complaint all of the causes of action embraced in the several suits heretofore instituted are combined and the minor suits have all been dropped. The amount claimed is for maintenance of the sewer system, extending the mains, adding to the outfall pier and the $5000 which Santa Monica at one time agreed to pay for the use of the septic tank. Before this new suit can be heard the injunction will have been argued, and in the meantime, Santa Monica is using her own magneto electrolytic system and has no use for septic tanks.

STATE SCHOOL CELEBRATION.

WHITTIER, July 5.—The celebration of the Fourth at the State School, to which the public was invited, included athletic sports of all kinds in the morning and in the afternoon, a programme of a patriotic nature. President Thomas Newlin of Whittier College delivered the address. Later, the cadets had a game of baseball, and at night there was a fine display of fireworks.

The members of the East Whittier Women's Club took charge of the celebration for their community, providing plenty of amusement and a chicken dinner for their guests.

SMILES AGAIN.

KNOCKED OUT, BUT REPLACED.

VICTIM OF ACCIDENT IN PLUNGE SAVES FRONT TOOTH.

Manager of Long Beach Bath-house Proves Able Dentist—Explosion of Box of Powder Seriously Injures Boy—Thousands Spend Sunday at Seashore—Patriotic Gift.

LONG BEACH, July 5.—Roy Parker of Santa Ana met with an accident in the plunge today, which has an unusual feature.

Parker was sliding down the chutes when he lost his balance and struck his mouth on the brass edges, with sufficient force to daze him. He landed in the water, but staggered to his feet, with his hand to his mouth, from which blood was pouring. He was hurried into the hospital, and Manager Archer discovered that a front tooth was missing.

"Your tooth is gone," he remarked.

"Yes, here it is," mumbled the youth, as he opened his hand and disclosed it.

The manager, who is an amateur dentist, as well as surgeon, washed the cavity with an antiseptic preparation, and then inserted the tooth, pressing it into place and molding the gum about it. Then he inserted some gauze between the upper and lower teeth. A dentist completed the operation, and says that the tooth will again find firm lodgment.

VICTIM OF FOURTH.

George Harkey, the eleven-year-old son of James Harvey, proprietor of the Illinois House, was painfully injured last night by an explosion of powder. He had a cigar box filled with powder, and was bending over it, filling a cartridge shell, when a spark from a burning punk fell into it. His face, eyes, eyebrows and hair were burned. An uncle, who was near, jerked off his coat and threw it around the boy, smothering the flames. It is feared the lad's eyes are permanently injured.

CROWD AT BEACH.

Despite the holiday relaxation of yesterday, there was another hegira to the beach today, and from 12,000 to 15,000 people arrived. The concessions on the Pike were well patronized, and the launches had good trips to San Pedro, and the breakwater. The concert by the municipal band was enjoyed by 5000 persons.

ACCIDENT NOT SERIOUS.

The spectacular ending of last night's fireworks display was not as serious as was supposed. The burns of T. G. Winkler, in charge of the display, are only superficial, and the barge was but little damaged. Over half of the fireworks were on the other barge, whose occupants were so distraught over the accident that they refused to work. These fireworks will be shown Monday night from the barge anchored in front of the bath-house.

FIREWORKS AID BURGLARS.

While the family of W. B. McKinley was on the beach last night, watching the fireworks, burglars entered their house at No. 425 West Second street, and stole two pocketbooks, containing several dollars, and a pearl necklace. Entrance was gained by cutting a screen.

The police were asked today to locate Paul Greenwood, aged 25, who left his home at No. 2819 Altura street, Los Angeles, a week ago last Thursday, to spend a day at the beach, and has not since been heard from.

LUCKY SMALL BOYS.

Inquiry among the physicians today indicate that there were less than a dozen accidents yesterday from the use of fireworks and of these only two were serious.

LAST SERMON IN STATE.

Bishop McIntyre Preaches in Whittier Methodist Church and Pays Tribute to Pastor.

WHITTIER, July 5.—Bishop McIntyre today preached his farewell sermon in California at the First Methodist Church, this city being given the honor because of the strong friendship which exists between the bishop and the pastor, Rev. W. Wilberforce Cookman. So great is the admiration which the Whittier minister feels for the bishop that he made a trip East this spring in order to help the latter's campaign. It was largely, according to Bishop McIntyre, because of this valiant worker's aid that success came to him.

The church is the largest in the city, but proved all too small for the throng which wished to hear the eloquent speaker. Bishop McIntyre took as his subject, "The Saints in Caesar's Household." The sermon was uplifting and practical. During the service, he paid Rev. Mr. Cookman a very pretty tribute.

FUNERAL OF MRS. HAZZARD.

The funeral of Mrs. Jane A. Hazzard, widow of Rev. A. Hazzard, who will be remembered as the minister who gave so largely of lands and money to the University of Southern California, were held at the Methodist Church this afternoon. Rev. W. W. Cookman, assisted by Rev. Will A. Betts of Long Beach, officiated. Mrs. Hazzard for many years had been prominent in church circles in California. She leaves a family of grown sons and daughters, most of whom live in this city.

EXCITEMENT AT CANYON PICNIC.

SUPPOSED DEMENTED HERMIT APPEARS WITH KNIFE.

Two Pomona Men and Their Families Have Unpleasant Experience But Nothing Serious Happens. Little Gratitude for Hospitality. Service in Memory of Lad Killed.

POMONA, July 5.—J. Armstrong of this city and E. E. Spiker, who was until recently agent for the Southern Pacific at Brawley, had an exciting experience, yesterday, in Coble's Cañon with Charley Gordon, who has been a well-known character in the cañon for years, and is said to be at times demented.

Armstrong and Spiker went to the cañon with their families, for the day and came upon Gordon, who lives in a cabin there. It was about luncheon time and he was invited to have something to eat. During the meal, he showed a sum of money.

After his departure Armstrong stretched himself on the ground while Spiker went up the cañon. After a while Gordon reappeared, and brandishing a knife over Armstrong, accused him of having stolen $20 from him and demanded its return.

Armstrong protested his innocence and realizing he had a frenzied man to deal with, endeavored to temporize and to arise, but Gordon kept threatening him with the knife.

When matters were getting serious, Spiker returned and he and Armstrong forced Gordon, who is said to have been drunk, back to his cabin.

Armstrong stood guard near the door while Spiker hastily went down the cañon, harnessed his team, got the women into the carriage and then shouted to his friend, who lost no time in reaching the conveyance.

HE'S A HUSTLER.

Thomas McKinley, the only Pomona contestant in The Times scholarship contest this year, held high place in today's list having sent in 12,009 votes yesterday. He is a "hustler" and is out to win.

Miss Mary Wilcox is at San Diego for two weeks.

The funeral of Michael Mooney, who died here Friday, was held this afternoon at J. E. Patterson's chapel. The Brotherhood of Yeomen attended in a body.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

A service was held this morning at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, in memory of Wallace Stewart, the lad who accidentally killed himself while hunting last week.

G. M. Simpson and family have gone to Seven Oaks for the summer. They are accompanied by Misses Clodine Chain of this city and Lulu Crabb of Los Angeles.

The Souvenir Craze.

"Do you know," Mrs. Thomson went on, quite ignoring her husband's bid for flattery, "that since we have lived here in the country, and you have gone back and forth to the city every day, you have seen absolutely nothing of the children?"

"I don't see how that can be helped," replied Mr. Thomson. "When I leave in the morning they are not up, and when I come back in the evening they're in bed."

"Yes," assented Mrs. Thomson, "that is so, but you might at least send them a souvenir postcard now and then."—

COPPER PRODUCTION.

According to the valuable annual statistical return published by H. R. Merton & Co., of London, the aggregate output of all the producing copper mines of the world in 1907 was 716,435 tons. This represents an increase of only 2335 tons over the total of 1906. Not since 1893—fourteen years previously—was there a similar check to the producing capacity of the mines.

1900, aggregate output, 479,514 tons; increase over prior year, 7270 tons. 1901, aggregate output, 516, 628 tons; increase over prior year, 37,114 tons. 1902, aggregate output, 541,295 tons; increase over prior year, 24,667. 1903, aggregate output, 574,775 tons; increase over prior year, 33,480. 1904, aggregate output, 644,000 tons; increase over prior year, 69,225. 1905, aggregate output, 682,125 tons; increase over prior year, 38,125 tons. 1906, aggregate output, 714,100 tons; increase over prior year, 31,975. 1907, aggregate output, 716,435 tons; increase over prior year, 2335.

Turning to the principal producing countries, says the London Times, the most striking feature is a decrease in the production of the United States mines, which fell by 14,560 tons to 395,090 tons in 1907. Mexico also decreased its output by 4000 tons to 66,565 tons. Together these two leading copper mining countries of the world had a lessened output of 18,620 tons in 1907 as compared with 1906.

The largest increases in 1907 were: Japan, output, 48,935 tons; increase over 1906, 6195 tons. Australasia, output, 41,250 tons; increase over 1906, 5000 tons. Russia, output, 15,000 tons; increase over 1906, 4510 tons. Peru, output, 10,575 tons; increase over 1906, 2070 tons.

Spain and Portugal, Chili, Canada and Germany each increased their output slightly in 1907 over 1906. The total increase of output by the eight principal copper countries just named was 19,375 tons. Deducting from this the American and Mexican aggregated decrease of 18,620 tons, leaves only 755 tons in the production of the ten leading copper mining countries of the world for the year 1907.

During the years 1900 to 1907 the aggregate output of the American mines has fluctuated between 57 and 67 per cent. of the world's annual copper supply. The percentage was 65 in 1906 and 63 in 1907. The lowest was 57 in 1901, and the highest was 67 in 1902.

Japan and Australasia may be expected to increase still further their production during 1908; while Rhodesia will soon join the ranks of copper producing countries, extensive deposits of copper ore having been discovered in the territory north of the Zambesi River. Copper mining in Russia is now also extending and with an increased output of 50 per cent. Russia has risen to ninth place in the list of copper producing countries. The four countries showing the largest increases in 1907, however, only contributed 115,760 tons to the annual output, or 16 per cent. of the total world production. "It," concludes the London Times, "this rate of increase be maintained, it will still be many years, therefore, before the copper supremacy of the United States is challenged.

TWO GREAT CAMPAIGNS ON

The Times Big Premium Offer

Under arrangements just completed, THE TIMES is enabled to submit to its readers a premium proposition of more than usual value, particularly so on account of the coming great political battle. EVERYBODY should have an opportunity to secure these valuable and instructive books and magazines. Here is the attractive list:

Current Literature, 1 Year's Subscription, Value	$3.00
Roosevelt Policy, 2 Volumes, Bound in Buckskin and Khaki, Value	$3.00
Sunset Magazine, 1 Year's Subscription, Value	$1.50
Total Subscription Value	$7.50

Current Literature Magazine

This great magazine covers regularly every month topics of interest all over the world and of such variety as to interest all. Its contributors are among the foremost. The regular subscription price is 25 cents per month.

Roosevelt Policy

In two volumes, bound in buckskin and khaki, value $3.00. These volumes contain the President's speeches, messages, and other State papers—in fact, all that the President has had to say on corporate wealth, the relations of capital and labor, tariff and currency, interstate commerce regulations, and all the vital subjects of the day. The introduction is written by Andrew Carnegie, and is both instructive and illuminating. In view of the fact that the coming political campaign will largely involve discussions of the President's policy, these books are exceptionally and unusually interesting.

Sunset Magazine

This great magazine—the only one of importance published on the Pacific Coast—is a regular monthly magazine, 15 cents a copy, and beautifully illustrated. It deals with subjects of peculiar interest to Pacific Coast life, and, in addition to its graphic descriptive articles, it contains fiction of a high order. The great story, "Lin McLean," by Owen Wister, author of the famous "Virginian," appears in this magazine in monthly installments. The contributors generally are among the first writers of the Pacific Slope.

THE unusually liberal terms on which these excellent magazines and books may be obtained in connection with Times subscriptions are set forth in the following contract, which may be signed and sent to The Times, or the necessary arrangements may be made in person at The Times Building, First and Broadway, Los Angeles, or with any regular Times agent:

NEWS REPORTS FROM CORRESPONDENTS OF THE TIMES.

WATER'S VICTIMS.

TWO DIE IN BEAR VALLEY LAKE.

SUNDAY BOATING EXCURSION ENDS TRAGICALLY.

Member of Pioneer San Bernardino Family and Companion, Whose Name Is Unknown, Perish—Tower of Arrowhead Reservoir Completed. Lively Contest for Hotel Property.

SAN BERNARDINO, July 5.—Otis [illegible] of this city, and a companion, whose name has not yet been learned, were drowned today while boating on Bear Valley Lake. Meager news of the tragedy was received here by telephone tonight. The men went out in the morning, and had spent several hours on the water. From some cause, yet unexplained, their boat either capsized or sprung a leak in the middle of the lake, and the occupants were unable to save themselves by swimming.

A rescue party started out immediately from shore, but was unable to find the bodies. The hunt, it was said, would be continued through the night.

[illegible] was a member of a pioneer family of this city. His parents are dead. He was 25 years old and unmarried. He had been engaged recently as superintendent of a mining company in the Bear Valley country.

NEARING COMPLETION.

Another step has been taken toward the completion of the Arrowhead reservoir, in Little Bear Valley. This is the finishing of the big concrete tower, by means of which the water is to be carried into the long tunnels for diversion to this side of the mountains. The tower cost an immense amount of work. Next winter the lake waters will be allowed to flow into the reservoir, and the lake will probably be increased in size and depth. The tower rises 135 feet from its foundations in the rock. The base is laid [illegible] feet below the surface, and the walls are six and a half feet thick of solid concrete.

There are eight intakes and outlets at various points of elevation, which will make it possible for the company to draw water into the distributary mains from any depth. The tower itself will be able to select the purest water in the lake.

Work will be rushed on the balance of the reservoir project, though no statement is made as to the date of completion. The undertaking has required over fifteen years and several hundred dollars have been expended.

HOTEL PROPERTY STRIFE.

H. E. Huntington, it is said, will not be able to secure control of the Arrowhead Hotel property for many moons. A sensational coup is reported by Seth Mann, president of the hotel company. He surprised a scheme to secure control by unexpectedly buying the stock held by A. G. Hubbard of Redlands, he says, [illegible]

It is said this purchase was made the Huntington interests, as represented by Henry E. Denman, Jr., Victor Smith, E. W. Roberts and W. D. Brookings, appear to have secured proxies enough to give control from Marshall at the annual meeting in October.

Frank Hall, employed as a teamster by S. S. Clapp of Del Rosa, was seriously hurt last night by being thrown from a wagon while descending the Cajon grade with a party of picnickers. The front wheel ran over his horses, crushing the bones. He also sustained severe injuries to his head.

GAIN IN POSTAL RECEIPTS.

Redlands Postmaster May Expect Five Salary—Real Estate Deals. Improvements Projected.

REDLANDS, July 5.—Postmaster Haworth today completed his semi-annual report which will be forwarded to Washington. For the six months ending June 30, there was a gain of $600 in cash receipts over the first six months of last year, which means that there will be an increase in the postmaster's salary this year. It is believed the business of the five rural routes has much to do with the gain. The cash receipts of the postoffice for the quarter ending June 30 alone were $3000.

D. Thompson has sold to George Cooke a twenty-acre improved place northwest of town for $3000.

Building permits, footing up over $1500, were issued by the City Clerk the past month.

J. Kuhlman, who has been assistant agent here for three years, has been promoted and is now the full agent at Rivera.

A five-acre piece of Mr. Wilson, in town, was today sold to M. A. Lewis of Loara for $2000. Mrs. L. Lewis has sold a twenty-acre improved place, southwest of town, to Mrs. Williams of Pasadena for $3600. Hall & Co. have purchased a five-acre tract, set to walnuts, for $2000. A. Strand of Pasadena has purchased four lots in the old Del Campo tract and will improve the property. Miss Joan Adams, the city librarian, reports that 139 new books were received last month. Work will be commenced at once on the Carnegie $10,000 library building and it is said it will require only five months to complete it.

FRUIT SHIPMENTS LARGE.

Over 150 large crates of berries were shipped from this city by express today, and in another week it is believed the shipments will reach from 1000 to 1500 boxes daily. Most of the fruit at present is raspberries.

Mrs. Mary Wiley is erecting a $1200 cottage in southwest of town.

A number of business men are now in favor of paved streets and a sewer system for this city, although it is not known if the proposed improvements will be taken up for official action at present.

Over 100 buildings were erected in this city last year.

GENEROUS GIFT TO DIOCESE.

Rancho Dosates Valuable Property Catholics for School—Owner of Calleguas Rancho.

VENTURA, July 5.—One of the most important features of the Catholic picnic at Foster Park yesterday was the announcement that Juan Camarillo had made a handsome gift to the diocese of his property on California street in this city, to be used for school purposes. Bishop Conaty's letter of acceptance was read. It stated that the new school would be known as the Camarillo Academy. Arrangements have already been completed and it is conducted under the auspices of the Sisters of the Order of St. Joseph. It is probable it will be opened by the first of the year.

The property includes a finely constructed seven-room residence on a large lot, sixty feet frontage on California street and fifty feet on Poli street, with a depth of 250 feet. The Catholic people of this city have long wished for a school as such an institution is much needed.

The donor is a son of the late Juan Camarillo, and owner, with his brother, of the great Calleguas rancho, a princely property. Mr. Camarillo has always been a devout Catholic and has made several pilgrimages to Rome.

GALA DAY.

ONTARIO REVELS IN CELEBRATION.

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY IS GLORIOUSLY OBSERVED.

Never Were More People Seen on City's Streets—Salute at Dawn Followed by Parade of Floats, Auto and Motorcycle Races, Grand Ball and Fireworks.

ONTARIO, July 5.—This city celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary yesterday. It was the first occasion of the kind in twelve years and a larger crowd was never seen on the streets. It was estimated that 6000 people watched the races in the afternoon.

At daylight there was a salute of twenty-five guns. At 9:30 o'clock sixteen floats and many vehicles wound their way up the east side of Euclid avenue to H street and down on the west side to A street. First prize for the fraternal floats was won by the Alpha Pi and Kappa Thetas. It represented a yacht, the body of which was decorated with yellow chrysanthemums. The water was represented by green ferns. From bow to stern a long line of pennants were flying. The second prize went to the Women of Woodcraft.

Of the industrial floats, K. Mayberry captured first prize. It represented a blacksmith shop. Frank Minter's float, depicting a camp in the mountains, won the second.

The float that received the greatest applause was a comic one designed by Robert Root. It was an old laundry wagon filled with an ancient miner's outfit. Hitched to the wagon was a broken-down cart containing all sorts of rubbish. The outfit was drawn by the most miserable horse in town. On both sides of the wagon was the sign "Lookin' for Pomona Kownty."

J. S. Armstrong won the automobile prize; Edwin Malone, the bicycle prize, and the Drew Carriage Company the prize for the best decorated buggy.

After the parade, a flag drill was beautifully given by some of the school children. Chairman Bennink told of the founding of Ontario, Harold Hubbell read the Declaration of Independence; there was a brief address by Mayor Smith and an oration by Rev. Charles Seccombe.

At 12:30 o'clock 150 guests betook themselves to Somerset Hall and enjoyed a banquet.

At 1:30 o'clock, the dedication of the public drinking fountain given by the W.C.T.U., took place. It was presented to the city by Mrs. Clara Sheldon. Addresses were made by Rev. Charles Seccombe, Rev. Mr. Cowan, Rev. Mr. Beaver and Mrs. Meacham, president of the county W.C.T.U.

At 2:30 o'clock the automobile and motorcycle races took place on the mile straightaway between Upland and Fourth street. The course had been lately repaired and was in excellent condition. E. V. Caldwell covered the distance in his Mitchell in 1m. 15s., winning the $10 cup. Dr. Orr was second, also in a Mitchell. H. Hannah won the motorcycle race for two and one-quarter horse-power machines, with J. Hall, second. Hall won the three, and above, horse-power race, covering the distance in 1:11 1-5.

Immediately after these races the sports took place between A and B streets. Patsy Bolivar and Marco won their way into the hearts of the people, the former, by his work on the slack wire and the latter by his juggling.

In the evening there were fireworks in front of the Country Club. The roof garden and the lawns of the club were packed with people.

After the fireworks, a grand ball was held in Masonic Hall, the Ontario band furnishing the music.

MONEY TALKS.

COUNTY RICHER BY MILLIONS.

SAN DIEGO ASSESSMENT SHOWS VERY LARGE GAIN.

Tax Rate to Be Lower Than Last Year's—Machinist's Arm Torn Out of Socket—Crowds Cross Bay. National Salute Fired by Cruisers. Charter Agitation.

SAN DIEGO, July 5.—A gain over last year of $4,750,000, in the assessed valuation of San Diego county property is shown by the assessor's books, which have just been completed and turned over to the Supervisors. Assuming that the railroad valuation fixed by the State Board of Equalization is no smaller than last year, the assessed value of all property in the county will be $31,827,570. Last year's total, after the segregation of Imperial county, was $26,783,130. In this year's rolls all real estate outside of incorporated cities is assessed at $4,708,182, and the improvements thereon at $1,092,940; lots and land inside incorporated cities, $12,981,397 and improvements thereon, $5,778,600. Personal property is valued at $3,613,672. The tax rate this year will be lower than last, when it was raised by reason of a special high school tax.

MACHINIST LOSES ARM.

While at work in the engine room of the steamer Queen, last night, William Hill, 35 years old, ran his arm into a revolving shaft and it was torn from the socket. The ship's physician gave temporary relief and then the injured man was brought here for hospital treatment. The accident happened after the ship had rounded Point Loma and it turned back here, leaving again at 11:30 o'clock. Hill is in a critical condition but the hospital authorities believe he will recover as he has a rugged constitution.

BIG CROWDS CROSS BAY.

According to turnstile count at the Coronado ferry, 10,200 persons were attracted to the resorts on Coronado Beach on the Fourth. Besides the land attractions, the cruisers of the United States navy off Coronado Hotel attracted hundreds.

CRUISERS FIRE SALUTE.

One feature of the Fourth of July celebration at Coronado was the roar of the cannon of the cruisers Tennessee, California and Washington, together with the big guns of Fort Rosecrans. Each ship and the fort discharged forty-six shots, the national salute, each charge representing a State.

TO DISCUSS CHARTER.

Mayor Forward has called a meeting of representative citizens for Friday afternoon for the purpose of discussing proposed changes in the city charter. The Mayor is anxious to obtain expressions of opinion from business and professional men, trades people and representatives of the laboring classes. The meeting will be held at the City Hall.

WIFE-SLAYER'S TRIAL.

William Burk, who, under the name of William Morse, shot and killed his wife, Thursday night, will be arraigned tomorrow. As he admits the deed and does not seem to be sorry for it, his trial is not expected to consume much time.

PINCHOT COMING.

After writing that his proposed visit to San Diego would have to be "cut out," Gifford Pinchot, Chief of the Forestry Bureau, now writes E. W. Scripps that he will pay him a visit at Miramar soon. A fitting reception is to be tendered him upon his arrival.

AFTER GARBAGE MAN.

Trouble is in store for H. L. Emerson, who has the exclusive right to remove garbage in this city, for the reason that some of the business men think exhorbitant prices are charged. For the purpose of examining into the legality of the exclusive contract, one firm has employed attorneys to look up the law and it is possible that proceedings may be brought attacking the Council's act in awarding a contract without bidding. It is claimed by those protesting that Emerson's service does not give satisfaction.

ITALIAN CRUISER ARRIVES.

The Italian cruiser Puglia arrived in port today. She left Italy last autumn and came by way of the Straits of Magellan, making various stops en route. She will go from here to San Francisco. Her ultimate destination is the Asiatic station.

AFTER HAWAIIAN TRIP.

Admiral Sebree, in command of the naval division now here, stated tonight that the eight armored cruisers and like number of torpedo boats, which will leave San Francisco next month for a trip to the Hawaiian Islands, will come directly to this port on their return from Honolulu.

They are due to arrive here the latter part of October, and after a brief stay will go to Magdalena for target practice. On the voyage to Honolulu the torpedo craft will be towed by the cruisers.

Admiral Sebree added that the Tennessee, Washington and California and the three destroyers now here will leave Tuesday for San Francisco. The destroyers will be towed by the cruisers to that port.

HELD UP.

QUESTION WILL BE DEFERRED.

WILL NOT SELECT VICE-PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE YET.

Democrats Decide to Drop Matter Until After Man for First Place Has Been Selected—Bryan Prefers Gray, but Support of Latter Seems to Be Dwindling.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DENVER, July 5.—The question of the selection of a candidate on the Democratic ticket for the Vice-Presidency will not be determined until after the nomination of a candidate for the Presidency.

This is the desire of Mr. Bryan and it has been communicated to the Bryan leaders.

Mr. Bryan has taken the stand that not until after the first position has been filled can there be a really intelligent selection for the second place. When the nomination shall have been made and there shall have been an opportunity to view its effect upon the country at large, then, he thinks, and not until then, can the Vice-Presidency be intelligently considered.

This desire on the part of Mr. Bryan has been received with favor. Most of the delegates agree the situation can be sized up to better advantage after the first selection has been made than before that event, and, furthermore, there has been so much talk regarding the Vice-Presidency that most of the delegates welcome an excuse for at least temporarily dropping the subject. The present disposition, therefore, is not only to postpone the selection of a Vice-Presidential candidate until after the nomination for the first place, but to adjourn the convention for a long enough time to permit a general exchange of views among the leaders and give the Presidential nominee an opportunity to express his preference.

Mr. Bryan has not hesitated in letting the fact be known that if the nomination for the Presidency goes to him he will desire to be consulted as to the choice of a running mate. He has repeatedly said that he would prefer Judge Gray for this position, but today for the first time since the delegations began to gather there has been a falling off in the Gray Vice-Presidential boom. This was especially noticeable among western delegates. It was generally credited to the positive statement made yesterday by Judge Gray. It is also known that some strongly antagonistic representations concerning Judge Gray have been recently made to Mr. Bryan by his recognized advisers, who declare that these have not failed of effect. It is asserted that Mr. Bryan's present demand for delay is due more largely to those adverse representations than to any other circumstance, and the tone of confidence in Mr. Gray's nomination is not now so strong as it was in the beginning.

There has also been a decided falling off during the day in the effort to boost Judge Gaynor of New York for the Vice-Presidency. It has been hinted that Mr. Gaynor has antagonized the Catholic church, "and," said a delegate, who is himself a Catholic, "it is not to be supposed that we are going to take chances in this campaign by nominating any man who is not at least acceptable to the Catholic vote. In view of Mr. Taft's record in the Philippines we shall have to be careful on that point."

It is still contended, however, that if New York will get together and name an acceptable candidate the Vice-Presidential nomination will go to that State.

John Mitchell, who arrived today, when asked regarding his reported candidacy for the Vice-Presidency on the Democratic ticket, said: "I am strongly disinclined to participate in political life just now." Beyond that he would not discuss the subject.

FALL KILLS EVANGELIST.

JOPLIN (Mo.) July 5.—Rev. Simpson Ely, an evangelist who had conducted services in every State of the Union, died tonight from the effect of injuries received this morning from a fall from a street car. He was 59 years old.

GATHERING OF CLANS.

lays of brass bands which welcomed each incoming delegation and escorted it to its hotel, "while hand cars" were run over the street car lines giving street concerts.

Among the morning arrivals were the Cook County Marching Club, uniformed and hilarious with trim black suits, shining silk tiles and natty canes, topped with streamers. After them came the Oklahomans, true products of the soil, with broad-brimmed sombreros, high boots and the stain of travel.

Delegations from Florida, Alabama, and other States filed through the streets during the morning and later came South Dakota, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland, Kentucky and Minnesota. The Tammany braves, on several special trains were anxiously awaited, but word came that they stopped off at Omaha to go to church. They will be here early tomorrow morning about the time the Bryan home cohorts arrive from Nebraska, including the crack organization from Lincoln, the Commercial Travelers' Club, which is coming to lend vehemence to the Bryan demonstration.

BURTON IN RANKS.

Many interesting convention figures are added as the delegations come in. A picturesque personality to arrive today was the fighting Mayor from Cleveland, Tom L. Johnson, rotund and smiling, just up from a council fight with the leader at Lincoln. Others in the star groups were Gov. Folk of Missouri, Senator Dubois of Idaho, who comes with an anti-Mormon fight involved in the Idaho contests; Senator Pettigrew, looking much the same individual as when he was a power in the United States Senate; Senator James Smith, Jr., of New Jersey, also a power in Pettigrew's time, and Senator Overman of North Carolina.

A strange figure in these gatherings was ex-United States Senator Burton of Kansas, here after his tragic experience, to give open allegiance for the first time to the Democracy.

A number of diplomats are expected tomorrow, and about the same time will arrive Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, the President's daughter, who will be an interesting figure on the convention platform next Tuesday.

The Vice-Presidential situation has undergone a change during the day owing to certain very definite subterranean information from Lincoln to the effect that Mr. Bryan feels that it would be wise to defer any definite action as to the second place on the ticket until the first place on the ticket has been disposed of. This comes in such a direct way that it will doubtless have the effect of postponing any caucus action by the New York or other delegations favorable to any particular candidate.

Meantime the various boomlets are undergoing varying fortunes. The Gray forces are as insistent as ever that Judge Gray will not take second place, while the Bryan forces continue to talk of the availability of Gray, Mitchell or Towne. The arrival of Mitchell tonight with Gompers and others is expected to give an impetus to the Mitchell movement, although he comes primarily to aid Gompers in shaping the labor-union planks.

NEW YORKERS WAIT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DENVER, July 5.—New York State, reluctant to give up its attitude of interested onlooker, will at its caucus tomorrow afternoon pass over without action practically all of the important points at issue, including declarations as to the State's attitude on the Presidency and Vice-Presidency.

All of these matters, including the State's attitude on the platform, will be left to subcommittees, which will be friendly to Mr. Murphy, the leader of Tammany Hall. Even the selection of a National Committee will be left in abeyance, and thus the caucus of tomorrow, which promised to be filled with interest and vitality, is robbed of all its importance.

Mr. Murphy is to be elected chairman of the delegation. That much seems to be settled, and will be the first business of the caucus. Judge Alton B. Parker is to be appointed as State's representative in the Resolutions Committee. Only such other committee appointments will be made as are necessary to comply with the rules of the convention as to temporary organization.

It was reported today that Norman E. Mack would succeed himself as member of the National Committee from New York.

"New York," said one of the leaders of the delegation today, "will not have a Vice-Presidential candidate until it has to, and we do not expect at this time that we will be compelled to have one."

The decision of the State leaders to leave all the important matters that ordinarily would be decided at tomorrow's caucus to a number of subcommittees, is a continuation of the part New York has played ever since the convention got under way. The chances that the delegation will vote solidly for Mr. Bryan, it is said, have not diminished in any way, although there may be some significance in the remark of one of Bryan's supporters in the delegation, who said:

"I would like to see the convention have three or four ballots before selecting its candidate for the Presidency. If that could happen it would rouse the interest of the country to a higher pitch of enthusiasm than anything else could possibly do, and there would be an impetus given to the campaign in such a fight. It ought to be the same way with the Vice-Presidency. It is not the nature of Democratic conventions to be too cut and dried, and we ought not to fall in that class of parties."

One of the interesting events of the day was the widespread circulation of a story that a telegram had been received here "by a friend of a friend of a friend" of W. R. Hearst, saying that Mr. Hearst would be pleased with the Democratic ticket if Justice Samuel T. Seabury of the New York Supreme Court, was selected as Vice-Presidential candidate. There was nothing more definite to the rumor, but it set many people talking, and was generally passed around among the delegates.

BURTON FINDS PARTY.

EX-CONVICT ON CORRUPTION.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DENVER, July 5.—The accession of ex-United States Senator J. R. Burton, of Kansas, to the ranks of the Democratic party, at least for the next campaign, was announced today.

Mr. Burton came in with the Kansas delegation and while not a delegate, mingled freely with the Democrats of that State. He lost no time in making known his intention of supporting the nominee of the Denver convention and expressed the opinion that the honor of that nomination would be awarded to Mr. Bryan.

"I won't," he said, "support Taft for the reason that his nomination was secured through the use of patronage and I regard the use of patronage as the most corrupting thing in a government. I would not support a Republican or a Democrat or anybody who was nominated as Mr. Taft was, by misuse of public office.

"The supreme question is, shall we have a democracy or a despotism. Roosevelt has made more progress for autocracy in this country than all other Presidents we have had, and less for democracy. He has given us a political trust that is a thousand times more dangerous than all the commercial trusts, and the first trust to be busted is the political trust. That trust is founded on patronage and it can be destroyed only by destroying patronage.

"Just as Mr. Bryan said yesterday, the paramount question is whether or not this government shall be controlled by a political oligarchy or by the people. The tariff and all other questions fall into insignificance when compared with this question of the use of patronage.

"For this reason, if for no other, I shall support the nominee of the Democratic convention."

CONCEDED.

BRYAN SURE OF NOMINATION.

GOV. JOHNSON'S SPONSOR SAYS HE'LL LOSE ELECTION.

Chairman of Minnesota Democratic State Central Committee Asserts Bryan Will Be Named, but That He Cannot Be Elected—Regards It as "Too Bad."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DENVER, July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "There is no contest. Bryan will be nominated on the first ballot in the tamest convention ever held by the Democratic party. It is too bad, because the Nebraskan is doomed to certain defeat, though doubtless his brilliant personality will win him a large vote."

This statement, made today by Frank A. Day, represents the gloomy state of mind of the chairman of the Minnesota Democratic State Central Committee, the man who, more than any one else, is responsible for the rapid rise of Gov. John Albert Johnson of the Gopher State.

Johnson, according to Mr. Day, has absolutely no chance to win even one-third of the votes cast on the first ballot, although Minnesota will stand by the colors and cast her first vote for the Governor.

"I love, respect, almost adore the great Commoner," continued Mr. Day, "and would lay down my life for him, but when it comes to the election next fall—well, I own $10,000 worth of stock in several corporations which Mr. Bryan would destroy."

FIGHT ON GUFFEY.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DENVER, July 5.—"Pennsylvania will swing into line with the other States for Bryan," declared former Congressman James Kerr of that State soon after his arrival today.

"At least forty-two of our votes are favorable to him, and while we shall make no effort to have the unit rule enforced, I feel confident that when the minority discover the situation they will wheel into line."

Being asked regarding the situation with reference to the national committeeman from Pennsylvania, Mr. Kerr replied:

"We must have a new deal there; we must have a man on the National Committee who represents the sentiments of the real Democracy of the State. Col. Guffey does not meet that requirement.

"I notice that the colonel is very antagonistic to Mr. Bryan. That is ingratitude. Mr. Bryan and myself are responsible for Guffey being in his present office.

"They say he should be upheld because he makes liberal contributions to the campaign funds. That is the very reason why he should be relieved from duty. With him out of the way I can get a thousand men to contribute, and the money they give will be their own."

DIPLOMATS SEND REGRETS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DENVER, July 5.—John Barrett, director of the Bureau of American Republics, has reached the city to make arrangements for the entertainment of members of the Diplomatic Corps who are to attend the convention. It is said that not as many diplomats will make the trip to Denver as attended the Chicago convention, but that the corps will be represented by seven or eight of its members.

Mr. Barrett will go before the National Committee tomorrow and deliver a message from James Bryce, the British Ambassador, and M. Jusserand, the French Ambassador, expressing their regret at not being able to attend the convention. Both Ambassadors will have been obliged to leave the country for their homes to attend to governmental business. Their compliments and regrets are thus to be officially extended to the Democratic party as an evidence that no discrimination was intended, as both diplomats attended the Chicago gathering.

Mr. Barrett intends also to urge the Resolutions Committee of the convention to incorporate a plank in the platform, pledging the party to do all within its power to continue the development of the friendly relations between the United States and the Latin-American countries to the south. Such a plank is contained in the Republican platform.

Convention May Visit Lincoln.

LINCOLN (Neb.) July 5.—Hoping to bring about an innovation in the manner of notifying Presidential candidates of their choice of standard-bearers, Mayor Brown of Lincoln, member of the Resolutions Committee from Nebraska, is working on a scheme to bring back to Lincoln all of the delegates to the Denver convention and surprise William J. Bryan on his farm at Fairview with the announcement that he is to be the leader of Democracy in the coming campaign.

Solitude.

The solitude of hills, or of the sea,
The solitude of dense far-stretching woods,
Have naught in them of loneliness for me,
Who loves the songs of elemental moods.

But in the city streets, where myriad feet
Pass here and yon in hurried onward press,

—[John Kendrick Bangs in July Metropolitan Magazine.

Youth and Love.

The song—the rose—the star
With youth and love rejoice;
'Tis for the young that the song is sung,
That the rose is sweet and the star-light flung;
They are naught, they are naught to the old, they say—

But above the rose I see, is a face,
And behind the song, a voice,
And beyond the star is a soul afar
Where the shimmering leaves of the Life-tree are—
Where youth and love immortal stay

Men Wake Up!

DR. HARRISON, The Leading Specialist. 15 Years in Los Angeles.

No ailment peculiar to men, is so trivial as to warrant neglect, or excuse unskilled and improper treatment. Many of the apparently slight ailments to which the average man pays little or no attention, may lead to serious complications and irreparable injury, if not promptly and skillfully treated. Between the indifference and inexperience of the general practitioner on the one hand, and the questionable business methods of specialists on the other, the man who is wise enough to seek advice and aid, is often between the horns of a serious dilemma.

Sixteen years of eminently successful and honorable practice, right here in Los Angeles, coupled with the indorsement of many of the leading business men of the city and our well-earned and enviable reputation for square dealing, are excellent reasons why ailing man should consult us in preference to others.

Consultation, examination and expert diagnosis are free in all cases. If the case is simple and uncomplicated we will cure you absolutely free and furnish all medicines free. If the case is not one coming under this head, our fee will be quite reasonable and you can pay when cured. If you call, you will not be asked for your name and address or importuned in any way to take treatment. We do not recommend treatment by mail, which is at the best uncertain and unsatisfactory.

Our Cure for Varicocele

No case of varicocele ever was or ever can be cured without an operation, notwithstanding the brazen, blindfastic statements of would-be specialists to the contrary. Hundreds have tried to be cured of varicocele without an operation and detention from work and have failed. Our operation is painless, devoid of danger, and only necessitates laying off from work one week. We will be glad to introduce any one interested to dozens of the leading business men of Los Angeles whom we have operated on and cured completely and permanently of this trouble. For the last ten years we have had a standing offer of $1000 to be paid to any "no-surgery specialist" or electric belt vendor who would produce a case of varicocele they had cured without operation.

"Weakness"

Functional weakness, associated with loss of power, is usually symptomatic of some abnormal local condition in some vital point in the pelvic organ, congestion, inflammation and enlargement of the gland, stricture, varicocele, hydrocele, rupture, neglected disorders, or improperly healed cases of contracted disorders are the most common causes of weakness. To attempt to cure weakness by stomach drugging or by wearing electric belts is just as sensible as it would be to wear a set of harness to cure corns on the feet.

Our new treatment is entirely local. We first ascertain and then remove the cause, and there is invariably a speedy return of functional activity.

We Cure All the Diseases of Men

Free Consultation and Diagnosis

Men Only

No other physician employs a like method and so through is my work that there need not the slightest fear of a relapse into the old condition. It is not a question of whether you can be cured, but whether you will be cured. Don't wait until it is too late. My method is perfect and painless. The cure is absolutely certain. I use no KNIFE, cause no pain, and you need not be detained from your work for one day. I especially solicit those cases where many so-called treatments have failed—or where money has been wasted on electric belts and other appliances. My special treatment cures "WEAKNESS" in men in a very short time. My cures of this disorder are permanent and lasting. No hidden or stimulate temporarily, but thoroughly scientific treatment for the removal of conditions responsible for the functional derangement. "Weakness" is merely a symptom of inflammation or congestion in the prostate gland, and under my own original local treatment this gland is promptly reduced to its normal state and complete functional activity is the lasting result.

My Fee for Any Ailment of Men Is Only..... $10.00 In Any Simple Ailment.

WHEN YOU ARE CURED.

Can any reasonable man desire a more fair test of my methods than to let me cure him first and then pay the bill when he is well?

No man could be fairer than that. I take all the risk. You take none whatever. You have everything to gain and absolutely nothing to lose.

Those in trouble suffering from VARICOCELE, HYDROCELE, or any other disease tending to destroy and disfigure and to render happiness impossible are urged to call upon me without delay.

CONSULTATION AND ADVICE FREE.

My offices are open daily from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., and Sundays from 9 to 12.

ECHOES OF THE FOURTH.

Boy Who Toyed With Torpedo, and Victim of Premature Explosion of Firecrackers.

Not having satisfied himself with all the trials of fireworks on the Glorious day, Joe Paredes 10 years old, of No. 245 East First street, sought to learn by an experiment yesterday morning whether he could fire a torpedo and hold it in his hand at the same time.

He found he could.

Another belated accident of the Fourth was that which brought Leslie Bewley, 9 years old, of No. 124 South Anderson street, to the Receiving Hospital. Leslie was the victim of a premature explosion of a bunch of firecrackers. Burning his hands in an attempt to prevent the explosion of the whole package, he tried his bare feet, with the result that his heels were well blistered.

C. N. Hughes, 29 years old, was also a visitor at the Receiving Hospital, but not from Fourth causes. He is a machinist living at No. 842 California street, and while lighting a gasoline stove about 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning was badly burned by an explosion of the liquid. He was sent home with painful but not serious injuries on his hands and arms.

SHOOTS SELF IN BREAST.

Because he had been out of work for several days and had aggravated his condition by heavy drink, A. E. Weaver, 27 years old, shot himself in the left breast yesterday about noon. He will recover.

Weaver lived with his wife and two children and his father and mother at No. 824 Central avenue and, in the misanthropy following a Fourth of July spree, attempted his life. He fired a ball of 38 caliber into his breast but it was deflected by a rib and made only a bad flesh wound.

Weaver was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where his injury was dressed, after which he was sent to the County Hospital.

PLUCKY CONDUCTOR SAVES MAN'S LIFE.

ROSS E. NEEL, a conductor on the Long Beach division of the Pacific Electric, is greatly embarrassed by the admiration expressed by his fellow-employés for his brave deed Saturday night, through which a man's life was saved.

Neel and his motorman, Koepke, were on duty yesterday on the San Pedro division and at 9 o'clock last night, while crossing the trestle beyond Wilmington, Koepke saw a man ahead on the tracks. He threw on the air, but not quick enough and the car striking the victim, hurled him off the trestle into the water.

Neel, looking out from the rear platform, saw a body strike the water and without a moment's hesitation took a header from the platform and rescued the man, who was unconscious. Supporting him, the conductor swam to one of the trestle supports and held on until Koepke and some of the passengers on the car let down a rope, by which his burden was hauled up. Then Neel clambered up unaided.

The injured man was bleeding from a wound on the head, but a Miss Copeland of Los Angeles, a trained nurse, happened to be on the car and removing her skirt tore it into bandages and gave the man temporary attention. He was hurried to Los Angeles and taken to the Receiving Hospital, where it was found that he is Charles A. McFadden of San Francisco. He suffered only a slight concussion of the brain and a laceration of the scalp.

Neel reported to the train dispatcher and was relieved to get some dry clothing.

He wears his honors lightly today and says: "Oh, there's nothing to it. The man was in the water and what else could I have done."

HAPPY DAY AT ASBURY CHURCH.

BURNS MORTGAGE ON TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY.

Many Services Mark the Occasion, Several Former Pastors Taking Part With Past Officers and Others. Sunday-School and Epworth League Help in Lifting Debt.

An event yesterday of great interest to East Los Angeles, and especially to City Methodism was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Asbury, M. E. Church, on North Workman street. The feature of the day was the burning of the mortgage. The exercises commemorating the founding of the society lasted practically all day. At 6:30 o'clock in the morning a prayer meeting was held, followed by Sunday-school prayer service at 9 o'clock.

The usual 11 o'clock service was transformed into a platform meeting, the following programme being followed, the participants being the first pastors, official members and class leaders:

Opening anthem by choir, hymn, prayer, Rev. J. B. Green, pastor 1897; anthem, scripture lesson, offertory, address for first trustees, H. M. Mills; address of first class leaders, Rev. F. P. Sigler; address of second pastor, Rev. E. S. Chase; address, "The New Church," H. A. Osgood, treasurer of church; mortgage burning, J. A. Bott, president board of trustees; hymn, benediction.

While the mortgage was burning the congregation sang the doxology with the usual Methodist fervor. The pastor, Rev. W. M. Sterling, D.D., presided.

This is Dr. Sterling's second term, and his eighth year in the service of the church. During the two and a half years of his present pastorate $6500 has been raised, of which he personally secured $1000. Not a dollar of the entire sum was secured by fair, festival or concert methods.

Rev. Daniel Cobb was the first pastor of Asbury Church, followed by the Rev. E. S. Chase, Rev. T. E. Robinson, Rev. Henry Cox, Rev. P. F. Bresee, Rev. W. M. Sterling, Rev. E. A. Healy, Rev. John B. Green, Rev. D. H. Gilian, Rev. J. C. Healy and Rev. W. M. Sterling. The first board of trustees included M. Dodsworth, H. M. Mills, J. C. Miller, Henry A. Card, G. W. Wells, H. C. Sigler, Oliver G. Cline.

The spirit of the morning services invaded the meeting of the young people in the afternoon, as also that of the Epworth League at 6:30 p.m., which association of young men and women raised $600 toward canceling the mortgage. The little ones of the Sunday-school even did better by contributing about $800.

The climax of the day's event was the eloquent and fervid sermon delivered by Rev. Dr. P. F. Bresee of the Nazarene Church, who was pastor of the church in 1890. Asbury Church has 450 members.

JAP STATESMEN ROW.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

TOKIO, July 5.—The Elder statesmen have been summoned to meet July 7, when the political situation growing out of the resignation of the Cabinet will be considered.

At a meeting of the leaders of the Seiyukai party today, a serious split developed, but it is not considered serious enough to prevent Marquis Saionji to deliver Marquis Katsura a sufficient number of votes as Premier of the new Cabinet to be formed.

A danger in the situation appears to be that the illness of Marquis Saionji may make it possible for the leadership of another who will be unable to control a majority.

The situation has developed an interesting struggle between the Yamagata faction and Prince Ito, who strongly favors the Seiyukai party. In the meanwhile Count Admiral Yamamoto and Baron Terauchi, the latter a strong Seiyukai party man, have not given up the hope that the failure of Marquis Katsura to command a majority means the success of Terauchi because of his strength among the Seiyukai party.

KERMIT ROOSEVELT THROWN.

President's Son Gets Bad Tumble from Horse Competing in Manikin Race.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GENESEE (N. Y.) July 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Kermit Roosevelt had a bad tumble from a horse at the annual equestrian sports at Maj. Wadsworth's home in the Genesee Valley yesterday.

Young Roosevelt was taking part in the manikin race and was carrying a dummy across his saddle. When half way across the course and while he was putting in his best licks, the dummy started to slide.

In an instant Kermit was thrown to the ground and the manikin, weighing 100 pounds, fell on top of him. The boy was considerably shaken up, but not much hurt.

How Snakes Hear.

Snakes have no external ears, but inside the head the ear bones are very crude. Snakes "hear," however, by feeling vibration of sound on their delicate scaly covering, and searching for sound vibrations by protruding the wonderfully sensitive tongue, which is filled with thousands of microscopic nerves. Their sight is very keen in distinguishing moving objects.

COLD FEET?

CALIENTE JAIL NOT TOO HOT.

"IKE" LANDIS PREFERS IT TO A RETURN HERE.

Man Accused of Selling Mining Stock to Business Men of Whittier Under Misrepresentation Demands Requisition Before He Will Face Accusers.

Deputy Sheriff R. B. Way, who was expected home from Caliente, Nev., with Isaac R. Landis, the man accused of selling mining stocks under misrepresentation at Whittier, did not come last night with his prisoner. It is thought Landis demands requisition before he will permit himself to be brought back and this will require a week at least, as the papers will have to be issued at Sacramento by Gov. Gillett, on the Governor of Nevada, and then sent to Caliente.

Landis is still in the superheated board jail at Caliente. It was thought the terrors of this desert oven would be enough to induce him to return to the land of comfort, but it seems he sees it differently. And maybe he is right for, if stories in Los Angeles are true, he might find it much hotter for him here than the Caliente jail ever could get.

There are those in Los Angeles who declare that his pretension of being a nephew of Judge K. M. Landis of Chicago, the Federal judge who fined the Standard Oil Company $29,000,000, is a pure fiction, devised, probably, to make his promotion sales easy.

Men who know Landis and his family say he is from Pittsburgh and is not related to Judge Landis's family at all. Others who know Judge Landis and his family say that the pretended relationship is wholly untrue and that none of the Landis brothers, all well known in politics, two of them being political leaders in Indiana, has a nephew old enough to be the man now in the Caliente jail.

The name which Landis seems to have been known by, "R. R. Landis," is also not his real name. He is Isaac R. Landis, and is better known as "Ike."

It is said that several Los Angeles men are ready to institute proceedings against Landis if the charges made by Gustave Bohy, of Whittier, to whom he sold 2500 shares of Nevada Mining and Milling Company stock, do not suffice to hold him.

Mine Disaster in Russia Grows in Horror—Eight Men Live Through Fire.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

YUZOVO (European Russia) July 5.—An official statement shows that 228 bodies have been recovered from the Rikosky coal mine, where a gas explosion occurred several days ago. Nineteen injured men are in the hospital.

The fire in the mine has been extinguished, and today eight miners were brought out alive.

JAPS KILL THIRTY DAILY.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

TOKIO, July 5.—Advices from Seoul, Korea, say that the campaign against insurgents continues unabated throughout the disturbed region. Reports of minor engagements received daily at army headquarters show that the losses of the insurgents approximate thirty every day.

There have been some six or eight engagements in different sections.

The reports, however, indicate that the insurgent activity is diminishing since the arrest of a number of leaders.
